That job took him out of the local political spotlight but not out of politics. He remained a dominant figure in the background.

His detractors and political enemies called him commander of "the McIntyre Machine" and the Godfather. But never did they call him "stupid."

He was one of the brightest and most intelligent political figures in the city's history.

As for the "McIntyre Machine," his followers said it was only a group who believed in the same things he did and how best to improve Quincy. Among them were Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin who would both go on to become mayor. And, if there was a machine, they mused, at least it had round wheels and moved Quincy forward.

And, as for that "Godfather" tag, it was really more a political compliment. Just about every young person thinking of running for office sought his advice first. And veteran office holders sought his counsel, like sort of a "blessing."

James and Sheila McIntyre adopted four children—Elizabeth, Sheila, William and Charles. Their home was filled with love and warmth.

But tragedy lurked.

In December, 1983, William died of injuries suffered in a fall down an elevator shaft in Boston.

Now on March 12, 1984, less than three months later—another funeral.

Some 1,000 mourners filled St. John's Church for the Mass, including a virtual Who's Who on the state, county and city political scenes.

Among them: Senate President William Bulger, Lt. Gov. John Kerry, Atty.

Gen. Francis Bellotti, House Speaker Thomas McGee, State Auditor John Finnegan, former Senate President Maurice Donahue and Kevin Harrington, former House Speaker David Bartley, former Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III, Judge Edward Hennessey, chief justice of the Supreme Judicial Court, Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice of Quincy District Court, former Dist. Atty. George Burke, Mayor Francis McCauley, former Mayors Thomas Burgin and Joseph LaRaia, state Sen. Paul Harold, state Reps. Thomas Brownell, Michael Morrissey, Robert Cerasoli, Robert Ambler, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Governor's Councillor Peter Eleey, City Council President James Sheets and members of the City Council and School Committee.

Former Mayors Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, City Clerk John Gillis and School Supt. Lawrence Creedon were among the honorary pall bearers.

Bulger, with whom McIntyre served in the Massachusetts Senate and one of the speakers at the Mass said in tribute:

"As do all men of action in governmental service, he had to endure the insolence of lesser men who assumed the role of critic. But he was never one to buckle to the forces of power and publicity.

"In this city of Quincy he loved so much, he left the imprint of his zeal and personality."

Bishop Thomas V. Dailey, vicar general and chancellor of the Boston Archdiocese was the principal celebrant of the Mass, concelebrated by Fr. William McCarthy, St. John's pastor, and Rev. Msgr. James Scally, pastor of St. Ann's Church in Wollaston.

On a light note, Fr. McCarthy observed that

McIntyre had made many appointments during his life. "But to me he gave the greatest appointment of all—he made me the chaplain of the machine."

Clergymen of all faiths and civic leaders attended the Mass.

Sheila McIntyre, in her reflection of her life with her husband, noted a quote on the family's daily calendar for March 7, the day he died:

"The great use of life is to spend it for something that outlasts it."

Jim McIntyre's life, his friends say, was much too short but he did spend it on much that will last.

velopment in its history--Crown Colony in West Quincy--was under construction.

Four men were sentenced to jail terms for the assault on five sailors, two of them black, in Houghs Neck. Superior Court Judge James Lynch, Jr. called the February attack "blatant racism."

Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice of Quincy District Court referred to Germantown as a "white ghetto" as he accepted the South Shore Coalition of Human Rights Citizen of the Year Award. Kramer later apologized after a public outcry and a tour of the Germantown area.

Famed Quincy daughter Ruth Gordon came home for the rededication of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre in Merrymount Park. It was to be her final trip home before her death in 1985.

John J. "Jack" Donahue, North Quincy High School's first and for 29 years head football coach, died at age 79, 12 days before the 52nd Quincy-North Quincy football game. He had seen all 51 prior games in the rivalry.

Chris Peter, 22, of Houghs Neck was killed when struck down by a driver operating under the influence. Later, his family would begin an annual blood drive in his memory.

Some residents waited in line all night to purchase gravesites in Mount Wollaston Cemetery. It was the first time in 11 years that the gravesites were made available by the city.

Peter and William O'Connell unveiled plans for a $250 million development at the former Squantum Naval Air Station, a project which would become Marina Bay.

Other deaths included: Dennis E. Harrington, Sr., 72, retired assistant superintendent of the Boston Post Office; William F. McIntyre, 19, son of former Mayor and Mrs. James R. McIntyre; Ralph G. Perry, retired square dance caller; John J. Sullivan, Jr., 43, director of operations for the Norfolk County Commission.

WELCOME HOME--Wollaston-born famed actress Ruth Gordon waves to the crowd Nov. 10, 1984 at the amphitheatre in Merrymount named for her. With her is Louise LaRae, wife of former Mayor Joseph LaRae, who proposed the amphitheatre. It was Ruth Gordon Day and, sadly, her final visit home. She died in 1985.

Actress Ruth Gordon Dies

Ruth Gordon, Quincy-born award-winning actress who never forgot her Wollaston roots, died unexpectedly at her home on Martha's Vineyard at age 88. Miss Gordon frequently returned to attend the annual reunions of her Quincy High School Class of 1914. The class was dubbed the "worst class" by a teacher because no one made the honor roll but out of it came numerous success stories.

City employees picketed City Hall for new contracts.

Mayor Francis McCauley warned against uncontrolled overdevelopment in downtown

Quincy.

The closed Pollard School in Quincy Point was destroyed by a suspicious fire. Damage was so heavy, the building was later torn down and a condo complex built on the site.

Bad news at General Dynamics: 3,084 workers, it was announced, would be laid off by the end of the year.

Architectural consultants recommended that the 50-year-old Quincy police station be renovated and expanded at a cost of $4.8 million or a new station built at another site at a cost of $5.5 million.

After a six-month fight against locating a sewage treatment plant on Long Island, Quincy got the good news: the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority selected Deer Island instead.

Gov. Michael Dukakis, Sen. Edward Kennedy and Congressmen Brian Donnelly and Gerry Studds attended a rally in front of City Hall in an effort to keep the General Dynamics shipyard.

At the urging of City Clerk John Gillis, Quincy abandoned the old paper ballots voting system and switched to punch cards in the September primaries. Gillis was smiling when the results were all in by 10:15 p.m., a good several hours earlier than they would have been with paper ballots.

Tricia Tanner, 19, was crowned Miss Quincy Bay.

Thirty Wollaston residents were evacuated from their homes when chemicals leaked as bottles ruptured when compacted in a garbage collection truck. Seven persons were taken to Quincy City Hospital.

Hurricane Gloria roared into town, leaving nearly 10,000 homes without power.

Mayor Francis McCauley was re-elected to a third term, turning back challenger Joanne Condon by a vote of 13,115 to 7,306.

Old City Hall was renamed the James R. McIntyre Government Center in honor of the late mayor and state senator. The proposal was by Joseph LaRaia, a longtime political foe.

Daniel Raymond of Quincy succeeded James Collins as Norfolk County treasurer after Collins pleaded guilty to 69 counts of larceny, forgery and state tax evasion.

Quincy was connected with three major highways as the new Burgin Parkway extension opened its onramps.

Deaths included: Dr. M. Grace Hussey, 71, city health commissioner; Hattiemay Thomas, 95, retired Quincy city clerk; George Belezos, 102, believed to be the oldest person ever to receive a pacemaker; and Nancy Farrelly, 75, a former Ziegfeld Girl.

General Dynamics Shipyard Closes

Mayor McCauley's home-rule petition to increase the terms of mayor and city councillors from two to four years was voted down by the City Council.

A $45 million development known as Presidents Place will rise on the site of the old Bargain Center in Quincy Sq., it was announced.

Former Mayor-Sen. Thomas Burgin, one of Quincy's favorite sons and political powers, died at age 83 after a battle with cancer.

The School Committee voted to reopen the Wollaston School on Beale St. to help ease overcrowding at the elementary school level.

A three-alarm fire caused an estimated $100,000 at the Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

The city's first five-alarm blaze in 24 years destroyed the Mutual Building (better known as the Kincaide Building) on Hancock St. in downtown. The fire, which caused an estimated $4 million damage, was under investigation. The Quincy Sun was formerly headquartered there.

The Bargain Center, a Quincy Sq. landmark for 49 years, closed its doors.

Michelle Toth, 18, was crowned Miss Quincy Bay.

Work was started on the $57 million replacement facility at Quincy City Hospital.

New construction rose more than $84 million over that of 1985, creating 10,000 jobs and millions in new tax revenues, according to figures released.

Houghs Neck climaxed its summer-long 350th anniversary celebration with a parade featuring five bands, 800 marchers and costumed characters.

The Quincy Sun-Jerry Lewis Labor Day Pledge Center and telethon committee passed the $1 million mark in funds raised over 10 years to fight muscular dystrophy.

Snug Harbor Court was renamed in memory of City Councillor David "Jim" Crowley and an area of land in Squantum Central Middle School students signed a National Forum petition urging a forum on nuclear weapons and other issues.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles announced it was moving from Broad St. to the Quincy Fair building in Quincy Sq., clearing the way for a homeless shelter at the old registry building.

Mayor Francis McCauley presented a record $96 million budget to the City Council.

A Superior Court judge called the 110-acre West Quincy landfill an ecological disaster and ordered it closed.

pensing condoms to seventh to 12th grade students as a measure against AIDS despite urging from the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

Herb Fontaine, WJDA news director, was honored by the City Council for his 32 years of covering council meetings and other news events.

Renee Vardaro, 21, was named Miss Quincy Bay.

Phil Fantasia, 20, of Quincy was killed by a drunken driver in a head-on collision in front of Veterans Memorial Stadium.

A substance abuse testing plan provision was included in a three-year contract with the Quincy Police Betterment Association. It was a "first" for the city.

Actress June Lockhart of the "Lassie" TV program received the Golden Paw Award from the Quincy Animal during a visit to City Hall.

Mayor McCauley announced a $10.1 million surplus. The money was earmarked for school improvements, 11 marked police cruisers and a new library bookmobile.

The Marina Bay Clock Tower honoring Quincy residents lost in the Vietnam War was dedicated by Army General William Westmoreland at Marina Bay.

Mayor McCauley held off a strong challenge by

When the Blackmur residence was purchased by Dennis S. Sweeney in 1929, Quincy had a new place to pay its respects. At the time, residents liked the intimate parlors and separate visiting areas.

They still do. But today, some families prefer a larger, more modern visiting area. Other issues, like handicapped and elderly access, have become important, too.

That's why we recently added 1,645 square feet to our Elm Street location. From the front of the building, you won't notice the change. But, inside it means a much larger room and a more accessible entrance.

An early Thanksgiving Day automobile crash took the lives of Richard Miller, Jr., William B. Marston and Timothy Tobin and critically injured Matthew Tobin who also died several days later. All four were 22.

The city and the MWRA entered into an agreement for an interim sludge facility at the General Dynamics shipyard to at least 1995.

The City Council unanimously approved final design plans for the renovation and addition to the police station, to be completed in 1989.

Other deaths included John T. Williams, 70, founder of the Quincy District Court "Earn It" program which was praised by President Ronald Reagan; Hazel Olson, former leader of the Hazel Price all-women orchestra; and Richard J. Koch Sr., 64, Park Department executive director, Koch Club founder, and civic leader.

Quincy Celebrates Centennial As City

Quincy celebrated its centennial as a city. Originally the north precinct of Braintree, it became an independent town in 1791 and was named for Col. John Quincy, great-grandfather of President John Quincy Adams. It was incorporated as a city in June, 1888.

Patricia Toland became the first woman elected Quincy City Council president.

Mayor McCauley proposed a four-year term for mayor to be placed as a referendum question on the presidential election ballot.

The Bargain Center, a popular 49-year landmark for bargain hunters, was razed to clear the way for Presidents Place.

The Super Tuesday presidential primary marked the first time Quincy's wards and precincts were made equal in number by population.

Fire Chief Carl Valenti retired and was succeeded by Thomas F. Gorman Jr. as acting chief. Gorman is the son of a former fire chief.

The City Council strongly opposed opening a methadone clinic in Quincy. Methadone is a synthetic substitute for heroin used to wean addicts off that drug.

McCauley Says 'Sayonara,' Sheets Elected Mayor

"Sayonara," Mayor Francis McCauley concluded his mid-term address in January. He would not seek a fifth term.

Mary Collins took her oath as Norfolk County commissioner, the first woman to hold that post.

The mayoral field was shaping up by February with four candidates making official announcements: former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, Councillors Stephen McGrath and James Sheets and businessman Peter O'Connell.

The MWRA voted to locate a permanent sludge treatment plant at the General Dynamics shipyard over strong opposition by city officials and residents.

Deputy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell was sworn in as the city's new fire chief, the fourth in the last seven years and at age 38, one of the youngest in the city's history.

Project DARE, an innovative drug and alcohol abuse prevention program, was launched in the public school system.

North Quincy's Joe Dudek was at the training camp of the National Football League's New York Jets.

Mayor McCauley vetoed the local job hiring preference bill, calling it restrictive and "un-American."

Governor Michael Dukakis vetoed a bill that would require the MWRA to locate its headquarters at the General Dynamics shipyard. Dukakis wanted it in Roxbury.

Quincy Hospital announced there would be 200 layoffs at all levels because of decreasing health care reimbursements and changing insurance regulations.

Mayor McCauley announced a surplus of $8.2 million, the fourth major one in a row.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets and businessman Peter O'Connell were nominated for mayor in the preliminary election over former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Councillor Stephen McGrath. They would square off in the November final election.

Pamela Hall, 21, was crowned Miss Quincy Bay.

The new $9 million police station was dedicated with 400 in attendance.

The Thomas Crane Library was designated a National Historic Landmark.

The police department faced a $250,000 shortfall in its personal services budget. Chief Francis Finn and Mayor McCauley assured city councillors that a public safety crisis did not exist in the city.

The city kicked off its paper recycling program at a City Hall ceremony.

United First Parish Church, "Church of the Presidents," celebrated its 350th anniversary at a special service attended by 200 members and guests.

Quincy, once called

"the most racist in America" was honored with a special gubernatorial citation for its positive responses to the arrival of many immigrants and refugees.

The City Council voted 8-1 to override Mayor McCauley's veto of the local job hiring preference bill. Councillor Tim Cahill was the lone vote against the override.

James Sheets defeated Peter O'Connell by a vote of 17,553 to 11,454 to win the mayor's office. Sheets took 29 of the 30 precincts.

Deaths included: Gerard N. Arroyo, 22, who fell to his death at Swingle's Quarry; Joseph P. Guilfoyle, 86, who worked on the nation's first atomic bomb project; Kathryn E. Sullivan, 84, first woman assistant magistrate at Quincy District Court; Fr. Joseph M. Connolly, 53, formerly of St. John's Church; Gregory P. Toland, 20, son of city Council President Patricia Toland; Stephen Hurley, 69, for state Senate postmaster and Vincent Buonfiglio, 82, owner of the Buonfiglio Funeral Home.

Sheets Cites Need For New Revenue Sources

Mayor James Sheets, in his inaugural address, cited the need for new revenue sources, a freeze on hiring, rezoning the city and a cultural center.

Police Chief Francis Finn retired after 24 years service with the Quincy Police Department. Capt. Paul Nestor was named acting chief.

Upset by the pending layoffs of 31 teachers, 300 parents, students and education advocates rallied in protest outside City Hall.

A suspicious three-alarm fire caused an estimated $500,000 damage at the Islamic Center in Quincy Point.

Ellen Zane was named director of Quincy Hospital.

Dr. Cecil Paul, a Quincy resident, was installed as the 10th president of Eastern Nazarene College.

The Quincy Sun ceased operation of its cable television news channel after an eight-year, 24-hour-a-day run.

FRANCIS FINN (left) retired as Quincy Police chief after 24 years service in 1990 and was succeeded by Lt. Francis Mullen (right), a 32-year veteran of the department.

The city launched an expanded recycling program.

Fr. Joseph Downey retired after 20 years as pastor of St. Joseph's Church to take another assignment.

Quincy Hospital celebrated its 100th anniversary.

Lt. Francis E. Mullen, a 33-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department, was appointed its 13th chief by Mayor James Sheets.

Fire Chief Paul

O'Connell, saying he would rather fight fires than push paper, returned to his former rank as deputy fire chief. Deputy Thomas Gorman was named acting chief.

Tara Donovan, 17, was crowned Miss Quincy Bay.

Deaths included Helen E. Hannon, 86, mother of former mayor Walter Hannon; Robert W. Krovitz, a co-founder of Quincy Junior College; and Remo DeNicola, 69, co-owner of South Shore Television and active in the Quincy business community.

Mayor James Sheets, in his mid-term address, pledged to avoid layoffs despite what he predicted would be a grim fiscal year. He told the city's 21 unions not to expect pay raises "because the money is simply not there."

A three-alarm blaze on Mears Ave., Houghs Neck, took the lives of Regiann Wall, 2, her brother Lawrence Wall, 4, and their aunt, Margarita Cortez, 25. With the help of many volunteers, the home was rebuilt.

Frank Anselmo resigned from the School Committee because of a physical disability. He then announced he had recovered and wished to return to the board. But a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee elected former School Committee-woman Margaret Nigro to fill out his term.

Some 100 city officials and residents attended a support rally outside City Hall for U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

School Supt. Robert Ricci announced he would retire by the end of the year.

Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke retired after 32 years of service. City Clerk John Gillis named, and the City Council confirmed, Joseph Shea as the new assistant.

Former Mayor Francis McCauley was appointed executive director of the State Retirement Board.

Mayor James Sheets launched a campaign to bring the Quincy-built USS Lexington back home as a tourist attraction.

Marion Fantucchio was named chairman of the Board of Assessors.

Some 2,500 residents

signed and sent a pro-God petition to Mayor Sheets, also chairman of the School Committee, urging the School Committee to reverse its decision on banning prayer at the high school graduations. The School Committee would not waver.

A quarterly tax billing policy was approved by the City Council on a 7-2 vote and mixed emotions.

State Rep. Robert Cerasoli resigned to become the state's inspector general.

The Miss Quincy Bay Pageant was discontinued by the sponsoring Quincy Center Business and Professional Association because of rising costs and other reasons.

Quincy-born actress Lee Remick, daughter of the late Remick's store owner Frank Remick, died after a two-year battle against kidney and lung cancer.

FOLLOWING IN HIS father's footsteps, Thomas F. Gorman Jr. was named fire chief in 1991. His father, Thomas F. Gorman Sr., was fire chief for many years.

An area of the closed Fore River shipyard was re-opened for repair work on the freighter USNS Wright.

Hurricane Bob forced the evacuation of about 50 residents and left hundreds without power.

Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman Jr., a 28-year veteran of the department, was appointed permanent chief by Mayor James Sheets.

Mayor Sheets was unopposed for a second term. Bruce Ayers unseated Ward 6 Councillor

THE MISS QUINCY pageant, a longtime popular summer event was discontinued in 1991. Here, Mary Pickering, 16, Miss Quincy Bay of 1976, gets a congratulatory hug from her mother, Mrs. Mary Pickering, who as Mary Joyce was Miss Quincy of 1957.

Thomas Nutley.

A nameless northeast storm pounded the area, flooding streets and forcing the evacuation of 61 residents.

Ronald Mariano was elected state representative in the Third Norfolk District, succeeding Robert Cerasoli.

Ron Adams, a teacher at Broad Meadows Middle School, was named Massachusetts Department of Education Teacher of the Year.

Eugene Creedon was appointed school superintendent by the School Committee.

Mayor Sheets unveiled his Quincy Plan, a blueprint for the revitalization of downtown Quincy. Main features included his support for an Old Colony commuter railroad station in Quincy Center and an east-west crossway connector linking Rte. 3A with the Burgin Parkway.

Deaths included: Former Deputy Fire Chief Joseph E. Walsh, 91; Leo Antonelli, 69, retired Quincy Police detective; Rev. Daniel A. O'Leary of Most Blessed Sacrament Church; Mary P. Sheets, 78, mother of Mayor Sheets; Charles N. Ross, 85, assistant Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds and son of the late Mayor Charles Ross; William A.D. Wise Sr., poet, painter and inventor.

Happy 200th, Quincy!

Mayor Sheets began his second term with the warning that the tough economic times apparently will continue.

Rev. William McCarthy, Quincy's "Father Bill," celebrated his 40th year as a priest with a Mass and party at St. John's Church.

The Navy sank the city's quest for the USS Lexington, awarding the carrier to Corpus Christi, Texas. Sheets vowed there would be a maritime museum here.

Congressman Brian Donnelly announced he would not seek reelection after 14 years in Washington. He cited family reasons.

Quincy, once the north precinct of Braintree, celebrated its 200th anniversary as an independent town. Officials, attired in costumes of that era, portrayed their counterparts in a festive ceremony at City Hall.

Mary Collins, citing health reasons, resigned from the School Committee after 15 years on the board. Retired teacher Margaret "Peggy" King, runner-up in the fall selection succeeded her.

An Early Childhood Center in South Quincy and an addition to the Bernazzani School in West Quincy were proposed to ease classroom overcrowding.

The School Committee unanimously elected Eugene Creedon school superintendent.

Quincy Athletics Director Martin Finnegan retired after 42 years in the school system.

The 11th Congressional District was eliminated and Quincy was placed in the 10th District represented by Congressman Gerry Studds.

Some 1,000 defied a public access ban on Long Island to watch the Tall Ships Parade of Sail.

A home-rule petition creating Quincy 2000, a public-private partnership, was signed into law by Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci.

William F. "Billy" Degan of North Quincy, a U.S. marshal, was shot and killed outside a fugitive's heavily-fortified cabin on a remote Idaho mountainside.

State Sen. Paul Harold lost the Democratic nomination for Congress in the new 10th District to incumbent Gerry Studds.

City Clerk John Gillis retired after 33 years of service. The City Council elected Joseph Shea, his assistant, to succeed him. Gillis was elected County Commissioner.

Gerry Studds was re-elected Congressman and Michael Bellotti, son of former Atty. Gen. Frank Bellotti, was elected state representative. The city was carried by Presidential candidates Bill Clinton and Al Gore.

North Quincy High School's football players dedicated their season to Tommy Gilmartin, their ballboy who had died earlier after a battle with cancer. The team was undefeated with 10 wins during the regular season, including a 20-0 victory over rival Quincy High on Thanksgiving Day and topped it off defeating Arlington, 14-9, in the Division 1A Super Bowl.

The NQHS girls volleyball team repeated as Division 1 champions.

Deaths included: Rev. Cecil Paul, 57, president of Eastern Nazarene College; Msgr. John Twiss, 93, former pastor of St. Mary's Church; Jim Nance, former New England Patriots fullback who was living in Quincy; Baron Hugo, 88, legendary big band leader; Sybil J. Mattson, 65, who remained active despite being stricken with polio in 1955; and Hugo P. Fabrizio, 71, former Quincy assessor and owner of Flip's Oil Service.

1993 Quincy Comes To Aid Of Quincy, Ill.

The city is "economically sound," Mayor James Sheets assured residents in his mid-term address. He cited as goals: expansion of the police and fire departments, development of the downtown retail district, creation of a new governance structure for Quincy College and increased tourism.

Charles D'Aprix was appointed executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private partnership.

A number of residents attended a City Council meeting to protest a 700-foot communications tower near Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy. Councilors also voiced opposition.

Mayor Sheets' recommendations for a proposed retail development project in the Hancock Parking Lot included demolition of abutting buildings.

Ward 1 Councilor

Peter Kolson suggested the city withhold payment of its MWRA sewer assessment in protest of skyrocketing MWRA rates.

The City Council approved a $3 million-plus bond issue for an Early Childhood Center on the site of the former Lincoln School in South Quincy and a four-classroom addition to the Bernazzani School in West Quincy.

Former Mayor and City Councilor Joseph LaRaia was reappointed to the City Council to fill the term of Patricia Toland who resigned to seek the assistant city clerk post.

The stormy winter would cost the city over $500,000 for snow and ice removal, officials estimated. One storm in March alone cost approximately $100,000.

Twenty-three of the city's 30 voting precincts were realigned in a state-approved redistricting.

City Councilor Timothy Cahill decided not to challenge Mayor Sheets in the fall election.

United First Parish Church was added to the Adams National Historic Site by the National Park Service.

Patricia Toland was elected assistant city clerk by the City Council.

Liquor stores and bars were allowed to open on Good Friday for the first time in many years after the License Board determined it would be illegal to continue the restriction.

Judge Charles R. Black was appointed presiding justice of Quincy District Court.

The Adams Historic Site opened a Visitors Center at Presidents Place in Quincy Center.

Library Director Warren Watson proposed a 35,000-square-foot addition to the main Thomas Crane Library. Watson soon after announced his plans to retire and Mayor Sheets appointed Ann McLaughlin to succeed him.

The city filed a lawsuit against the MWRA because of its water and sewer rates.

Census figures indicated minorities comprised 14 percent of the city's population.

Quincy native and former Ward 5 Councilor Warren Powers was sworn-in as associate justice of Quincy District Court.

Fire caused $325,000 damage to Eddie's Diner, longtime popular eating landmark.

Teachers agreed to a new contract calling for a four percent pay raise.

City officials led by Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson held a "Tea Party" patterned after the Boston Tea Party to protest MWRA sewer and water rates.

Quincy raised over $21,000 and 280,000 pounds of food and supplies for its sister city in Quincy, Ill., as the Midwest was being devastated by flooding.

Over 2,700 engraved bricks were sold for a "Walk of Names" to be constructed in front of City Hall.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon fired Quincy College President Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, saying he had the authority under the new State Education Act. Johnson said he would appeal the decision to the state Department of Education.

Deaths included: Rev. Bruce B. Noyes, 75, who served at St. Chrysostom's Church; former City Councilor Carl W. Anderson, 89; Margaret O'Malley, 71, former Quincy College teacher and advocate for the retarded; Patrick M. Gullins, 22, a shooting victim; Rev. Joseph T. Greer, 60, former associate pastor at St. Joseph's Church; William J. Papile, 80, former city councilor; Dawn E. Brown, 25, a shooting victim; Richard D. Allen, 72, former Patriot Ledger vice president; and Muriel McKenzie, 70, retired Patriot Ledger reporter.

Childhood Center Named For Mayor Della Chiesa

In his mid-term address, Mayor James Sheets said the city's finances had stabilized to the point where no raise in property taxes was needed. At the end of the year, he essentially kept his "no new taxes" pledge by proposing no increase in the city's business tax rate and only a one-cent increase in the residential rate.

The City Council passed Sheets's $11 million bond package for city improvements. The package included $5.1 million for school construction and renovations and $2.9 million for the city's parks and playgrounds.

Blockbuster Video opened a new location at the site of the former Colman's Sporting Goods store, which had been left vacant since 1993.

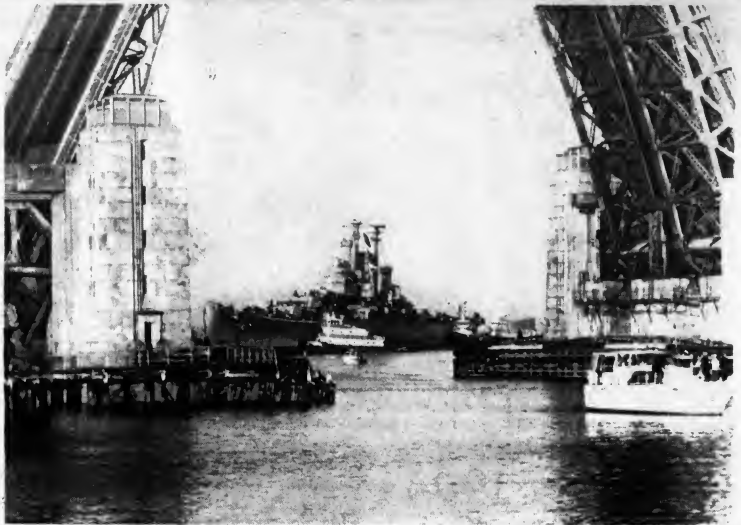

Wal-Mart, the national retail chain, was granted a permit by the City Council to build a new store in Quincy Point.

A new Board of Governors was established at Quincy College following the New England Association of Schools and Colleges' 1993 ruling that the college had outgrown its governance and risked losing its accreditation if such a board was not formed.

The 718-foot, Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Salem arrived at the Fore River shipyard to become the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

Quincy developer Peter O'Connell announced he was purchasing the Quincy Bay Inn in North Quincy for the purpose of turning it into a first-class hotel.

The search for a Quincy Center hotel continued. Officials from Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, said they were negotiating with a developer interested in building a downtown hotel.

USS SALEM is framed by the Fore River Bridge upon its arrival at the Quincy shipyard in October, 1994. The

Regency Holdings Inc., a Greek shipbuilding firm, agreed to a long-term lease to build cruise ships at the shipyard.

Sheets signed a lease to begin converting the former West Quincy landfill into a golf course/recreation area.

The city was thrown into the national spotlight by the burial of the remains of a Civil War soldier in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

A new Early Childhood Center in South Quincy was named after former Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, a new statue honoring the city's granite workers was unveiled in West Quincy, and Quincy Point named a park after longtime Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro.

Procter & Gamble announced plans to close its Quincy Point soap plant, and Quincy Savings Bank announced it was ending 150 years of independence because of a takeover by Citizens Bank. Pneumatic Scale announced plans to leave its longtime Quincy site, and Stop & Shop was granted a permit to build a supermarket there.

The landmark Kent's Carpet Outlet was destroyed by fire.

Sean Barry was welcomed to the School Committee after committee and City Council members named him to the seat following his 1993 election deadlock with Christine Cedrone.

Cemetery Department Executive Director Raymond Cattaneo retired and was replaced by Thomas Koch, Sheets's executive secretary. Purchasing Agent Michael McFarland replaced Koch. Alfred Grazioso, former owner of Grazioso's Deli Shoppe in Squantum, replaced

McFarland.

One of Quincy's favorite daughters, Assistant City Clerk Patricia "Pat" Toland, died of cancer at 62. She also had served on the City Council and School Committee.

Other deaths included Joseph R. Harold Sr., 77, father of former state Sen. Paul Harold and DAV state adjutant officer for 40 years; Nora Gillis, 94, mother of former City Clerk John Gillis; Muriel Lyon Woelfel, 83, The Quincy Sun's first typesetter; and Ferdinand "Pete" DeNicola, 77, co-owner of South Shore Television and musician.

Mayor James Sheets announced that because of a $5.7 million surplus at the end of Fiscal Year 1995, the city would be able to not raise property taxes for the second consecutive year. Not only did the commercial rate remain the same, the residential rate dropped four cents.

It was the first time in two decades the tax rate did not increase for two consecutive years.

The popular Sheets was challenged by 78-year-old Roger Lyons, a retired contractor, in the city's municipal election. The mayor was re-elected with 80 percent of the vote.

Five new city councilors were elected, the largest turnover on the council in 22 years. They were: Daniel Raymondi (Ward 2), Patrick McDermott (Ward 3), Michael D'Amico (Ward 4), Stephen Durkin

Five New Faces In City Council

(Ward 5) and Paul Harold (at-large). Two new faces joined the School Committee: former Mayor Francis McCauley and Christine Cedrone.

Raymondi and Durkin succeeded Ted DeCristofaro and Charles Phelan, who both opted not to seek re-election. McDermott replaced Larry Chretien, who failed in his bid for the at-large seat won by Harold. D'Amico, 20, defeated Thomas Fabrizio to become the city's youngest councillor ever.

McCauley won a two-year seat vacated by Sean Barry, who with Cedrone won the two open four-year seats on the committee.

Sheets appointed at-large Councillor and former Mayor Joseph LaRaia to the Quincy Board of Assessors. Charles McIntyre, 1993 council runner-up, filled the seat for two months before Harold claimed it in November (McIntyre did not campaign to keep the seat).

Veteran Congressman Gerry Studds announced he would not seek re-election in 1996.

City Hall changes: Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger resigned and was replaced by longtime Quincy Savings Bank official James Chicchino. Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon returned to the city one month after taking a new job in Boston.

Quincy High School Director of Drop-Out Prevention Linda Wilson was named interim president of Quincy College, but said later in the year she would not seek renewal of her one-year contract.

Two beloved Quincy figures retired: Fr. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John the Baptist (Cont'd on page 35)

Delahunt First Congressman From Quincy Since John Q. Adams

An estimated 10,000 people came to see First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton as the featured speaker at a Democratic rally in October at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

Mayor James Sheets, during his fourth inaugural address, listed a new elementary school in Quincy Point as one of the city's top priorities. Later in the year, the City Council approved the mayor's $13 million bond package for the project.

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt succeeded the retiring Gerry Studts to become the first Congressman from Quincy since John Quincy Adams. On the way to taking the seat, Delahunt survived a recount in the September Democratic primary that was ultimately decided by a state court judge and easily defeated his Republican opponent in November.

Aesthetic and structural improvements were completed in the Wollaston and North Quincy business districts.

The city's fire and police departments both had their strength bolstered. Fifteen new firefighters were sworn-in, while the police received five new officers, a mounted patrol unit, and a City Council appropriation of $357,500 for new cruisers.

Dr. Jeremiah Ryan was appointed president of Quincy College.

Wild weather was a story throughout the year. The Blizzard of '96, probably the worst storm since the infamous Blizzard of '78, dumped 20 inches of snow in January during the region's snowiest winter on record. Hurricane Edouard blew through the area in September. And an unnamed nor'easter poured 8 1/4 inches of rain in October, flooding basements throughout the city.

Deaths included: Fr. Cornelius Heery, 72, longtime pastor of Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy; Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, 58; longtime Quincy historian Hobart Holly, 88; Dr. John T. Dalton, 77, retired chief of ophthalmology at Quincy Hospital; Robert J. 1997 Old Colony Railroad Returns To Quincy

The City Council approved a $7.2 million bond issue to cover most of the cost of a planned Thomas Crane Public Library addition. Officials said state and private monies would pay for the rest.

A "topping off" ceremony was held for the new Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point, named after the late Norfolk County sheriff.

The City Council gave the green light to the city's plan to convert Squantum Gardens into a site for senior housing. After details were worked out with the Navy, then owner of the property, the city began moving to fill the units there by the end of the year.

The long-awaited Old Colony Railroad opened to the public, with one of the stops located in Quincy Center adjacent to the MBTA station.

The city unveiled plans for a $63.5 million in repairs to the city's water pipes.

CAPT. THOMAS FRANE was selected by Mayor James Sheets to succeed Francis Mullen as the city's police chief in 1997. Frane immediately announced plans to expand the city's community policing program.

Radio station WJDA celebrated its 50th anniversary.

A plan for a long-term, $73.1 million plan for the Quincy Public Schools—which called for, among other things, a new Quincy High School—was unveiled by city officials. The City Council approved a $15.2 million bond issue for the first phase a month later.

The U.S. Maritime Administration approved $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the modernization of the Fore River shipyard.

Councillor Michael Cheney, for personal reasons, did not seek reelection. Former Mayor Francis McCauley was elected to Cheney's City Council seat. Former Mayoral Executive Secretary Michael McFarland was elected to the open School Committee seat vacated by McCauley.

Hellos and Goodbyes: Those who stepped out of the city's spotlight included Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer, Asst. School Supt. Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Affirmative Action Officer Janet Ellis, Data Processing Director Robert Brennan, and Tree Warden Frank McLaughlin (all retired) as well as U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Executive Director William MacMullen and Quincy Hospital Director DiPisa (who both resigned).

Jeffrey Doran of Hale Hospital in Haverhill replaced Doran. Former Ward 5 Councillor

Charles Phelan replaced Brennan. Jonathan Yip replaced Ellis. Walter White of Milton was sworn-in as the city's first inspection services director.

The April Fool's Day Blizzard caught everyone by surprise, dumping 20 inches of snow in the city.

Two great tragedies saddened the city. Broad Meadows Middle School teacher Robert Garner, 57, and student Jonathan Barrieau, 16, were killed in an automobile accident. Jason Moriarty, 28, was killed in a kayaking accident.

Other deaths included Muriel J. Goudey, 92, longtime Quincy Public Schools teacher; Gerald S. Gherardi, 85, retired Quincy Public Schools guidance counselor and 1990 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year;" Rev. Gerard V. Dever, 53, of St. Ann's Parish in Wollaston; Ruth J. Ab-biatti, 93, longtime Quincy school teacher and principal who retired in 1968; Richard E. Donovan, 69, former major league baseball pitcher and investment executive; L. Paul Marini, 89, attorney, former school committee member and chairman, Thomas Crane Library Board; Robert Pruitt, 83, former Quincy school superintendent; and Dr. Morgan Sargent, 87, retired Quincy Hospital chief of staff and civic leader.

Site Purchased For New Quincy High School

Mayor James Sheets's fifth inaugural address focused mainly on the city's recent successes, but also touched upon the needs for a downtown hotel and improvements at Quincy Hospital.

Robert Keuther Jr., director of the city's GOALS program--an alternate school program--succeeded retiring Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Hill. Later in the year, long-time North Quincy High Assistant Principal Eileen Feeney succeeded Peter Chrosom as principal--the first woman high school principal in city history.

Klaara Riihimaki, 93, died in a fire in her West Quincy home.

Plans were announced for a "Little Fenway Park" to be built in West Quincy.

The City Council granted air rights over the North Quincy MBTA parking lot to allow Quincy developer Mark Dickinson to build a $39 million office building and the T to build a 5-story parking garage.

City officials unveiled a plan to have all classrooms in the Quincy Public Schools equipped with cable television and Internet-linked computers by September.

The city purchased, for $3.5 million, the Quincy Point parcel that eventually will be the home of the new Quincy High School.

The City Council voted to raise the city's cab rates for the first time in eight years.

John "Jack" Mather of Halifax, a Brockton Housing Authority official, was hired as the Quincy Housing Authority's new executive director. He replaced the retired John "Jake" Comer.

Kevin Gildea, a Quincy native, was indicted for the 1996 theft of four historic books from the Adams National Historic Site.

Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter, celebrated its 10th anniversary. Also, a new Veterans House for homeless veterans opened.

Twenty-two new police officers were sworn-in, the largest jump in manpower for the Quincy Police Department in 27 years.

Ground was broken for a $15 million, 65,000-square-foot addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

Robert Johnston, 64, headmaster of the Woodward School, died of Lou Gehrig's disease and was succeeded by Thomas Wesner of the Renaissance School in Boston.

The draining of city-owned Swingle's Quarry and the Metropolitan District Commission-owned Granite Rail Quarry both got underway.

Quincy High School

senior Kevin Moore, quarterback of the school's football team, was left in a coma following a car accident.

Two workers were killed after falling nearly 80 feet when the scaffolding they were working on collapsed at 77 Adams Place, Quincy Center.

Struck by cars and killed in separate accidents in August were Maureen Lynch, 68, a homemaker; and Carol Labadie, 60, a Raytheon employee and sister of Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate and former Mayor Arthur Tobin.

'My First Job Ever'

Meteorologist Recalls His Days As A Sun Carrier

By MICHAEL WHALEN

He used to bring The Sun to your doorstep. Now, he tells you when the sun will shine.

Ed Carroll, WBZ-TV (Channel 4) meteorologist, is probably one of the most famous people who can claim to be a former Quincy Sun news carrier.

Carroll, 35, grew up in North Quincy and is a 1982 graduate of North Quincy High School. He went on to receive his bachelor of science degree in meteorology from Plymouth State College in New Hampshire and has been with Channel 4 for five years.

He says he remembers his newspaper route, which included stops on Billings Road, Hollis Avenue and other streets in his old neighborhood, with fondness.

ED CARROLL

"I was probably in sixth or seventh grade, somewhere around there," said Carroll. "At the time, the paper was only about 10 years old. I'm almost positive it was my first job ever."

"At Christmas, I'd come home with about $15 in my pocket, which was huge. It was a lot of fun."

Carroll, who now lives in Wayland with his wife Amy and 4-month-old son Jack, continues to visit Quincy regularly. Although his father Lloyd, another North Quincy High graduate, is deceased, his mother Helen still lives on Hollis Avenue.

"I see my mom once, twice a week," he said. "The whole family goes over there a lot."

Carroll also hopes to be at the 1999 Thanksgiving Day football game between North Quincy High and rival Quincy High School. He will be unable to attend this year's contest because he and his family will be out of state.

With one final comment regarding his "first job," he had this message for his former "boss," Publisher Henry Bosworth and the rest of the staff at The Quincy Sun:

"Tell everybody I said congratulations on your 30th anniversary!"

Helen Murphy Born Same Day As 1st Issue Mayor's Assistant, Sun Share Special Milestone

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Helen Murphy, assistant to Mayor James Sheets, shares something special in common with The Quincy Sun.

Her birthday.

Murphy was born on Sept. 26, 1968, the day the first issue of the newspaper was published.

"That's kind of cool, don't you think?" she said with a grin during a recent interview in her City Hall office.

Murphy, a 1986 graduate of North Quincy High School, attended Quincy Junior College and the University of Massachusetts in Boston before graduating from Suffolk University. She worked for Quincy Atty. George Burke before joining Sheets' staff after he first took office in 1990.

In a sense, it's fitting that Murphy was born on that fall day in 1968, since she literally has grown up with the paper.

"Absolutely, I really did," she says. "My parents always got it, since they wanted to keep up to date with what was going on. There was usually a copy or two kicking around North Quincy High. George (Burke) always had it in his office, and we always have it here at the mayor's office.

"It's followed me, as I've followed it. It's part of my life."

While one might assume that Murphy, now a resident of South Quincy, is happier about the newspaper turning 30 than her own recent milestone, she says that's not the case.

"Actually, I'm looking forward to my 30s," she said. "It's an exciting time, and I'm enjoying my life. It's funny how time flies, but I'm looking forward to 30 more. And The Sun can grow old with me."

What Was Happening Elsewhere Back In 1968

The year 1968 was an eventful one on the national and international scenes and marked by tragedy and controversy.

It was a year that will forever stand out in American history.

Here are some of the highlights looking back 30 years:

January

•The American intelligence ship USS Pueblo was seized by North Korea.

•The Viet Cong launched the Tet offensive as the Vietnam War escalated and the controversy over it continued to flare.

March

•Eugene McCarthy won the New Hampshire Democratic Party Presidential primary with 42 percent of the vote.

the announcement he would not run again: "I shall not seek, and I will not accept the nomination of my party."

April

•Martin Luther King, Jr. was assassinated, gunned down on a Memphis motel balcony.

•Robert Kennedy was assassinated in the pantry of a Los Angeles hotel after winning the California Democratic Presidential primary.

•The Poor People's March was held in Washington, D.C.

July

•Desecrating the U.S. flag became a federal offense.

August

October

•The summer Olympic games were held in Mexico City.

•Jacqueline Kennedy married Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

November

•Richard Nixon was elected President over Hubert Humphrey with a popular vote of 31,785,480 to 31,275,168 and 301 electoral votes to 191.

December

•North Korea freed the crew of the captured Pueblo.
•Apollo 8 orbited the moon.

Delahunt Wins Second Term • 'Yes' On The Questions

It's • Cellucci • Bellotti • Keating

CITY COUNCIL ALLIES were on different sides of the race for Norfolk County district attorney on Tuesday. Councillor Paul Harold held a sign for fellow Democrat Sen. Bill Keating while McCauley, a Republican, did the same for incumbent Jeffrey Locke.

Bellotti, Keating Credit Supporters For Victories

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Michael Bellotti and Bill Keating both said their victories in Tuesday's election were due to loyal supporters and well-organized campaigns based on strong plans for the future.

Bellotti, the Quincy Dem. at who currently serves as state representative in the First Norfolk District, easily defeated Republican incumbent Jack Flood to become Norfolk County sheriff while Keating, Sharon's Democratic senator bested Jeffrey Locke, another incumbent Republican to become the county's district attorney.

Bellotti addressed supporters at a packed Pat Flanagan's in Quincy Center to announce his victory.

"It's official," he said. "You did it, all of you. Give yourselves a hand. To knock off a sitting Republican sheriff, you can only do that one way: hard work."

Bellotti credited his victory to a "grassroots effort," thanking his family, corrections officers, union members and others who backed his campaign. He noted that he carried communities such as Plainville, Millis and others that a Democrat might not usually expect to win.

"Three weeks ago, we took a poll that said the race was a dead heat," he said.

"But once we began to talk about the issues, we pulled ahead."

Of his father, former Attorney General Francis Bellotti who was in attendance, he said, "There was a lot of talk that this was decided a year and a half ago. There was a lot of talk about my name, about my father. I'll tell you: I was very proud to win with that name."

"Now we're going to do what's right. We're going to bring that office into the 21st century as a tool to fight crime."

Reached by telephone, Keating said Locke con-

Quincy played a key role Tuesday in Republican A. Paul Cellucci's gubernatorial victory and Democrats Michael Bellotti and William Keating reclaiming the sheriff's and district attorney's offices.

Cellucci, who made several campaign visits to Quincy and appearances at official functions with Democratic Mayor James Sheets, carried this longtime Democratic stronghold. Sheets did not endorse either gubernatorial candidate.

Cellucci and lieutenant governor running mate Jane Swift of North Adams polled 14,802 votes or 51.93 percent here to 13,110 or 46 percent for the Democratic team of Scott Harshbarger and Warren Tolman.

Harshbarger, who had also made a number of campaign rounds here, was counting on a traditional Democratic vote here but did not get what he needed.

Bellotti took the sheriff's badge from Republican incumbent Jack Flood of Canton. Flood, a former Democrat, was appointed by then Gov. William Weld following the death of Clifford H. Marshall, Quincy Democrat, in 1996.

Bellotti racked up 19,082 votes or 67.28 percent in his hometown. Flood had 7,986 for 28.16 percent. Lawrence C. Mackin, Braintree Independent, had 1,285 or 4.53 percent.

Keating, a state senator from Sharon with 22 years experience in the Legislature, had a Quincy vote of 14,958 for 53.65 percent to Jeffrey Locke's 12,907 for 46.29 percent.

Locke, who campaigned as the "experienced prosecutor," was appointed district attorney by Weld in January, 1997 when William Delahunt left the office after being elected Congressman.

Only 56 percent of Quincy's 51,968 registered voters went to the polls.

Congressman William D. Delahunt, Quincy Democrat, breezed to a second term in the 10th District, with 71.29 percent of the vote to defeat his Republican challenger Eric V. Bleicken of Yarmouth. In Quincy, Delahunt racked up 22,420 votes for 80.75 percent to Bleicken's 5,319 and 19.16 percent.

Four Quincy Democrats were winners before the polls even opened.

State Senator Michael Morrissey and Reps. Stephen Tobin and Ronald Mariano were unopposed for re-election.

And, Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers was elected without opposition to the First Norfolk District seat Bellotti vacated to run for sheriff. Ayers will finish out his council term.

Morrissey was the top vote-getter in Quincy with 22,625, a slim 205 more

Kids' Vote Exceptions: Duffy For Auditor, 'No' On 2

Local school students mirrored their adult counterparts at the polls Tuesday with two exceptions: state auditor and Question 2 on campaign finance reform.

Participants in Quincy's Kids Vote program preferred Republican Michael Duffy to incumbent state Auditor Joseph DeNucci by a 40-vote margin. Duffy polled 1,350 to DeNucci's

1,310.

They also narrowly defeated Question 2 with 1,513 voting "no" and 1,321 voting "yes."

Adult voters approved Question 2 in Quincy, with 15,713 "yes" votes to 19,201 "no" votes.

"They must have a different view point than the adults on campaign finance, or maybe (the wording of the question) was too complicated for them," said Harold Crowley, project coordinator for Quincy Kids' Vote program.

Some 3,698 students in kindergarten through grade 12 voted Tuesday, or 36.7 percent of the 10,084 who are registered.

"The turnout is about what we expected," Crowley said.

Voters Back Ballot Questions

Quincy voters overwhelmingly backed the four ballot questions in Tuesday's election which were approved state-wide.

The questions and how Quincy voted:

Question 1: Shall the compensation of the state legislators be tied to the state median household income?

No: 15,713

Question 2: Shall the state increase its participation in public campaign financing?

No: 10,201

Question 3: Shall the state reduce the state tax rate for interest & dividend income?

Yes: 20,999

No: 4,748

Question 4: Shall the state confirm recent changes deregulating the electric industry?

Yes: 18,678

No: 8,082

Question 5: Voters in the Second Norfolk District in Quincy also supported a non-binding referendum to create a universal, comprehensive, affordable health care system.

Yes: 7,803

No: 2,243

Charles Sweeny Speaker

Veterans' Day Parade, Ceremonies Nov. 11

The Quincy Veterans Council Veterans' Day Parade and ceremonies will be held Wednesday, Nov. 11.

The parade will start at 10:30 a.m. and proceed from School St. to Hancock St. to the Adams Academy where the Veterans' Day ceremonies will be observed.

Guest speaker will be Charles Sweeny, a combat veteran of World War II and who served 22 years as a member of the Quincy School Committee.

Sweeny served in the U.S. Army 26th Infantry Division and received the Purple Heart after being wounded in action. He later served 40 years with the U.S. Veterans Administration in Boston, retiring as division chief.

He served as president of Massachusetts Association of School Committees from 1968 to 1969, was a co-founder of Quincy Junior

Concourse Committee Meeting Nov. 19

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet Thursday, Nov. 19 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The agenda will include a discussion of traffic control, pedestrian safety, and directional flow of vehicles involving Mechanic Street, Revere Road, McGrath Highway, and other streets contiguous to Phase Two of the proposed roadway linking the east side of Hancock Street with McGrath Highway.

CAC members voiced concerns at a recent meeting and it was recommended that Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon attend the meeting on Nov. 19.

The CAC also is planning to hold an open public meeting to which all citizens in the Phase 2 area will be invited to express concerns and recommendations regarding traffic and safety.

All CAC members are encouraged to attend so that preliminary design plans for Phase Two can be approved.

According to engineers from Earth Tech, the engineering firm working on the project, final designs for Phase Two must be approved within the next few weeks.

Bids for Phase One of the project, which will link Burgin Parkway to Hancock Street, will be open in December.

Meetings are open to the public.

UNDER CONTROL

One of the most popular features in today's automobiles is traction control, which basically works in tandem with antilock-brake-system (ABS) technology. ABS can brake each wheel separately by virtue of an onboard computer's electronic control. Traction control uses the same sensors that sense when a wheel is slipping on a slippery surface. The traction control system then limits wheel spin by braking the wheel that is slipping. There are two types of systems in general use. Low-speed traction control uses the antilock brake solely for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles. HINT: Stability control uses the ABS computer as well as motion detectors to keep the automobile from yawing or sliding sideways.

For Help During Floods Sister City Quincy, Ill. Remembers Us Fondly

By HENRY BOSWORTH
Quincy, Ill. still remembers our Quincy with deep affection for the aid sent there from here during the great floods of 1993.

So reports Bill Morrill on his ambassador of goodwill trip across country to visit 12 other Quincys.

Morrill, who reached Quincy, Wash. this week, said that during his stop in Quincy, Ill. the city planner told him:

"We will forever be grateful to Quincy, Mass. for what they did for us during the floods in 1993."

That year, Mayor James Sheets and Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano drove a truck full of food, medical and emergency supplies and even water pumps to Quincy, Ill., Quincy's sister city. The collection drive of 200,000 pounds was coordinated by Veterans Services Director Henry Bradley.

Sheets and Quincy, Ill. Mayor Charles Scholz became close friends. Morrill was disappointed Scholz happened to be out of town when he stopped there.

"Quincy, Ill. is a nice city smaller than our city," says Morrill. "It has a couple of shopping malls and looks like Rte. 1 in Norwood."

"It is very clean with historic buildings and great architecture. It has a tourism department in the Quincy Civic Convention Center."

He found some similarities:

It has two high schools. One is Quincy High School with blue and white school colors but its teams are nicknamed the Blue Devils.

The other is Quincy Notre Dame High School with a school logo similar to that of our North Quincy High School's "The Yakoo" and the teams are nicknamed the Raiders.

Morrill, who set out Oct. 20 in his 1995 Ford club wagon with a hitch trailer to visit 12 Quincys listed by the U.S. Postal Service discovered a 13th: Quincy, Kan.

"I just happened to find it on the map," he says. "But it's nothing but a western ghost town. The population is just two people. The buildings are just shells like you would see in a ghost town movie."

He says it was a bustling town in the mid-'50s but whatever work was there dried up and the people left. He found Quincy, Mo. to be a "very small town with not much going on. People keep moving out and the town gets smaller and smaller."

"Quincy, Mich.," he reports, "is about the size of Braintree or Weymouth. They are big in soccer and girls' volleyball and are the state champs in both sports."

Morrill says Quincy,

Mich. actually was named after our Quincy, supposedly by a Dr. Alden, "after my hometown." He had no details on Alden.

Reporting from Quincy, Wash. Monday, Morrill said it is a town with a population of approximately 1,000 about an hour-and-a-half drive from Seattle.

"It's mainly farmland producing apples, pumpkins and potatoes," he says.

After Washington, he will head down to Quincy, Calif.

And then it will be down to Quincy, Fla. which will complete his trip. But en route, he's going to check on another possible Quincy in Texas.

He was told by a resident in Quincy, Ohio that he remembered seeing a Quincy in Texas some years ago.

Morrill says he will go through San Antonio anyway on his way to Florida and will stop there to check out the possible Quincy, Texas.

He thinks he can make it to Florida by the end of the week and be back home by Nov. 16--maybe a little sooner.

So far, he says, he has clocked some 7,000 miles

The Paper Boy

Sometimes I get lucky.

I've been trying to get a day off and my good friend, Rev. John Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church, came to my rescue as guest columnist.

John was one of our early Sun newscarriers as was Ed Carroll, WBZ-TV meteorologist who recalled his days as a Sun carrier in last week's 30th anniversary supplement.

John recalls his Sun carrying days as a 12-year-old with a dash of tongue-in-cheek humor. He entitles it "The Paper Boy."

By REV. JOHN SWANSON

I remember being very excited.

My first real job! I was going to be a Quincy Sun paper boy with my own paper route! And, I was going to make a fortune! Four cents per paper with tip times 100 papers. Well, that would be over $5 a week, big bucks for a 12-year-old in July of 1969. I was going to be a Quincy Sun paper boy and was going to corner the market in West Quincy.

Although I was excited about getting my papers and starting my route, the first day I was supposed to pick up my sample copies of The Sun and start building my route was the day of "Joe Brett's Baseball Day." As excited as I was to begin on the road to fame and fortune, the lure of Fenway Park was overpowering.

So, my sister picked up my papers as I went to Fenway, along with what seemed like the whole school body of the old Willard School. (On a side note, I remember the bus stopping at the old Mass Fields School in Wollaston and getting out to stretch in front of a big stone church. Twenty-three years later I would be the pastor of this church. Perhaps this was the first sign that I was not destined for the Quincy Sun Paper Boy Hall of Fame.)

On my return from Fenway, my papers sat on the table. Mr. Bosworth, my sister told me, was very impressed that I wanted 100 copies of The Sun, but thought that 50 would be a better number to start with.

The next day I began building my route. I went from Brewers Corner to the projects on West Street. The paper was met with eagerness and curiosity overall. I had little trouble in distributing my samples and, by the next week, had a reputable paper route.

It was as a Quincy Sun paper boy that I first found myself practicing the clergyman's art of knowing what was good for someone, even though they might not yet have come to that conclusion. One of my first customers was one of my teachers from the Willard School, Mr. Ezickson. At the time, he was active in a neighborhood center that I believe was called the Southwest Quincy Action Center, located right across the street from the old Brewers Corner Pharmacy. Because he was a community leader, and because I was delivering the paper to an agency, I decided Mr.

I also had one other errand insight, one that eventually led to my seeking another route to fame and fortune. I felt that, if the paper came out on Wednesday and Wednesday only, folks had a whole week to read it. As long as they had it before the next one came out, everything would be okay. And, even at the age of 12, being a sensitive soul and knowing how busy the folks at The Sun were, I felt I didn't need to share this insight with them.

Several complications developed from this budding pastoral insight that were unforeseen. First, not all of my customers wanted to read Thursday's paper on Monday. One of them was my mother, Louise. She began to develop a nasty habit of blocking the door and asking me if I had delivered my papers, and preaching to me about the virtue of promptness. (I believe every priest, minister and rabbi's preaching instructor is their mother!)

I was equally as late in collecting the money owed for the papers as I was in delivering them. This Bosworth guy kept calling me and he began to sound like my mother, only a little scarier.

As 1969 turned into 1970, I felt my career as a paper boy should end. Amazingly, my route still stood at over 20 customers and Lillian Calahan of Hopedale Street was happy to take over my route. I think she paid me $5 for it. Lillian did an outstanding job and soon had cornered the West Quincy market for The Quincy Sun.

[Rev. John Swanson is pastor of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston.]

Hearing On SE Expressway Plan For Quincy

By PAUL HAROLD

The state DPW announced plans for a public hearing at city hall for public comment on the proposed $2.7 million for the Quincy section of the proposed Southeast Expressway.

The roadway from Milton to Braintree would generally follow the abandoned New Haven Railroad's West Quincy branch, to a point beyond West St. where it would curve slightly north beyond Liberty St., to the Braintree line.

The DPW proposed access to the new roadway from Furnace Brook Parkway, but representatives from the Quincy Chamber of Commerce were pushing for additional access to Quincy Center from Quincy and Granite Sts.

SCHOOL CASE BEFORE MA SUPREME COURT

The city's use of accumulated $108,000 in interest monies to run the Woodward School was the subject of an appeal before the state's supreme court.

The Norfolk County Probate Court ruled that the city had illegally used $21,172 of the monies for operations of the school and the case was appealed by the city. Representing the city was Judge James Mulhall.

Dartmouth College, who would take the Woodward bequest if the school closed, challenged the city's use of funds.

MCINTOSH PUSHES FOR VOTING MACHINES

Mayor David McIntosh, following the slow returns in last week's election, called on the city to purchase or rent voting machines.

"We read in the morning newspaper the day following the election the election results from other cities and rarely is Quincy included," he said.

He noted that while some precincts reports results at 11 p.m., others reported at 3 to 4 a.m.

QUINCY-ISMS

Sears held a gala ribbon cutting ceremony at its Quincy Center store, adding 12 new departments, for a total of 42 departments. Busses brought shoppers from nine South Shore towns, including a certificate for a pair of nylons for opening day shoppers. Sears' representatives said the expanded store showed their confidence in the South Shore as a shopping center. . . The committee for North Quincy High School Class of 1938 included Roger Kent, William Phinney, Clifton Rogers, Mrs. Barbara Keith Johnson, Mrs. Nancy Beach Hall and Bicknell Hall. . . The movie portraying Ruth Gordon's youth in Wollaston, "The Actress" opened at the Art Theater. Jean Simmons played the young Ruth Gordon with Spencer Tracey as her father and Teresa Wright as her mother. . . Mrs. Angelo Constantino and Mrs. Russell D'Angelo were in charge of refreshments for the Coddington School's PTA meeting. . . Flavin and Flavin offered a four-room cape in Beechwood Knoll for $9,500. . . Mrs. Ernest Bizzozero was on the committee for the Quincy Women's Club's annual charity ball at the Neighborhood Club. . . Some 1,000 people attended the seventh annual Protestant Men's Communion service at the First Parish Church. Rev. Peter Corea of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church presided at the 7 a.m. service. After the service the group marched down Hancock St. to the Quincy Armory led by marshal Alfred Little, the Taleb Grotto band and the George Bryan Post color guard. . . James Kelley, president of the Montclair Men's Club announced that the club had its highest membership in history. . . The GOP Women's Club met at the home of Miss Jean Williams on Presidents Lane. . . Mrs. George Flavin was president of the Adams School PTA. . . North Quincy High School's Joe Crowley was on the sidelines with a concussion following a scrimmage with Thayer Academy. . . Russell's Diner on Adams St. offered a finger steak sandwich for 45 cents. . . Arden Schofield was the new organist and choir director at Christ Church. . . Dr. Charles Djerf, Quincy pediatrician, topped the ticket for school committee, among the 26 candidates. A "self-made" man, he worked his way through college with a number of jobs. One was looting a horn in the Sella-Fioto Circus. He traveled on season with Tom Mix, the famous movie star cowboy. . . Mrs. Alice Mitchell of Harriet St. was a new member of the School Committee. . .

Quincy Neighborhood Housing Celebrates Past Year's Successes

City government, local banks and Quincy residents recently came together to celebrate the accomplishments over the past year by Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services.

Normand Grenier, executive director of the agency, highlighted a number of projects completed this year, including the opening of a new, renovated 8-unit home for former homeless veterans.

QNHS also created six additional units of housing for survivors of domestic violence and initiated or completed over $300,000 in home repairs. In addition, the agency has begun construction of a 5-unit home for physically and mentally handicapped clients.

Since 1981, QNHS has been providing low-interest loans to Quincy homeowners for housing rehabilitation. More recently, the organization has worked in partnership with other Quincy non-profit agencies to provide affordable housing for special populations in the city.

Richard Peterson, board president from 1988 to 1998 and Joseph Finn, former executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, received special recognition at the event which was held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall.

City Council President Peter Kolson praised the organization for "meeting every challenge in creating and maintaining affordable housing for those who needed it." He congratulated Grenier and the organization for its success in the last year.

For more information about QNHS and its programs, call 770-2227.

John's Shrimp Scampi

Our daughter Nancy and her husband Jed were guests recently at a friends house and kept raving about John McCarthy's skillful cooking. It's a delicious shrimp scampi made with olive oil and garlic.

John's Shrimp Scampi
1 pound large shrimp, (shell on)
1/2 cup olive oil
1/4 cup butter or margarine
3 garlic cloves, chopped
salt and pepper to taste
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon zest
1/4 cup fresh parsley, chopped

pinch of red pepper flakes

Rinse the shrimp and set aside. Melt the butter and oil in a heavy skillet. Add the garlic and red pepper flakes and saute on low heat for about five minutes.

Raise the heat and add the shrimp tossing until they turn pink.

Remove pan from heat and add the salt and pepper, lemon juice, lemon zest, and fresh chopped parsley.

Heat for another minute or two and served immediately in bowls with the juices poured over the shrimp. Serve with crusty bread or over thin spaghetti or linguine.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF ACHILLES TENDINITIS

Flex your foot upward as far as it will go, then point it back down toward the floor. The Achilles tendon, which runs up the back of the calf starting at the heel, allows you to make that motion by stretching and contracting — if all is well. When something goes wrong with that tendon, however, such as the shortening that occurs in Achilles tendinitis, painful problems with mobility can be the result. There are two main reasons for Achilles tendinitis: gradual shortening due to the wearing of high-heel shoes, or shortening caused by the twisting of abnormal pronation (rolling inward of the foot when taking a step). In the case of high heels, physical therapy may be part of a treatment plan to restore the tendon. In the case of a pronation problem, pre-runs up the back of the calf correct the abnormal gait and allow the tendon to function normally.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

P.S. Achilles tendinitis has become more common as more people have become physically active. Careful stretching before exercise is essential!

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Children Top Priority At Kids Closet Shop

By LIAM FITZGERALD

What you'll discover when you enter the Kids Closet, besides the affordable children's clothes, is a pleasant, enjoyable shopping experience.

That's the goal that Debbie Markarian, the shop's sole proprietor, has strived for since opening her shop the beginning of October at 1251 Hancock St., Quincy Center, directly across from Presidents Place.

"I've always loved kids, and I wanted the business to have a very children-oriented feel to it," said Markarian, who offers clothes that fit all young children, from newborns to about age 12. "I think that's what customers look for, a cheery place, a nice environment to shop in. The name says it all; it's straightforward, so once you see it, you know it's for children."

Also attracting the customers are the low prices, which according to Markarian, are lower than retail department stores charge for the same name brands.

"You can buy a lot of nice items and it won't kill your pocket book," she said. "People who come in are surprised by the prices, because they've seen the same items for more in other stores."

"There's not another store in the general area quite like this, with the prices I have. Kids go through clothes so quickly, and parents don't want to spend a fortune on them."

The decor of the shop, with its painted sky blue ceiling dotted with white clouds, and numerous displays, has drawn rave reviews from Markarian's customers.

"I hired Marie Malloy, a Quincy artist from Rooms With a View, to paint the clouds and sky on the top of the walls and ceiling," she said. "I did the decorating, the displays and windows myself, and have gotten compliments about how nice the shop looks, which is great to hear."

Markarian has also constructed a play area for children, to keep them occupied and entertained while their parents shop, she said. The shop also has a dressing room for the children and offers free gift-wrapping with boxes included.

Currently, Kids Closet carries a small line of shoes, stuffed animals and accessories, and will soon add christening and First Communion items by special order. In addition, outfits for special occasions, including boys' suits and girls' holiday dresses, are now available under retail cost.

Although this is her first venture into owning a business, Markarian did extensive research into the field and the area, which she found to be the ideal locale.

DEBBIE MARKARIAN, sole proprietor of Kids Closet, 1251 Hancock St., Quincy Center, has received a warm welcome from the general public since her shop opened early last month. Located directly across from Presidents Place, Kids Closet sells children's clothes, from newborns through age 12, and a variety of accessories at an affordable cost.

"This is a good area for people looking for moderate prices and nice quality items," she said. "All types of people live here, and I'm very familiar with the Quincy area. It's a very up and coming area. I love the location; it has the feel of a little boutique, and it's a very friendly atmosphere."

"I've received a warm welcome from everyone. People are very excited that I'm here, because now they don't have to go to malls for affordable kids clothes. I've only been open a few weeks and I already have a couple of regulars. I also get a lot of foot traffic, especially from Presidents Place."

An Illinois native who moved to Massachusetts 15 years ago to attend college, Markarian always kept her dream of owning her own business in the back of her mind, waiting until the time was right.

Once she finished her schooling, which included an associate's degree (fashion merchandising), a bachelor's degree (marketing) and an MBA, she worked in retail for many years before taking a position in community relations marketing at a small health firm.

Next, she and her husband, Tom, who live in South Boston, became the proud parents of a baby girl, Sarah, now 17 months old. At the time of Sarah's birth, Markarian had a full-time job that didn't allow her much time to spend with her baby, so she decided to move in a different direction.

"This shop had been in the planning for several years, but I wanted to finish my degrees and then had a family," she said. "I told myself, 'I'm going to this, but not until I'm a little more settled. Now I'm settled, so the time was right."

"One of the best aspects is being able to bring my daughter to work with me and care for her there. I can spend a lot more time with her during the day than I could before I opened my own business."

During the shop's early stages, Markarian has the assistance of three employees who bring to the business years of experience in children's retail.

"They all have a lot of knowledge in the field and can answer any questions customers may have," she said.

What type of people are her customers?

"Actually, we have all kinds of people coming in," said Markarian, "including parents, grandparents, and those looking for shower and birthday gifts as well."

Although it's already open to the public, the official grand opening for Kids Closet will be held Tuesday, Nov. 10 at 11:30 a.m., with Mayor James Sheets and other city officials in attendance. For the week of the grand opening celebration, Markarian will offer special discounts, raffles and giveaways.

Kids Closet is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. The shop's phone number is (617) 376-0088.

Looking ahead, Markarian has high hopes for Kids Closet and plans to expand into other locations if the shop is a success.

"I'm having a great time so far, and I hope it does well," she said. "If that happens, maybe I'll open another store. I won't find that out for a couple of years, though. I may be starting small, but I'm thinking big."

Library Receives $50,000 Gift From Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

The Thomas Crane Public Library has received a $50,000 donation from Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co. for the library's 65,000-square-foot addition scheduled to be completed by late 1999 or early 2000.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin, in expressing her gratitude, said company representatives had expressed interest in assisting the project but she did not expect an amount quite so generous.

"I was really overwhelmed," she said.

McLaughlin said the money from Quincy Mutual, which specifically will benefit the library's reference department, has put the total amount of private donations for the project to over $500,000, halfway to the library's goal of $1 million.

Other recent contributions, she noted, include a $25,000 donation from State Street Bank and another of an amount she would not disclose from Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McElaney for a bench to be put in the library in memory of Patricia Toland, the late city councillor, school committee-woman and assistant city clerk.

Additional revenue sources for the project--which carries a price tag of over $15 million--include a $7.2 million bond issue and an additional $3.2 million appropriation from the City Council, a $3 million state grant, a $100,000 Massachusetts Historic Commission grant and $400,000 from Quincy Access Television, which will have a studio in the library.

Feed The Hungry Campaign '98 Launched With $1,000 Donations

Feed the Hungry Campaign '98 to benefit the Pantry Shelf was recently launched with a donation of $1,000 by each of the campaign's chairmen, Happy Wilkinson-Jacobs and Atty. Thomas F. Williams.

For 25 years, the Pantry Shelf, a food pantry, has provided nutritious, wholesome food as well as counseling to families and individuals in financial need in South Shore communities.

"I am excited about this campaign because it enables the community to come together in support of its most vulnerable residents. Our need for donations is urgent due to the demands of the holiday season," said Mary Ann Walsh, executive director of the Pantry Shelf.

Feed the Hungry Campaign '98 will celebrate its success at a special performance of the Norwell Company Theater's production of "A Christmas Carol" Thursday, Dec. 3. Anyone donating $100 or more is eligible to receive two tickets to the performance.

Sponsorship opportunities are available to individuals or companies who donate $1,000 or more. Major sponsors are eligible to receive four tickets to the event and will obtain recognition in all publicity supporting this campaign as well as a special insert in the Company Theater's program of "A Christmas Carol."

To make a donation to Feed the Hungry Campaign '98, send a check payable to: Feed the Hungry Campaign '98, c/o Pantry Shelf, 776 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02170.

For more information, call Mary Ann Walsh at the Pantry Shelf at (617) 773-6203.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE RAKING LEAVES

Once again the change of season is upon us; the summer vacation to New Hampshire or the Cape is just a memory, and we realize that soon enough we will be dealing with snow and ice. Autumn is, for many folks, the prettiest season of the year, but it is not without potential health risks to the back and spine. In my opinion, the two main culprits of the Fall season are the fallen leaves and the changing weather conditions.

It has been my experience that Fall's colder and occasionally damper weather can contribute to the aggravation of many back or neck problems, such as chronic sprains, strains or arthritic conditions. Secondly, the repetitive twisting and bending actions done by a person while raking leaves is a very common cause of lower back, mid back and/or shoulder problems.

If you are planning to clean up your yard and will be raking leaves, the following guidelines may be helpful:

- 1) Warm up prior to raking as you would do before exercising.
- 2) Switch sides when raking so that you are not always raking the leaves in the same direction.
- 3) Try to keep your back straight and, whenever possible, get down on your knees to rake under bushes or hedges, or when lifting leaves into a trash barrel.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Joehning, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

For Volunteer Community Service

Robert And Gloria Noble Honored With JWV 'Citizen Of Year Award'

Robert and Gloria Noble, who have long been doing things for others as Quincy's husband and wife volunteer and community activist team found themselves on the receiving end Sunday.

They were honored as the recipients of the 48th annual Quincy Jewish War Veterans Citizen of The Year Award.

And by Mayor James Sheets who proclaimed Sunday as "Bob and Gloria Noble Day."

The Nobles received the honors at a breakfast at the Beth Israel Synagogue in Quincy Point attended by state and city officials, representatives of veterans' organizations, past recipients of the award, family members and friends.

Their volunteer work with veterans, community events such as the Christmas Festival Parade, First Night, and the Marie Curry Walk, were cited at the breakfast.

Mayor Sheets said: "I have never been more proud in my life to proclaim any day as I am proclaiming Nov. 1, 1998 as Bob and Gloria Noble Day in Quincy and I extend to you on behalf of all the people the grateful appreciation and congratulations from your city."

"If we had to write the script for grandma, granddad, mom, dad of the year for this entire nation, we could not find a better and more deserving example than the two of you."

"We want to thank you for this inspiration that you are to the young and the old alike because you are the people who should be the center of our focus and our thoughts when it comes to this nation."

"They are two unsung heroes of this community and we couldn't have picked two better people to honor today," said State Sen. Michael Morrissey.

John "Jake" Comer, past national commander of the American Legion, commended the Nobles and said they "represent all the sound things" in the nation.

Henry "Hank" Bradley, director of Quincy Veterans Services, citing the Nobles dedication to the community said:

"It's that dedication that has turned a city such as Quincy into the showcase of the South Shore. It's a dynamic city. We have great leadership, but your leadership can only do so much.

"It has to come from within. And coming from within is through the dedication of people like the Nobles."

Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue, said: "Both of you—husband and wife—wear a coat of many colors like Joseph. If both of you look in the mirror, you'll see a beautiful couple. You are not artificial. Both of you are genuine."

Robert Noble, Jr., a teacher and coach at Quincy High School, said:

"In their understated ways, my parents have always given of themselves without making it obvious. One thing I knew I could always count on was my parents' support."

"They were simply there, always supportive. Never negative. Just simply there. I knew I could count on them. This was and is a great comfort to me and to my sisters."

"The biggest single quality I feel my parents have given all their children is a strong belief in commitment. To see something through to its conclusion. Never giving anything less than your best effort."

School Supt. Eugene Creedon, State Rep. Stephen Tobin, City Council President Peter Kolson, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Irving Isaacson, program chairman, also spoke in praise of the Nobles for their work in the community.

Tobin presented them with a House of Representatives commendation from him and Reps. Michael Bellotti and Ronald Mariano. Raymondi and Kolson presented them with a City Council commendation.

Robert Noble, receiving the award said: "I'm very appreciative, but there are a lot of others who do great work and aren't recognized. Hopefully, they will be."

"When you do volunteer work, it makes you a much better person," said Gloria Noble. "You don't do it for an award. You enjoy it and the people you work with."

Robert Noble, a prisoner of war in World War 11, is a past commander and present junior vice commander of the Department of Massachusetts American Ex-Prisoners of War. He is also a past commander of the South Eastern Massachusetts Chapter American Ex-Prisoner of War, a post now held by his wife. Noble is also a Quincy Sun photographer.

Gloria is a former member of the DOVE Board of Directors, the South Shore Women's Political Caucus and the Wollaston Mother's Club.

"We are thrilled and proud to have this honor come to the members of the Southeastern Chapter," said Past President Anna Krusha. "They're involved in civic, patriotic and religious endeavors and Quincy should be proud."

The Nobles, who live on South St. have been married 48 years and have four children, 10 grandchildren and a great granddaughter.

When you want action on a business loan, Paul Carey is the person you want to see.

When you need business credit, the last thing you need is the junior assistant to the associate application-taker.

You need action. Paul Carey — Commercial Lending Vice President at the Quincy Banking Center — has over 15 years experience in business lending. In and around Quincy. He can help local businesses with deposit services, lines of credit, term loans or commercial mortgages. He can design a plan that suits your needs and objectives.

In-depth knowledge and experience. Responsiveness to your needs. And action. Front-burner attention and the kind of decisive expediting only a senior decision-maker can provide.

RECYCLING WORKS FOR US! QUINCY RESIDENTS AND RECYCLING

By working together, the City of Quincy and its residents save thousands of tax dollars!!

HOW CAN YOU HELP?

1 RAKE YOUR LEAVES AND GRASS CLIPPINGS

2 BAG THEM

3 PUT THEM ON THE CURB WITH YOUR TRASH.

We recommend using paper leaf composting bags sold at most stores. They're big, easy to fill, recyclable and biodegradable. If you don't have the bags - use an open barrel or cardboard box. Bag only leaves, twigs, and grass clippings. No trash. No large branches.

REAL ESTATE

McCauley-Higgins, a sales associate, attended the "Conway College of Real Estate Knowledge," a three-week program that provides licensed agents with advanced instruction in the practical aspects of selling real estate.

She is a graduate of Northeastern University and lives in Braintree with her husband and four children.

owned real estate companies in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 35 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Olde New England Adds Two Quincy Condo Complexes

Two Quincy condominium associations have signed on to have a real estate professional manage day-to-day operations for their properties.

Quincy-based Olde New England Real Estate Management Co. President Kathleen Lavin announces that The Cranch School Condominiums and Granite Estates have inked contracts with her firm, thought to be one of the largest woman-owned condo management firms on the South Shore.

The 100-year-old renovated school building at 250

Whitwell St. consists of 17 units. Granite Estates at 500 Willard St., a 30-year-old brick building with underground parking and a pool, has 25 units.

This brings to seven the number of condo complexes in Quincy under contract to Olde New England, a five-year-old firm. Lavin also manages Adams Court in Dorchester's Neponset section. The total number of condo units currently under management contract is more than 225. In addition, her firm provides accounting and bookkeeping services for 300 condo units in Brookline. Three complexes managed by Lavin in Quincy are renovated school buildings.

Lavin says condo association trustees are constantly seeking new ways to control costs without sacrificing real estate value.

"They like the idea that an expert, on a daily basis, is helping the owners to protect and enhance the value of their investment," she said.

Lavin is an experienced asset manager with expertise in financial management and budgeting, vendor contract negotiation, long-term projections, and preventive and predictive maintenance.

QCAP Homebuyer's Workshop Nov. 14, 21

Quincy Community Action Programs, an approved MHFA first-time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop on Saturdays, Nov. 14 and 21.

The workshops will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at South Shore Savings Bank, 1530 Main St., Route 18, Weymouth.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the different mortgage options available through the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

The agenda will focus on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within a budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Cost is $36.

For more information and registration forms, call Deborah Mullay at 479-8181, ext. 172.

The workshop is being sponsored by the City of Quincy and the Department of Housing and Community Development.

College Leadership Team Reorganized

The leadership team at Quincy College recently was reorganized by Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, college president.

Ryan has been joined by three vice presidents as the executive staff of the college:

*Patricia Gales has been promoted to senior vice president for educational services and chief executive officer.

*Sean Barry has been promoted to vice president for institutional advancement and chief advancement officer.

*Barrie Young has been appointed interim vice president for business affairs and chief finance officer.

Gales will supervise distance learning, entrepreneurship and public service programs, the FAST Program, health and technology programs, learning assistance, liberal arts and science programs and the Plymouth campus.

Barry will supervise admissions, campus computing, continuous quality, corporate training, enrollment services, fundraising, marketing, non-credit training, recruitment and strategic planning.

Young will supervise the budget, business services, city liaison, contract negotiations, facilities, financial aid, legal services, personnel and security.

The moves effectively complete the reorganization of the management of the college first proposed by Ryan in June 1996.

North Right On Schedule Heading Into Postseason

Before the season began, the North Quincy High School girls' volleyball team set a goal to play its best volleyball in November, and it appears the Raiders are right on schedule.

North Quincy (16-5) wrapped up the regular season Monday with a convincing 15-6, 15-12 victory over a strong Medway squad, North's fifth consecutive shutout.

"Everything seems to be going according to plan," said North head coach Jim Rendle. "We played well against a very good Medway team and go into the tournament playing strong volleyball."

Pairings for the state tournament are to be released today (Thursday), with the opening matches scheduled for Friday. According to Rendle, North could play Friday or not until next Tuesday, depending on it seeing.

"Winning that 16th match was important, because it put us ahead of teams with 15 wins," he said. "We have a chance for a home match, but we'll likely be in the middle of the pack. It doesn't matter; we've played well on the road, so we're prepared for that, too."

In the victory over Medway, Rendle was pleased with the defensive efforts of senior co-captains Allison Haddad, Kim Hueth and Alexis Miranda, along with junior Caitlin Powers. Leading the offense were senior Angela Scott and juniors Tia Harris, Jessica Lorman, Meghan Ginty and Katie Jellison.

Last Thursday, North completed a season sweep of Quincy, 15-0, 15-11. Haddad collected four kills and seven service points and Powers added two kills in the home victory.

In the first game, the Raiders took advantage of a few Quincy mistakes and built a big lead. North's Harris scored the final point.

It appeared that the second game would be a repeat of the first as North jumped out to an 8-1 lead, led by the serving of Haddad. Suddenly, the momentum swung over to Quincy's side as senior Liz Ashworth reeled off six straight aces to cut the deficit to 8-7.

Quincy tied the game and went ahead, 10-8, but North kept its composure and scored seven of the next eight points to close out the match. Leading the charge for North Quincy were sophomore Amy Jellison, Lorman and Scott.

"We're playing really well," said Rendle. "Quincy got some hot serving to get back in it, but we were able to play through. I was very pleased with the effort."

In other volleyball news, the NQHS girls' volleyball team and the Mass. Patriots volleyball club will hold a free volleyball clinic Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon at the NQHS gym. The clinic is open to all interested middle school students.

Experience Should Help Presidents In Long Run

Inexperience played a major role this fall for the Quincy High School girls' volleyball team, but next year will be a different story, said head coach Christine Barrett.

"We only had three seniors this season, and started five underclassmen," said Barrett, whose Presidents wrapped up a 6-14 season with a 2-1 setback to Taunton Monday. "The younger kids gained a lot of experience playing together this year, so we should be a lot stronger next season."

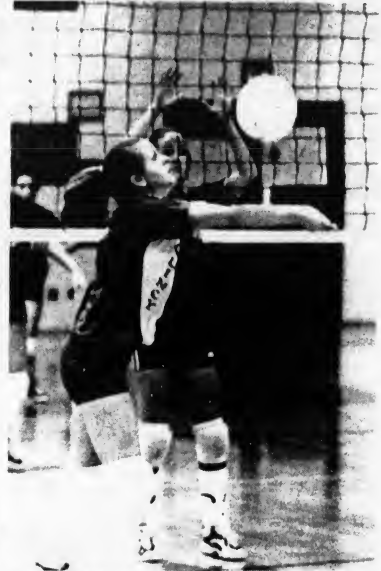

"The kids all worked hard and are very committed; the effort was definitely there. I can't fault them for that; things just didn't work out for us."

In the 11-15, 15-11, 10-15 loss at Taunton, Quincy was led by the play of sophomore co-captain Jacqui Niosi (21 assists, nine digs) juniors Colleen Nichol (12 kills, 11 digs, three aces) and Caitlin Nichol (16 digs) and senior co-captain Liz Ashworth (15 digs), in her last high school match. Seniors Sara Ewen and Connie Wong also closed out their volleyball careers.

"What really hurt us was missing 13 serves," said Barrett. "That was the difference. You can't do that against a good team. We had some receiving errors, too, which has been a problem all year long."

Last Thursday, the Presidents lost to rival North Quincy, 0-15, 11-15, at the Red Raiders' gym. Receiving and hitting errors told the story of the first game as North built a big lead and kept Quincy off the board.

The second game, however, was a much closer contest despite the fact North took a quick 8-1 lead. Ashworth, playing against North for the final time, reeled off six aces to bring Quincy to within one, 8-7. Quincy eventually went ahead, 10-8, before North rallied for seven of the next eight points to seal the win.

"Liz was definitely a bright spot against North," said Barrett. "This was her last match against them, and she got us going with some great serving. She wanted it, but unfortunately we couldn't pick it up. She showed a lot of leadership and I was very impressed with that."

Quincy notched its last win of the season last Wednesday, a two-game sweep of host Whitman-Hanson. The Presidents were paced by the efforts of Ashworth (four kills, two aces), Niosi (nine assists, ace), Colleen Nichol (five aces) and junior Michelle Catrambone (three aces).

Raiders Visit B-R (7-0) Saturday North's Defense Shines In Season's First Win

Coming off its first victory, it's back to work for North Quincy High School's football team, which visits undefeated Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. Old Colony League tilt.

"We came up with a big win," said North head coach Ken McPhee, referring to the Red Raiders' 7-0 victory over visiting Silver Lake last Friday night. "But we're playing a very, very good team in B-R, and (tailback Doug) Besette is just one of their weapons."

"(Fullback Darnell) Kuykendall is a strong player, (Jon) Cucinatto is a talented, quick receiver and their quarterback (Ken Lomba) is throwing the ball well. This is the most diverse offense they've had, so we'll have to play our best and try to take Besette out of his game."

Few teams have been able to harness Besette, who is having another stellar season for the talented Trojans (7-0 overall, 4-0 OCL). Besette has rushed for over 1,100 rushing yards and a Division I-leading 15 touchdowns this season. Meanwhile, Lomba leads Division I with 10 touchdown passes, and Cucinatto has caught six of those scoring strikes.

North's triumph over Silver Lake was the result of early offensive success and late defensive stands, all of which impressed McPhee and his coaching staff.

"We really needed this win, and I'm proud of the kids for never giving up," said McPhee. "They deserve it, because they've worked so hard and showed a lot of character. We drove the ball downfield early on and scored and our defense made the plays to keep them off the board. It's a confidence boost for the kids, to see their hard work pay off."

On its first possession, North took over at its own 28 and scored 10 plays later on a seven-yard run up the middle by senior fullback Brian Deptula (10 carries, 52 yards). Deptula carried the ball six times for 39 yards on the drive, which was highlighted by sophomore quarterback Max Repoff's 27-yard pass to senior Frank McNamara. With 1:18 remaining in the first quarter, junior Mike Reidy's extra point kick gave North a 7-0 lead.

The Lakers' best scoring opportunity of the half came when Andy Brems intercepted a pass at North's 30 with 3:03 to play in the second quarter. Three plays later, North's McNamara, sophomore Chris Selter and Reidy combined to sack quarterback Ryan Gadies. On the next play, McNamara (15 tackles, three pass breakups) tackled Gadies for a three-yard loss.

"Frank (McNamara) was amazing," said McPhee. "He's a great player, a great leader who gives 100 percent effort all the time. He made some big plays in key situations and deserves a lot of credit. Everyone stepped it up and did a hell of a job."

On its first possession of the second half, Silver Lake took over at North's 48 and drove to the 27 on two runs by Paul Goldie. North's defense again was equal to the task as McNamara and senior Craig Bigham stuffed Goldie for losses and junior Neil Rosenberger recovered a Laker fumble.

Another Silver Lake miscue, a bad snap on a punt attempt, was recovered by North's Ryan Murray at the Lakers' 20 early in the fourth quarter. Reidy's 35-yard field goal attempt sailed wide right, but the Lakers couldn't capitalize. A crushing hit by McNamara caused a fumble, which was recovered by senior Adam Tiro.

With four minutes left, Silver Lake took over at its 20 but could not penetrate NQ's defense. Reidy sacked Gadies for an 11-yard loss and McNamara dove to knock down a desperation fourth-down pass, sealing the hard-fought victory. By LIAM FITZGERALD

NQ Girls Set To Host Tournament Opener

The luck of the draw—that's what would determine who the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team plays in the opening round of the state tournament.

Since North (12-1-5 overall, 8-1-5 Old Colony League) finished in a second-place deadlock in the OCL with Falmouth, the teams' names were placed in hat and drawn yesterday (Wednesday) morning.

According to North head coach Paul Bregoli, the Red Raiders will be the No. 3 or No. 4 seed and play a home match against Marshfield or Weymouth. The game will be played Friday or Saturday afternoon at Varsity Field. Tickets for $3 may be purchased at the gate.

"Both are winnable games, and having a home game is a big advantage, because the kids will be fired up and we'll have a big crowd supporting us," said Bregoli. "They're both quality teams in strong leagues, but we are, too. It should be exciting."

Winning the opener would secure another home game for North, to be played early next week. Looking ahead, winning the second game would earn the Red Raiders a berth in the semifinals at a neutral site.

"It's totally within the realm of possibility that we can go two or three games into the tournament," said Bregoli. "We're playing great soccer and the girls have the mentality that no one can beat them."

The Red Raiders closed out the regular season with a 1-1 tie last Thursday against visiting Falmouth, the only team to beat NQ this season.

The Clippers took an early lead, scoring in the first five minutes of the game. With eight minutes remaining in the half, North senior co-captain Betsy Stone notched her 21st goal of the season, taking a pass from sophomore Kellee Conley. Stone finished the season second in the OCL in scoring, adding nine assists for a total of 30 points.

The OCL's top goal-keeper, North senior co-captain Kristen Bowes, kept the Clippers off the board the rest of the game. She finished with 11 shutouts and a league-best 0.39 goals against average. Bregoli commended the defensive play down the stretch of senior Katie Ceurvels, senior co-captain Rachael Powers, sophomore Jen Conley and freshman Kelly Rice.

Last Tuesday, NQ blanked visiting Martha's Vineyard, 2-0, on goals by juniors Kristin Coughlin and Calllyn O'Donnell. Coughlin's tally was set up by senior co-captain Dorothy Cronin, while O'Donnell received a pass from Kellee Conley and one-timed a shot past the keeper.

Stingy Defense The Key For Red Raider Boys

Although last year's team won just two games, North Quincy High School boys' soccer head coach Bob Dano had high hopes for the Red Raiders this fall.

So far, the Red Raiders have come through, qualifying for the state tournament for the first time in over a dozen years and impressing their coach with their effort and determination.

"Before the season, I hoped we would qualify for the tournament and also reduce the number of goals we allowed, and we've done both," said Dano. "We've really tightened up on defense, allowing 28 fewer goals than last year. We also improved our production to over 30 goals, which kept us in a lot of games."

Now, as a lower seed, the Red Raiders (8-8-2 overall, 7-7-0 Old Colony League) will travel to play one of the higher seeds and realize they will be in for a battle no matter the opponent. The seedings were announced yesterday (Wednesday) and North will likely open up on Friday.

"We'll be playing against one of the heavyweights, and we'll try to win, 1-0," said Dano. "We want to play a defensive game and look for a break from one of our strikers. I think the kids played up to their potential, and it looks good for the future of the program."

For the four seniors who played through three losing seasons, Dano is especially pleased they could be a part of this successful squad. North's seniors are co-captains Kevin Walsh and Matt O'Mahoney and Rob Bell and Mike Regan.

"I'm glad these kids are around for this, because they went through a lot before this and deserve to experience the tournament," he said. "Matt's our unsung hero; he's our spiritual leader and the heart and soul of the team. His and Kevin's leadership have been invaluable to the program."

Red Raiders, Presidents In OCL All-Star Game

Some of the best young soccer players in the area showcased their talents at Sunday's first Old Colony League-Atlantic Coast League All-Star Game played at Plymouth South High School.

Among the OCL All-Stars were 11 players from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School. Representing Quincy

High on the girls' team were senior co-captains Kimberly DiBona and Leanne Martin, while senior co-captain Bard Hajrizaj and senior Osgar Berk represented the Quincy boys' team.

From North Quincy High, four girls were named All-Stars and another, sophomore Jen Conley, received honorable mention honors. Senior co-captains Kristen Bowes, Rachael Powers, Dorothy Cronin and Betsy Stone participated in the game. North's boys were represented by senior co-captain Kevin Walsh, senior Rob Bell and junior Stephen Rochon.

The girls' game ended in a 1-1 tie, as Stone notched the OCL's lone goal. The ACL won the boys' game, 2-1, with all the scoring in the second half.

Pre-Natal Program At South Shore YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will offer a newly-revised pre-natal program with an eight-week holiday session beginning Tuesday, Nov. 10.

The medically-approved exercise program is for the pregnant woman from the first through the third trimester. Also included in the program is a 60-minute water workout on Thursdays.

Classes are Tuesdays at 7 p.m. and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. Registration has begun.

More Players Join Quincy's DL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

In his 23 years of coaching high school football, Peter Chella has never seen anything like this.

Having already lost four starting offensive linemen to injuries, Quincy High School's football team became more depleted during last Friday's 22-16 loss at Plymouth South, the seventh straight setback for the Presidents.

"It looks like we lost another player for the year," said Chella, the Presidents' head football coach. "And our starting running back (John Katsarikas) may be out for the year with a shoulder injury. It has been unbelievable."

"We weren't great to begin with, but you expect to improve as you work with the kids during the season and have a nice Thanksgiving game. This year, we're starting from square one every week, teaching the same things to new kids filling in for injured starters."

Nevertheless, the Presidents (0-7 overall, 0-5 Old Colony League) plays a home game this Friday (Silver Lake, 7 p.m.) for the first time since the beginning of October. Five consecutive road tilts resulted in five defeats, but Chella views the Lakers as similar to the Presidents.

"Silver Lake is a lot like us, since they've been missing a lot of players this season," he said. "But it's not injuries so much as players being suspended. They had a good runner

QUINCY WIDE RECEIVER Mike Lencki, here attempting to make a catch against Catholic Memorial earlier this season, will be a target for quarterback Dan Kelly this Friday at 7 p.m. when Quincy (0-7) hosts Silver Lake (1-6). Quincy lost to Plymouth South, 22-16, last Friday.

"Like us, they're going with a lot of young kids. It would be nice to come up with a victory, but we have to play better defense. Silver Lake has a few players we have to watch. Offensively, I think we'll be fine; we'll move the ball well."

In the loss to Plymouth South (3-4), the Presidents fell behind early when Panther tailback Eric Shanley (172 yards, three touchdowns) raced 71 yards for a touchdown on the second play from scrimmage.

Trailing 13-6 heading into the second quarter, the Presidents fumbled the ball away, recovered by the Panthers' Peter Walls at his own 36-yard line. Nine plays later, Shanley scored on a four-yard run.

Quincy closed the gap when senior fullback Nathan DeRosario (17 carries, 63 yards) capped a six-play, 55-yard drive with a four-yard touchdown run. The drive was highlighted by junior quarterback Dan Kelly's 42-yard run on a key fourth and 1 play.

In the opening half, the Presidents had two golden opportunities to tie the game or take the lead, but came up empty.

"Twice we got the ball inside their 10, but one drive ended in a fumble and the other failed when a kid dropped a pass in the end zone," said Chella. "We were in the game, and could've won, but didn't make the plays."

The hosts controlled the ball in the third quarter, using 9:16 to drive 74 yards and pad their lead. Shanley scored his third touchdown, a five-yard run, and the Panthers led, 19-6. A 45-yard field goal by Nate Buchanan with under five minutes left in the game iced the victory.

Quincy put together one last drive, culminating in a one-yard touchdown run by Kelly with a minute to play. Kelly also scored the two-point conversion, but it was not enough as the Panthers picked up the OCL triumph.

Quincy Freshmen Post Victories Over Ply. South, Taunton

The freshman football team at Quincy High School picked up back-to-back victories over Plymouth South and Taunton, its first two wins of the season.

The Presidents look to continue their winning ways today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Silver Lake.

In a 7-0 triumph over Plymouth South last Thursday, Quincy quarterback Mike Lorenzano scored the game's only touchdown on a 15-yard run. Tom Shruhan added the extra point.

Turning in solid defensive efforts for Quincy were Shruhan, Joe Hern, Tom MacNeil, Alberto Santiago, Scott Kelly, Dan Galligan, Don Brooks, Kris Kamborian, Chris Kerr, Blake Stefanelli, Lorenzano and Chris Sullivan. Sullivan recovered a fumble and scored a touchdown, but the play was called back.

The previous week, the Presidents rolled over Taunton, 29-8, sparked by the offensive line play of Mike Boyle, Kerr, Paul McLaughlin, Shawn Bowles, Bret Schwaim and Kevin Livingston. The line provided protection for Lorenzano, who threw touchdown passes to Kamborian, Sullivan and Brian Keefe. The line also helped Kamborian run for over 150 yards, and Bill Reid scored the team's first rushing touchdown of the season. Top special teams players were Mike Murphy and Charles Roulet.

Raider Girls Win OCL Title Meet

CROSS-COUNTRY

Following a perfect Old Colony League season, the North Quincy High School girls' cross-country kept its unbeaten streak alive by winning the OCL Championship meet last Wednesday.

Leading North's girls to victory with a second-place finish was Lynda Wilson (17:01), who trailed just Plymouth South's Michelle Palmer (16:22) on the 2.65-mile course at Plymouth Community Intermediate School. North totaled 34 points, followed by Barnstable (55) and Bridgewater-Raynham (64).

Other strong runners for North were Sarah Houghton (seventh, 18:04), Linda Nguyen (eighth, 18:13), Natalie Caron (11th, 18:28), Christine Marre (15th, 18:48), Genevieve O'Brien (19th, 19:01) and Kelly Rose O'Brien (20th, 19:13).

The surprise of the meet was Caron, who ran as insurance with normal fourth runner Kelly Rose O'Brien nursing a sore hamstring.

Senior Exercise Classes

The South Shore YMCA will offer three new Senior Exercise classes beginning Nov. 10.

Classes will be held in the morning Mondays through Thursdays. Registration has begun. For more information, call Gayle Laing at 479-8500, ext. 135.

"She's only a freshman, so we've gone easy with her," said North head coach Geoff Hennessy. "I think she surprised everyone in the house."

Peaking at the right time, nearly all of North's girls turned in their best race of the season.

"We went through a stretch with multiple meets in two week and it showed on the girls when they ran down at Brown (Ocean State Festival, Oct. 17)," said Hennessy. "But with some rest and recovery I knew they were ready."

"We just didn't expect them to dominate the way they did. We obviously need to carry this momentum into the states (Nov. 14). With O'Brien healthy it only makes us stronger. We're going to be shooting for Newton North and Brookline. It'll be like the old days of the Suburban League."

On the boys' side, North's Jeff Bartoloni (third, 14:17) and Brian Breslin (seventh, 14:51) led the Red Raiders to the fifth place finish, ahead of Quincy and Falmouth.

Bartoloni and Breslin were named to the OCL All-Star team, along with Wilson, Houghton and Nguyen.

In the girls' JV race, North's Amanda Wright finished third to lead the team to a third-place finish.

YOUTH FOOTBALL

Manets Remain Unbeaten; Apaches Back On Track

In the battle of the unbeaten, the Houghs Neck Manets emerged victorious, shutting out the Milton Mustangs, 8-0, in Sunday's Quincy Youth Football League showdown.

This Sunday marks the final day of the regular season, and the West Quincy Elks and Squantum Storm kick things off at 1 p.m. The North Quincy Apaches take on the Manets at 2:30 p.m., followed by the Mustangs against the Quincy Point Panthers at 4 p.m.

In the Manets' victory over the Mustangs, neither team scored until the third quarter, when the Manets' Josh Giordani tossed a touchdown pass to Shawn Munchback and Jason Moore added the two-point conversion.

In other action, the Apaches got back on track with an 18-7 triumph over the Storm.

Three first-half touchdowns by Ryan Farnham sparked the Apaches to the victory. Defensive back Chris Traetti made two key interceptions.

Protecting Your Privacy*

E-mail, the Internet, automated teller machines (ATM), computer banking, long distance carriers, even credit cards make our lives more efficient. However, as our lives become more integrated with technology, keeping our private information confidential becomes more difficult. Electronic transactions can leave you vulnerable to fraud and other crimes. Following a few simple tips can help keep your code from being cracked.

A WORD ON PASSWORDS

Whether you are on the Internet or an online banking program, you are often required to use a password. The worst passwords to use are the ones that come to mind first - name, spouse's name, maiden name, pets, children's name, even street addresses, etc. The best passwords mix numbers with upper and lowercase numbers. A password that is not found in the dictionary is even better. There are programs that will try every word in the dictionary in an effort to crack your security.

Don't be a "Joe" - someone who uses their name as their password.

The weakest link in a security system is the human element. The fewer people who have access to your codes and passwords the better. Avoid breaks in your security by:

- Changing your password regularly.
- Memorizing your password. If you have several, set up a system for remembering them. If you do write down the password, keep it at home or hidden at work. Don't write your password on a post-it note and stick it on your monitor or hard drive.
- Setting up a special account or setting aside a different computer at work for temporary help and other unauthorized uses.

• If you have the option of letting your computer or a Web site remember a password for you, don't use it. Anyone who uses your machine will have automatic access to information that is password protected.

He was also past president of the Men's and Boy's Apparel Club of New England and past cubmaster for the Quincy Cub Pack 10.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, he was educated in the city and graduated from Quincy High School in 1938. He also attended Boston University.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth (Wainhouse) Zeidman; a son, David R. Zeidman of Norwood; a brother, Rubin Zeidman of Warwick, R.I.; two sisters, Ruth Greenspan and Shirley Rowner, both of Randolph; and many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Let us on Veterans Day take time to pause and reflect and pray. Let us, as a nation, pause to honor those Veterans -- living and dead -- men and women -- who served in the United States Armed Services in time of war. They served it well.

Many gave up their lives for their country and for the freedoms we enjoy. Let us pray for those who have shed so many tears for those who gave so freely of their lives. On this Veterans Day let us, also, honor those who have lived to make those freedoms meaningful by post-war service to the disabled comrades, to their neighbors, to their community, to their states and to their nation.

Let us on Veterans Day, as Americans, stand up and be counted. Let us stand and honor this nation and what it stands for ... Let us be thankful of all the privileges and advantages we enjoy ... Let us count our blessings.

ABOVE ALL, let us on this day reaffirm our dedication to the cause of peace with honor throughout the world...

Once There Were Dahlias. Today, Tradition Meets Convenience.

In 1962, M. Joseph Sweeney acquired the Elcock Estate in West Quincy to better serve the residents in that growing area of the city. The circa 1863 residence was built long before the expressway.

Its previous owner, Mr. Elcock, had a green thumb and soon became known as the "Dahlia King" for his spectacular dahlias.

Today, the location is not only near the Southeast Expressway (I-93), but also the Furnace Brook Parkway. These two major arteries offer convenient access to West Quincy, Milton and Boston. Joe's son, Dennis, has recently had the location redecorated, continuing the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

Since 1917, the staff at Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions. And as the area has grown, they've become more accessible to you.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Pleasure outings and travel are favored now. You'll have luck in dealings with educators and publishers, but you may feel that one person has no right to intrude into your affairs.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You have some good luck going for you this week. Don't spoil it by becoming arrogant or demanding. Career developments are a plus, but keep a check on your ego.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Despite the fact that one friend may be difficult to get along with, there is more good than bad in store for you now. Overall, relations with others flourish.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Financial developments this week are positive, but you may have some difficulty in finding the right words to make yourself clear to others. Don't let a resentment take hold over the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A family member could be in a quarrelsome mood. Good news comes from a distance and dealings with agents are favored this week. You might be considering a trip for the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The career break you've been waiting for could come this week. Financial prospects improve now, but you're tempted to overspend in your search for good times.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Happiness comes through a friendship this week. A group activity should be a lot of fun. Impatience could undermine efficiency on the job. Watch temperament.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You'll want to spend some time with a pet hobby. Though many of this week's family developments are positive, a small quarrel could appear out of nowhere.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Though this week promises to bring you good times, you need to guard against impulsive spending when pleasure seeking. You and a child may see a matter differently.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Luck is with you in financial matters this week. Be alert for a new career opening. Downplay differences with a co-worker. A display of moodiness works against you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Partnership interests are happily highlighted. You'll be pleased with how your relationship is going. However, you need to be more patient about a career concern.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Dealings with bankers and real estate agents are favored this week. Happy developments at home put you in a joyful mood. Still, you could have words with a friend about a financial matter.

Delahunt To Participate In Impeachment Standards Hearing

Congressman William Delahunt will participate next week in a House Judiciary Subcommittee hearing on the constitutional standards for presidential impeachment.

The Constitution Subcommittee will hold the all-day hearing in Washington on Monday, Nov. 9. As a member of the full Judiciary Committee, Delahunt had joined Democratic colleagues in calling for the hearing to learn from scholars about the constitutional and historical context for impeachment.

The hearing will set the scene for the following week, when the Judiciary Committee is expected to launch its formal impeachment inquiry—to determine whether to recommend forwarding formal charges to the Senate. Depositions pursuant to those deliberations may begin as early as next week.

Delahunt said the subcommittee hearing on standards is critical to the full committee's work.

"It seems self-evident that we need to define the elements of an offense before the Judiciary Committee can undertake a prosecution," said Delahunt, former Norfolk County district attorney. "That's basic fairness. Without it, the Congress is shirking its own responsibilities."

The hearing originally had been scheduled for Oct. 22, but was canceled abruptly and without explanation. Without such a hearing, the committee could be forced to undertake an interminable investigation into charges which might not rise to the level of impeachment—even if true.

On Oct. 15, Delahunt and four other Judiciary Committee Democrats, disappointed at the cancellation, hosted a public discussion on the topic with four leading constitutional scholars, including Prof. Laurence Tribe of Harvard University and Richard Ben-Veniste, former Watergate prosecutor. The informal three-and-a-half hour review, televised by C-SPAN, also examined constitutional alternatives to impeachment.

Delahunt expressed particular chagrin with any partisan divide on questions relating to the standards for impeachment.

"The Constitution is not a partisan document," said Delahunt. "And neither this hearing nor the overall impeachment inquiry should be a partisan document."

Further background documentation on the Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry is available through the Congressman's web site at www.house.gov/delahunt.

CVS Permit Approved For Best Buy Location

The Zoning Board of Appeals has approved a permit for CVS to occupy the store that was formerly the Best Buy building at the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers has held a series of neighborhood meetings over the past few months to address the concerns of both neighbors and abutters.

Ayers said CVS, when granted the permit on Oct.

28, agreed to comply with neighborhood concerns by addressing the following:

- CVS will not operate a 24-hour store.
- The company will downsize the parking lot 25 percent and add landscaping.
- The entire store will be remodeled, and the former liquor store will be demolished.
- There will no longer be liquor sold at the location.
- CVS will work with the Metropolitan District Commission and Quincy Traffic

Engineer Jack Gillon to improve traffic conditions at the site.

- The company will make drainage improvements to the parking lot.
- The company also will comply with all state and local building codes.

Ayers said CVS plans to open the new store early next year. He added that with all neighborhood concerns met, the community is looking forward to having the company as a new neighbor.

Ward 5 Community Association Meeting Nov. 9

The Ward 5 Community Association will hold its second annual meeting on Monday Nov. 9 at the Beechwood Knoll School, Fenno St. at 7 p.m.

Refreshments and coffee will be served. All are welcome.

The meeting will feature the presentation of the Ward Five Citizens of the Year award and the Association's "Volunteer of the Year" award. The election of officers for 1999 will occur at the annual meeting. There will also be a raffle with great prize giveaways, including gift certificates, tickets and other fantastic prizes.

"The annual meeting allows us a chance to celebrate all that we have accomplished during the past year and set our goals for the upcoming year. We welcome the input of our members, new and old, in setting our goals for 1999," said Association President Douglas Gutro.

The Ward 5 Community Association is a non-political community group which aims to improve the quality of life in Ward 5.

The association conducts monthly meetings featuring guest speakers regarding a variety of topics that are important to residents of Ward 5 and the City of Quincy. Past activities include: Wollaston Beach clean-up, storm-drain stenciling projects, a clean-up of the Neponset River banks and the co-sponsoring of the Wollaston Beach Volleyball challenge.

For more information on the Ward 5 Community Association, contact Gutro at 328-7982.

than Delahunt. Morrissey's percentage was 99.31.

Tobin polled 10,043 for 99.42 percent; Ayers 9,333 for 99.31 percent and Mariano, 3,789 for 99.47 percent. Mariano also represents a portion of Weymouth.

Quincy was pretty much in step with the rest of Massachusetts in the state-wide contests. The vote here:

Attorney General: Thomas F. Reilly (D) 73.95 percent; Brad Bailey (R) 25.93 percent.

liam F. Galvin (D), 78.27 percent; Dale C. Jenkins, Jr. (R), 17.35 percent; David L. Atkinson (L), 4.3 percent.

Treasurer: Shannon P. O'Brien (D), 68.01 percent; Bob Maginn (R) 29.52 percent; Merton B. Baker (L) 2.39 percent.

percent; Carla A. Howell (L) 4.88 percent.

Norfolk County Commissioner Peter H. Collins, Milton Democrat, rode over his Republican opponent Robert D. Hall, Jr., 77.67 to 22.21 percent.

Governor's Councillor Christopher A. Iannella, Jr., running unopposed polled 21,202 votes for a 99.20 percentage.

Sheets: Cellucci's Election Good For City, Shipyard

Mayor James Sheets says Tuesday's election of Paul Cellucci as governor is good news for Quincy, particularly the Fore River shipyard.

Sheets said Cellucci and his predecessor, William Weld, have consistently backed the efforts to revitalize the shipyard, located in the city's Quincy Point section. At one point, he noted, the Weld-Cellucci team gave the city $3.7 million for infrastructure work at the yard.

"His election means a continuity of support for the shipyard," said the mayor. "He has a demonstrated commitment to the shipyard."

Sheets said Cellucci also has assisted with other city projects, including the planned Quincy Center Concourse.

Prior to the election, Sheets declined to endorse either the Republican Cellucci, currently the acting governor, or his Democratic opponent, Attorney General Scott Harshbarger. He has maintained that local issues transcend partisan politics and he must have a good working relationship with all federal and state officials, Democrats and Republicans alike.

ceded the district attorney's race around 11 p.m. He credited his victory to both his supporters and his message of stopping crime before it happens through preventative measures.

"It's clear that we had great people supporting us," said Keating. "And we had a great message: it wasn't just being tough on crime, it was also being smart on crime."

Keating said he wished to thank all of his supporters, adding, "I want to thank the people of Quincy. They've been great, both in the primary and tonight. Now I want to continue a tradition of both innovation and crime prevention."

DAVID PHILLIPS of Kenosha, Wisc. is congratulated by Fr. William McCarthy of St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy Center after being named the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition's new executive director. Phillips, 40, most recently served as executive director of the Shalom Center of the Interfaith Network in Kenosha. The QISC operates the city's homeless shelter Father Bill's Place—which is named after Fr. McCarthy—and other programs.

Wisconsin Man Named Sheltering Director

A Wisconsin man has been selected as the new executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC), which operates the city's homeless shelter Father Bill's Place and other programs.

The QISC Board of Directors announced the appointment of David Phillips of Kenosha, Wisc. to the post during the agency's annual meeting Tuesday night. He will succeed Joseph Finn, who had served as executive director since 1991 before resigning in September to accept a new job in Cambridge.

Phillips, 40, grew up in Connecticut but has lived in Wisconsin since 1986. Most recently, he served as executive director of the Shalom Center of the Interfaith Network in Kenosha. Previously, Phillips was coordinator of youth ministers, and later a parish consultant, for the Archdiocese of Milwaukee.

He also has served as an adjunct professor at Cardinal Stritch University in Milwaukee since 1989.

Phillips said "it feels wonderful" to have been selected by the QISC board.

"It's been a very, very nice reception already," said Phillips, who plans to move to Quincy. "They do some wonderful work there. I can't wait to get started."

Phillips holds a bachelor's degree in religious studies from Sacred Heart University in Fairfield, Conn. and a master's degree in pastoral ministry from Boston College as well as a certificate in community organizing from the Gammel Foundation in Chicago and a certificate in non-profit management from Marquette University in Milwaukee.

In addition, he has served on several boards in Wisconsin, including the Governor's Task Force on Homelessness.

Fr. William McCarthy of St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy Center—for whom Father Bill's Place is named—said he believes the QISC has selected the right man for the job.

"He seems to be pretty well qualified," he said. "He was more familiar with shelters, and the operation of shelters, than anyone else who was interviewed."

Fr. McCarthy said a search committee comprised of Interim Director April Stevens and board members Jim Conley, Nan O'Neil, and Rev. Adolph Wismar brought a field of 60 candidates down to five finalists before the board made its decision.

The QISC was formed in 1984 and opened Father Bill's Place—located at 38 Broad St. near the Quincy Police Station—four years later. The shelter currently serves over 800 clients a year.

The sheltering coalition now also operates three facilities for the formerly homeless—the O'Neil House, a home for three women in Quincy; the McIntyre House, another Quincy home for eight veterans on Burgin Parkway; and the Weymouth House, a sober home for three men in Weymouth—as well as other programs.

The City Council, with little discussion, appropriated $35,000 on Monday night from the city's Sewer Rehabilitation Fund for the work. The money was given to Quincy's sewer-water-drain division.

Councilors said they hope the work can be done before winter weather ends the construction season.

Harold Raises Concerns Sheets Confident Ships Will Be Built At Yard

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Despite concerns about the future of the Fore River shipyard raised by City Councillor Paul Harold, Mayor James Sheets says he is confident ships will again be built at the yard.

Sheets made his comments Tuesday after Harold expressed doubts about plans to reopen the shipyard in Quincy Point at Monday night's City Council meeting.

"We're going to build ships," said the mayor. "I have no concerns whatsoever."

At the council meeting, Harold grilled Atty. Timothy Jaroch, a consultant to shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil, about Emmanouil's request of the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) for $249 million in federal loan guarantees needed to build six tankers, the first ships to be built at the yard since it closed 12 years ago.

Harold also said a report by Emmanouil's company, Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI) that was written by Jaroch to the City Council said "MARAD has reviewed and approved the application of Internare Navigation" (the London-based firm that would be providing Emmanouil with the contract to build the tankers) for the loan guarantees.

Harold noted that he had spoken earlier in the day with MARAD Deputy Administrator John Graykowski who told him that the Maritime Administration has not approved the guarantees and that the two companies had yet to file necessary documents showing the design of the ships to be built at the yard.

Jaroch apologized for what he termed his "misstatement" in the report and said he only meant to convey that MARAD had received all materials needed to help the agency make its decision on the loan guarantees.

Sheets echoed Jaroch's comments on Tuesday.

"What I believed that [Jaroch's] document meant was that the application had been submitted, and the application had been approved," he said. "That's the way I understood it."

Jaroch told the councilors that MHI and Internare face only one roadblock to having the loan guarantees approved: raising $40 million, or 12.5 percent of the financing.

However, Harold said he was told by Graykowski the application for the loan guarantees would remain incomplete without the documentation on the ship designs.

Harold added that he has concerns about Internare, saying he has had a hard time tracking down solid financial information about the company. He said because the shipyard revitalization project seemingly depends on the Internare contract, he wants to make sure the firm is on solid fiscal ground.

"My concern is to find out how real this proposal is," he said.

Quincy Point Liquor License Transfer Rejected

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Citing the crowd at city hall at Tuesday's license board meeting as an "overwhelming showing of opposition," the board voted unanimously to deny the transfer of a liquor license from Steve Barrett to the Porter House Pub. The site on 536 Washington St. was formerly the Point Pub.

On a motion by Walter White, building inspector and seconded by Police Chief Thomas Frane, board members were all in accord with the parking problems, increased noise and concern over the "quality of life for the community."

Frane said that Quincy Point is "on the mend" and "on the road to being a viable place to live." He said he seconded the motion to "reinforce the will of the people, the church and the neighbors who are all against it."

Addressing the large crowd of parishioners from St. Joseph's Parish headed by Rev. Bob Monagle, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond told the board to deny the transfer, revoke the occupancy permit and revoke license to sell alcohol and food at the site. The liquor establishment abutts the church, its school and the convent.

Alleging misrepresentation by Barrett, Raymond said Barrett first applied for a permit for $22,000 to renovate the establishment, including a new kitchen, but at a recent meeting, Barrett said he had exceeded that amount and had actually spent $150,000.

Raymond also alluded to the fact that Barrett kept the business closed for 17 months.

According to White, Barrett spent 30 percent or more of the assessed

Council Appropriates $35,000 For Flooding Relief In NQ

Residents in the Webster and Appleton streets area in North Quincy could soon be getting relief from flooding problems in the neighborhood.

The City Council, with little discussion, appropriated $35,000 on Monday night from the city's Sewer Rehabilitation Fund for the work. The money was given to Quincy's sewer-water-drain division.

Councilors said they hope the work can be done before winter weather ends the construction season.

Sweeny: Honor Veterans For Providing Freedom

Former School Committeeman Charles Sweeny told those in attendance at the city's Veterans Day ceremonies Wednesday that freedom is a precious gift that should not be taken for granted and all veterans should be honored for helping to preserve that freedom.

Sweeny, a combat veteran of World War II who received the Purple Heart after being wounded in action and who later served 40 years with the U.S. Veterans Administration in Boston, was guest speaker during the ceremonies at Adams Academy on Adams Street.

"This nation, the United States of America, more than any other nation on the face of the earth, is a nation where every citizen can do pretty much whatever he or she wants to do," he said. "In other words, we enjoy freedom here in the United States, here in Quincy."

"Well, freedom is a very precious thing. It is such a precious thing that many have given their lives to

CHARLES SWEENEY

Sweeny said Veterans Day is a particularly special celebration because it recognizes all veterans, living and dead, of all wars—with special emphasis on those still alive.

"I speak today of the veterans of all wars," he said. "I speak of our veterans who are disabled, hospitalized, homeless, unemployed, successful, healthy, poor, or rich. And I include all veterans: Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force and Coast Guard."

"And I want to make special mention of our women veterans. The WAACs, and the WAVES, and the SPARS, and the nurses who also suffered after the fall of Bataan and Corregidor. And also, a word for the POWs who often suffered cruel and unusual punishment."

"And so today, Veterans Day, we hold solemn and happy ceremonies....in grateful recognition of all the veterans who are responsible for defending and maintaining our freedom."

marshal of the parade that preceded Wednesday's ceremonies.

Sweeny also spoke with pride about the efforts of then Gov. Christian Herter and state Sen. Charles Hedges, as well as the Department of Veterans Services, in defeating a plan a number of years ago that would have placed all needy veterans on welfare. Sweeny himself was among those who spoke against the plan.

In conclusion, he said the freedom Americans have been granted as a result of the veterans' sacrifices must be used wisely.

"Our veterans have preserved for us the right to disagree," said Sweeny. "But we should disagree reasonably, effectively, intelligently and constructively, and we must use properly the freedom that our veterans have kept for us."

Bradley, who is also a past state commander of the American Legion, was co-chairman for Wednesday's ceremonies. Emcee was Irving Isaacson, past commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, the Jewish War Veterans Post 193 AL, and the Cavanagh Chapter 79 DAV.

Also in attendance were city and state officials, including Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Peter Kolson who both spoke; representatives of several military and veterans' organizations; and a number of local residents.

3 City Depts. Honored For Efforts At Fatal Scaffolding Accident

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council presented commendations Monday night to the Quincy fire, police and public works departments and the Boston Fire Department for their efforts following an Aug. 11 accident at 77 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Two workers were killed in the accident after falling nearly 80 feet when the scaffolding on which they were working collapsed. The public safety officials who were at the scene received the commendations for their quick response.

Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, speaking on behalf of his department, said he was proud of what he saw that day.

"Everybody played a part that day," he said. "All did an outstanding job. It proved how well the City of Quincy is to handle emergencies."

Of his department members who joined him at the council meeting, he said, "I've got a fine bunch of fellows here. They really gave their all that day."

All of the council members, including Councillor Francis McCauley, took turns praising the fire department for its courage and efforts on the day of the accident.

"The Quincy Fire Department, as usual, was on the scene right away," said McCauley. "Congratulations for being on the job that day."

"God bless you all," added Council President Peter Kolson.

Department of Public Works Commissioner accepted the council commendation for his department's efforts on Aug. 11. Gorman accepted on behalf of the Quincy Police Department and Boston Fire Department, which were unable to send representatives.

State Street Donates $56,343 For Fire Truck

State Street Bank has donated $56,343.45 for a new fire truck for the Quincy Fire Department.

The City Council accepted the gift on behalf of the department Monday night.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said the truck was specially designed for State Street's garages but also will be available to the North Quincy, Montclair and Squantum neighborhoods as well as the rest of Quincy.

"What a great gift," said Gorman. "It's not only going to help the State Street area, it's going to help the whole city."

State Street Senior Vice President Thomas Cataldo also was on hand for the presentation

"State Street is pleased to donate this fire truck to the city," he said.

Among the council members who voiced gratitude about the donation were Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee and Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, whose ward includes the State Street site.

Raymond said Quincy sometimes relies on such contributions to make necessary purchases.

"The city couldn't afford to do all of the things that are currently donated," he said.

McDermott added, "I think it'll be a wonderful addition to our firefighting force."

$40,000 Appropriated For Lincoln-Hancock Playground

The Lincoln-Hancock School Playground will be receiving the same new playground equipment planned for the Wendell Moses Playground in Squantum.

The City Council appropriated $40,000 on Monday night from the city's "free cash" (cash reserve) account to be used by the Park Department for the Lincoln-

Hancock project.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said the equipment will be the same to be used at the Squantum playground.

Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch told the council last month the Squantum project, which will include new swings, climbing apparatus and more, will be completed by next spring.

Cellucci And Sheets

Frankly, I can't get too excited over Jim Sheets and Paul Cellucci being seen around town together on election day.

As an unenrolled voter who prefers to vote the candidate and not the party, I don't consider a Democrat and Republican being seen together a political sin.

Maybe if I were a Democrat I might see it a little differently. Some Quincy Democrats do.

It bothers them that Sheets, a Democrat, was down at the Wollaston School with Cellucci, a Republican, on election day.

Sheets says he was there because Cellucci asked him. He says he introduced Cellucci but didn't ask anyone to vote for him or even consider giving him one.

And, he says, he was there in a nonpartisan role as mayor.

On the same day, Scott Harshbarger was at Quincy High School with fellow Democrats Congressman William Delahunt and City Councillor Paul Harold.

Sheets says he would have been there, too, if Harshbarger had asked him but did not.

So, maybe Cellucci was more politically astute about the importance of Quincy in a squeaker race for governor. And the importance of being seen with Sheets.

There is no doubt that Sheets likes Cellucci and in his recent official appearances here as acting governor Sheets has introduced him as "my friend."

There was one day last spring when Cellucci came to town with a check for $3.7 million for the Quincy Point improvements project. That sure is a friend.

And, at the recent dedication of the Clifford Marshall School, Cellucci -- as the keynote speaker -- again was introduced by Sheets as "my friend."

Sheets didn't officially endorse Cellucci or Harshbarger so he wouldn't pick the wrong horse and jeopardize state funds for the city.

But being introduced by Sheets as "my friend" certainly didn't hurt Cellucci.

It isn't often a Republican candidate gets to carry Quincy, a Democratic stronghold, as Cellucci did with nearly 52 percent of the vote to Harshbarger's 46 percent.

Cellucci's and running mate Jane Swift's 14,802 votes to Harshbarger and Warren Tolman's 13,110 were crucial in the close election. Harshbarger needed the traditional large Democratic support margin here, but didn't get it.

Interestingly, or maybe just coincidentally, Democrats John Silber and Margaret Claproot carried Quincy over William Weld and Cellucci 18,629 to 16,606 in 1990.

But in 1994 as a friendship developed between Weld, Cellucci and Sheets, the Republican team crushed Mark Roosevelt and Robert Massie here 21,497 to 9,582.

In 1986, Democrats Michael Dukakis and Evelyn Murphy had no trouble here against Republicans George Kariotis and Nicholas Nikitas, 16,297 to 8,568.

Before 1994, the last time a Republican gubernatorial candidate carried Quincy was in 1960 when John Volpe defeated Joseph Ward.

Sheets, now in his fifth term, has worn well as mayor. His popularity is still riding high. So is his power.

He has been re-elected three times without opposition. He is looking ahead to a sixth term bid and there doesn't seem to be anyone in his way.

Maybe the next Democrat running for governor will be sure to ask Sheets to show him around town.

JEFF LOCKE wasn't able to hold the district attorney's office against Democrat Bill Keating but for a Republican, he did pretty well in Quincy, too.

The city has only 6,960 registered Republicans but Locke polled a respectable 12,907 votes here -- or 5,847 more votes than there are Republicans.

Keating took Quincy by 2,051, or 53 percent to 46. Locke was appointed by Gov. Weld to fill the unexpired term of William Delahunt who went off to Congress in January, 1997. In the short time since, he won a lot of friends and respect in Quincy for the way he handled the job.

It's obvious he picked up a good chunk of the unenrolled vote, and apparently, some Democrats crossing party lines.

Weld appointed Locke district attorney. Will Cellucci name him a judge?

THE DEATH OF Pres Hobson, former sports editor of the then Quincy Patriot Ledger, saddened me and at the same time brought back many fond memories of my early days in the newspaper business.

Pres gave me my start as a part-time sportswriter while I was in my senior year at Quincy High School. He was great to work for and with. And he gave me some good advice: short sentences, short paragraphs, plain language and get to the point.

Those were fun days at the Ledger. Not much money, but plenty of fun and you got a chance to learn and develop.

Thanks, Pres.

NICE TO SEE Pat McDermott off crutches. The Ward 3 councillor underwent surgery to replace both hips within a month's time in May-June and had been on crutches for sometime since.

Not only is he off the crutches but he's back on his bicycle. "I rode 10 miles the other day," he says.

QUINCY'S VOTER TURNOUT was only 56 percent. But it was a lot better in Ward 1, Precinct 1, says Herb Fontaine, former WJDA news editor, who serves as a voting instructor at that Merrymount School precinct.

Registered voters there, he reports, number 1,789 and 1,231 cast ballots. "That's an impressive 75 percent," he says.

Quincy And Braintree's 'Erie Canal' Project

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Your always interesting "The History Channel" in last week's edition mentioned the Erie Canal being opened on Oct. 26, 1825. This was a total mileage of 363 from Buffalo to Albany. Some facts: the Erie Canal, the Panama Canal, and the Suez Canal total 468 miles and the total construction time for all three was 25 years.

Here in Quincy and Braintree we have our personal "Erie Canal," the decades old Town Brook project, begun in 1972, and at the most five miles long. Still to be done is a Rube Goldberg tunnel along the center of Howie Road in Braintree, something which was not even considered in the original plans but came to a head a couple of years ago. To the complete mystification of the best brains in the MDC, the ACOE, and other individuals interested in the project, the backyards of houses on Howie Road became flooded for months, an enigma to the above engineers.

Then, lo, a miracle. A resident phoned the Mosquito Control group. One of their supervisors came over and saw a tree blocking Town Brook. He detailed two men and a back hoe, the tree was removed, the waters immediately subsided and within 24 hours the flood which had baffled the MDC, ACOE, and involved cohorts, just disappeared. What did not disappear was the Rube Goldberg idea of digging up Howie Road rather than simply enlarge Town Brook. Take a walk along this section some time.

To "explain" this asininity and also "explain" while the still solidly built Braintree Dam has to be dynamited and removed with the same materials being used in construction, instead of the far less expensive grouting method used on the Big Dig, a meeting will be held at the Fletcher Hall, Braintree Town Hall, 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 19 at which time a MDC representative will wave his map around and an Army Corp of Engineers will speak in generalities, evading an leading and intelligent questions. For example: why it has taken so long; why the proposed death trap spillway, 32 feet deep in one spot and protected by only an easily circumvented chain link fence which will need constant repair and will certainly result in the deaths of adventuresome youngsters will be used instead of the perfectly safe and productive fish ladder similar to the one at the Cohasset Dam; and the 400 by 100 by three and a half foot deep detention area will be built in the south west bay, fed only by a street drain, while nothing will be done in the north west bay fed by Town Brook for centuries (and coveted by the South Shore Plaza).

Quincy residents who attended the Oct. 21, 1996 meeting at City Hall when irate citizens complained that due to the stupidity of the ACOE and MDC their homes were flooded may wish to attend this Braintree meeting and ask the same questions which were evaded then by the MDC and ACOE representatives.

One thing is certain: any member of the audience who persists in getting answers to questions the MDC and ACOE representatives duck or evade, will be cut off abruptly by the chairman of this meeting similar to the judge in charge of the kangaroo court scene in the Breaker Morant film.

Seeks 'Justice' For Pound Officer

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Many were shocked to observe the injustice done to Quincy Pound Officer Bruce DiBella in his being passed over for the top two positions vacated by Mrs. Phyllis Berlucchi's retirement.

Although not a personal friend, I have had numerous occasion in past years concerning animal, domestic or wild, to know that Officer DiBella is very competent in this field. Bruce DiBella had every right to expect to succeed Mrs. Berlucchi.

He is extremely good in animal control, does meticulous paperwork and is very conscientious and courteous.

Perhaps a review is in order. Why not make the two positions equal? Equal work for equal pay!

Let justice prevail for Officer Bruce DiBella, a veteran of 20 years in the Quincy Pound.

That is the way out of this dilemma. There is no difference in the work of both parties and if anything, Bruce DiBella is more experienced, after 20 years of dedication to his job.

Hospital Director Cites Need For 125 New Beds

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy City Hospital (QCH) Director Dr. Ensio Ronka cited the need for 125 new beds at the hospital in a speech before the Needlework Guild at the First Parish Church.

Ronka noted that QCH cared for 5,000 patients last year, spending $1 million with income of $700,000. He said that conditions were critical and that working conditions were extremely difficult because of over-crowding. While the average occupancy of hospitals was 80 percent, QCH was at 120 percent, with patients being placed in hallways and porches.

According to U.S. Public Health Department standards, there should be five beds for every 1,000 patients, he said. That meant that ideally, QCH should have a total of 500 beds, an increase of 125 from the current 375.

ORDINANCE PROPOSED TO CONTROL COMIC BOOK SALES

Councillor Frank Orcutt stated his intention to file an ordinance to control the sale of comic books and objectionable reprints of lurid novels.

The year-long campaign to control comic book sales was recently endorsed by the school committee and business leaders.

Orcutt asked City Solicitor John Flavin to draft the ordinance, noting that "this type of literature has a tendency to create juvenile delinquency."

Tomato & Egg Sandwich

When we were growing up, one of our favorite sandwiches was tomatoes and eggs. If there was any left over tomato sauce, my mother would heat it in a frying pan, add an egg or two and presto, we had the best lunch which we all loved.

So last week when I had an appointment around lunch time to have my hair done at our daughter Nancy's barber shop, I remembered I had some left over sauce, so I made sandwiches for her and her crew. Only this time, I enhanced it a bit by adding left over meatballs also. Here is the easy recipe and one that is great served on crusty rolls. It's equally delicious even without the meatballs.

Tomato and Egg Sandwich a couple of left over meatballs (cut in bite size pieces)(optional) 2 eggs (beaten) left over sauce (about half a cup) sliced provolone cheese (or grated Romano cheese)
4 crusty rolls

In an ungreased frying pan, heat the meatballs and sauce until hot. Add the eggs and turn until cooked. Place the sliced cheese over the mixture and turn off the jet. Fill the rolls, and I think you will enjoy this treat.

If you prepare these early, wrap with foil and keep in a warming oven.

ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE

Dementia is a term given to a group of symptoms having to do with the degeneration of thought and behavioral processes, but it is not in itself a disease. Alzheimer's disease is the most common of a number of diseases that cause progressive impairment of memory, cognition, and behavior. Some of the signs and symptoms include gradual memory loss; difficulty in learning; lack of judgment; loss of language skills; misplacing items; mood, personality, or behavioral changes; and inability to perform routine functions. None of these signs, however, is exclusive to Alzheimer's. A physician's examination is necessary to rule out other causes of dementia, such as depression, head injury, nutritional deficiencies, alcoholism, drug reactions, and certain types of infection.

If you are concerned about yourself or about your loved one, make an appointment to have these symptoms checked out. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we listen to your concerns. We are affiliated with Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. Please call us at 617-472-2550; office hours by appointment.

P.S. Other diseases that may cause dementia include Parkinson's disease, Huntington's disease, Pick's disease, and AIDS.

First Step Of Sheets-Frane Plan

$220,000 For Nine Police Cruisers

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city has taken the first step of its plan to replace the cruiser fleet of the Quincy Police Department.

On Monday night, the City Council appropriated $220,000 from the city's "free cash" (cash reserve) account to purchase nine new cruisers.

The plan to replace the fleet was formulated in August by Mayor James Sheets and Police Chief

THOMAS FRANE

Thomas Frane after a special police committee appointed by the chief recommended the purchase of new cruisers.

Sheets told The Quincy Sun in September the second step of the plan is to purchase eight or nine more cruisers by the end of Fiscal Year 1999—which ends June 30 of next year—or with free cash earmarked for Fiscal Year 2000.

The mayor said that beginning with the Fiscal Year 2000 police budget, the city also will add a line item that calls for the annual purchase of a certain number of cruisers. Frane will decide on the number by February when the work on the budget begins.

Quincy Awarded $90,000 Community Policing Grant

Quincy has been awarded $90,000 in Community Policing Grants.

"Community policing is an integral part of combating crime and improving the quality of life in our communities. From bike patrols to self-defense classes to basketball leagues and enhanced foot patrols, the co-operative effort between police and citizens has greatly assisted in the reduction of crime and has enhanced the safety of our neighborhoods," said Rep. Stephen Tobin.

Rep. Michael Bellotti said during the past fiscal year, state funded community policing grants have provided 1,900 bicycle patrols and 2,000 more foot patrols across 312 communities. These grants have also provided domestic violence training to over 2,000 officers throughout the Commonwealth and has trained more than 850 officers to respond to elder abuse.

"The grant will ensure the continued growth and development of both new and existing Community Policing programs necessary to succeed in our battle against crime," said Rep. Ronald Mariano.

Grants have also helped fund local crime prevention programs geared toward child safety, by establishing child photo and fingerprint identification programs and parent-child safety training in more than 200 communities. With an increase of $2.5 million over last year's commitment, the Community Policing program will be able to expand and enhance the program to 19 additional communities, said Tobin.

Shea Reappointed City Clerk

City Clerk Joseph Shea has been reappointed to another three-year term by the City Council.

The unanimous vote took place at the council's meeting Monday night.

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, who nominated Shea for the post, and Councillor Paul Harold both said he is an asset both to the city and to the council.

Shea, 53, first was appointed to the position in 1992 following the retirement of longtime City Clerk John Gillis. He previously had served as Gillis's assistant.

Delahunt Vote Among Highest Nationwide

Congressman William Delahunt's vote total on Nov. 3 was one of the highest among candidates for Congress across the nation, according to the Delahunt for Congress campaign.

Delahunt's overall tally of 164,665 votes was the highest in New England, and any race east of the Wisconsin, campaign officials said. It exceeded that of 427 of the 434 other successful Congressional candidates, with House Speaker

Newt Gingrich just below Delahunt without about 2,000 fewer votes, he said.

Delahunt, a resident of Quincy, won reelection with 70 percent of the overall vote in the 41 communities comprising the Tenth District, including 73 percent (97,719 votes) on the South Shore and 67 percent (66,946) across the Cape and Islands.

In his home base of Quincy, he received 81 percent or 22,420 votes.

Shopping Commission Gives Update To Council

The city's "Keep It In Quincy" Shopping Commission, appointed by the City Council to a one-year term in February, updated councilors on its progress Monday night.

The commission has been charged with studying the current retail conditions in Quincy Center and reporting its findings to the council.

Commission members Judy Kolson and Linda Colon told council members about the results of two commission surveys answered by a total of about 2,500 downtown employees and city residents.

Results showed that employees and residents alike want a greater variety of, and more upscale, downtown scores. Top store choices included a pharmacy, department store, men's and women's clothing store, ice cream shop, hardware or housewares store, toys or hobbies store, and a bakery.

The results also indicated that people want better lighting and a greater police presence in Quincy Center and fewer hair and nail salons. Respondents were impressed with the downtown's but not with the retail selection.

Members said the next challenge for the commission—which has teamed with the City Council, Quincy 2000, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and the Quincy Planning Department in its efforts—is to actively identify and recruit the top retail choices of survey respondents.

Other commission members include Nancy Callanan, Joanne Dondoro, Judy Farmer, Elmina Greene, David Lydon, Nancy McArdle, Zaida Shaw and Suzanne Webber. They have been assisted by Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, Elizabeth Harrington of the Planning Department, and Helen Murphy, assistant to Mayor James Sheets.

Eastern Bank Partners With Beacon Asset Management

Eastern Bank Corporation recently announced its joint venture with Beacon Asset Management, a privately-owned investment counseling firm based in Boston.

Beacon Asset Management was formed as a partnership between Eastern Bank Corporation and Beacon's three principals for the purpose of providing personalized investment management services to high net worth individuals, charitable foundations, endowments and corporate retirement plans.

The three principals of Beacon Asset Management—John Beeten, president; Jay Wailes, managing director; and George Kidder Jr., director, average nearly 25 years of investment management experience.

Other officers of Beacon

Asset Management include Eileen Doherty, who serves as treasurer and vice president of operations and Michele Estey, who is vice president of client services. They average more than 19 years of experience in the financial service industry.

Beacon Asset Management is a privately-owned investment counseling firm with over $190 million in assets under management. The firm is located at 50 Milk St. in Boston and registered with the Securities Commission under the Investment Advisors Act of 1940.

First Night Plans, Art Unveiled

First Night Quincy 1999 will feature a wide range of entertainment, including the music and lights of a 1970s disco, music from the film "Titanic," Mardi Gras-style performances and more, according to event founder-chairman Michael Cheney.

Cheney, Mayor James Sheets and artist Eugene Shea unveiled Shea's art for this year's poster, program booklet and admission buttons, as well as planned activities for the seventh annual Quincy Center celebration, recently at City Hall.

Other performances will include a traditional German band, a Chinese dance troupe, Hawaiian singers, a Victorian-style musical, country music by John Lincoln Wright and Dixieland jazz.

Cheney said more than half of this year's performers and activities will be different in an attempt to draw an even larger crowd than last year's 28,000. Half the events will be for youngsters so that more families will attend, he said.

The program, like last year's, will begin with a downtown parade followed by a laser light show and a small fireworks display. A second laser show at 11:30 p.m. will be followed by midnight fireworks which will conclude the event.

A "Wild Video Dance Party," featuring disco music, will be held at the Woodward School for Girls and the "Titanic" orchestra will perform at the Adams Academy.

Returning favorites will include former Boston children's television host Rex Trailer and the Big Nazo, which combines giant puppet masks with oldies music. In addition, City Councillors Peter Kolson and Patrick McDermott again will sing, this year accompanied by a former mayor and councillor, Joseph LaRai.

Admission buttons will be sold for $5 at the city's Christmas Parade Nov. 29, $7 after that at City Hall, Stop & Shop, Dunkin' Donuts and other locations, and $10 on New Year's Eve.

For more information about First Night events or to volunteer, call 376-1071.

NQHS Open House For Middle School Students

North Quincy High School will hold an informational Open House for students in Grades 6, 7 and 8 and their parents Tuesday, Nov. 17 from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

The evening will begin in the auditorium where a brief program will be presented, followed by tours of the school led by members of the North Quincy High School Pride Committee. At each station on the tour, department heads will explain curriculum offerings in their area.

At the conclusion of the tour, refreshments will be served in the gymnasium by the North Quincy High School Parent Board. Representatives from various school clubs and sports will be present to answer questions.

Topic Winter Emergencies Hospital's 'Medical Watch'

The November "Medical Watch" program, a production of Quincy Hospital, focuses on the topic of winter emergencies.

"Medical Watch" host Kate Gifford, PA, interviews Octavio Diaz, MD, chief of Emergency Services at Quincy Hospital, on avoiding frostbite, hypothermia, carbon monoxide exposure, and asthma and heart troubles during the cold winter months. The doctor also discusses winter sports injuries and safe winter driving tips.

QHS Parent Advisory Council Meeting Nov. 12

The Quincy High School Parent Advisory Council will meet Thursday, Nov. 12 from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. in Pride Room of the high school, 52 Coddington St., Quincy Center.

All are welcome.

DOING THE WALKING FOR TWO

When a woman is expecting a baby, there usually comes a time that she can't even look down and see her feet while standing. In this case, however, out of sight should not mean out of mind, because understanding the special needs of the feet during pregnancy can help prevent painful problems. The most obvious change is that the feet grow longer. Footwear that accommodates the extra size can help a woman keep her balance, protect her lower back, and walk in comfort. A less visible change is a rise in levels of progesterone and relaxin hormones, which relax the body's ligaments. The plantar fasciae (ligaments that run lengthwise underneath the foot) loosen, leaving feet vulnerable to biomechanical abnormalities and reducing the feet's shock-absorbing ability. Luckily, most of these problems return to normal after the baby is born.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

P.S. It takes six to nine months for a woman's feet to return to normal after giving birth. Inflammation of the plantar fasciae is common.

Michelle Tran - Stylist/Colorist

Michelle arrived in America in 1988 from Vietnam as an advanced stylist. She found a warm welcome from the New England community. She speaks both Vietnamese and English fluently.

Michelle is a Quincy resident and mother of a 6 year old daughter.

Michelle started with Crew International, Boston, where she was a stylist and colorist. Then later moved onto the Newbury St. scene where she focused her skills on color and updo's. She is a very precise hair stylist and a very imaginative colorist.

Upon moving to Quincy, Michelle was quickly established as one of Quincy's top stylists. In May of this year, she joined the Eugene Thomas Salon staff.

When asked what attracted her to the Eugene Thomas Salon, Michelle says it is the motivated attitude of the staff and innovative decor. "It's truly a fun place to be."

Three NQHS Students Named AP Scholars

Three students at North Quincy High School have been named AP Scholars by the College Board in recognition of exceptional achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement (AP) Examinations.

The NQHS students who qualified for the AP Scholar Award by completing three or more AP Examinations, with grades of 3 or higher are Jacky Cheung, Stephanie Sprague and Andrea Stevens.

Approximately 23 percent of America's graduating seniors have taken one or more AP Examinations. Only about 13 percent of the more than 635,000 students who took AP Examinations in May 1998 performed at a sufficiently high level to merit such recognition.

Fr. Bill's Place Seeks Holiday Food Donations, Volunteers

Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter, is seeking donations and volunteers to help out with the holiday season.

For its Thanksgiving Community Dinner, the shelter needs a variety of food items including 50 turkeys (cooked if possible).

Volunteers also are needed to bake pies, fruit breads and desserts and delivery on or the day before Thanksgiving.

Those interested in volunteering should call Laurie at the shelter, (617) 770-3314.

For Christmas, a variety of gifts are needed for the shelter's guests (20 women and 65 to 70 men). Items should not be wrapped. Also needed are 100 large gift bags.

Call the above number for information on what gift items are needed.

Boston Residents Largest Portion Of Quincy College Student Body

Boston residents, for the second consecutive year, outnumber Quincy residents at Quincy College, announces Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, college president.

"Our proximity to the Red Line continues to be a significant marketing advantage for us," said Ryan.

Boston residents at Quincy College now total 904. The remainder of the 10 leading communities and towns are: Quincy, 824; Weymouth, 292; Braintree, 170; Randolph, 165; Milton, 76; Cambridge, 65; Hull, 54; and Kingston, 52.

In addition, the new international student population at the college has increased from 417 to 486. Students at the college come from over 50 countries.

By LIAM FITZGERALD

A disappointing day? Yes. A disappointing season? No way.

That was the sentiment Paul Bregoli shared with his North Quincy High School girls' soccer team after NQ lost to Needham, 4-2, in Monday's Division 1 South Sectional quarterfinals.

"We had a phenomenal year, the best in the history of the school," said Bregoli, who guided North to a 13-2-5 record this season. "Four years ago, we won only one game, and all the credit for our success goes to the kids."

"I'm so proud of all of them, and I told them they set the benchmark for the younger kids to reach. It was a heck of a run."

Following their first-ever tournament victory (1-0 over Weymouth last Friday), third-seeded North entered Monday's home match at Varsity Field brimming with confidence. However, the 11th-seeded Needham Rockets sent North reeling with two goals in the first nine minutes.

Needham's Michele Dukeman lofted the ball into North's goal area, but the ball deflected off the head of NQ senior co-captain stopper Dorothy Cronin, past senior co-captain goalkeeper Kristen Bowes and into the net. The goal, scored at the five-minute mark, was followed by a similar tally. Dukeman again kicked the ball into NQ's goal area, though this time her teammate, Jess Scranton collected a loose ball and scored the first of her two goals.

Meanwhile, North created a few scoring opportunities of its own, but Needham goalkeeper Sofia Cozzolino turned them away.

The Rockets (11-5-4) increased their lead to 3-0 with nine minutes left in the half, when Scranton sent the ball past Bowes.

Not about to give up on its home field, North cut the deficit when sophomore midfielder Stacy Sczesuil lifted a long, high shot that Cozzolino tipped but couldn't keep out of the net. The goal, coming with three minutes left, ignited North's supporters and gave NQ a glimmer of hope heading into the second half.

After a few early clutch saves by Bowes, the revitalized Red Raiders closed the gap to 3-2 when senior co-captain forward Betsy Stone scored her 22nd goal of the season, taking a pass from junior forward Ashley Murphy and beating Cozzolino from the left side of the goal area. The goal came 17 minutes into the half and shifted the momentum entirely in North's favor.

The visitors kept their composure, however, and scored an important insurance goal on a corner kick with 10 minutes left. Bowes got a hand on the kick, but the ball landed in front of Anne Takiesian, who tapped the ball in and gave Needham a 4-2 lead.

Now trailing by two goals again, the Red Raiders appeared to slice the deficit to one, but a goal by Stone was negated by an offside call soon after Needham's fourth tally. Unable to penetrate the Rockets' defense, the Red Raiders' valiant effort ended when the final whistle blew.

"We lost the game, but the biggest loss was the quality of kids who won't be back," said Bregoli, referring to North's nine seniors. "You're with them for four years, you watch them develop and grow and then they're gone. Every one of them did a great job and left it all on the field."

Last Friday at Varsity Field, North and Weymouth were engaged in a seesaw battle until North sophomore midfielder Kellee Conley's goal lifted the Red Raiders past the Wildcats.

Positioned at the right post of Weymouth's goal, Conley collected a loose ball and sent it past Weymouth goalkeeper Kristen Hansen. Stone was credited with an assist on the tally, which came with just over 11 minutes remaining.

"Kellee's come up big in games and did it again," said Bregoli. "The goalie came up and left the net open, and Kellee made a good shot. I told the girls that one goal would win the game and we got it."

North's Bowes continued her remarkable play, making 10 saves to record her 12th shutout of the season.

Weymouth (8-7-6), seeded 14th, turned up the pressure midway through the half, testing Bowes on numerous occasions. With 15 minutes left in the first half, Weymouth's Colleen O'Brien blasted a shot at North's goal, but Bowes leaped to tip the shot off the NORTH QUINCY MIDFIELDER Kellee Conley (5) carries the ball as Weymouth's Rebecca Aldoupolis follows in pursuit. With 11 minutes remaining, Conley broke a scoreless tie with her seventh goal of the season, lifting the host Red Raiders over the Wildcats, 1-0, last Friday in the South Sectional opener. The win was North's first-ever in postseason play.

RED RAIDER SENIOR co-captain sweeper Rachael Powers kicks the ball up the field as Needham's Kim Kelly closes in on the play. The visiting Rockets ended North's best-ever season with a 4-2 victory Monday in the Sectional quarterfinals. The Red Raiders, guided by head coach Paul Bregoli, finished with a 13-2-5 mark.

Midway through the second half, Bowes was penalized for throwing an elbow in a collision with a Weymouth player. The penalty called for Bowes to temporarily leave the game, replaced by freshman Kathryn MacRitchie. With all the momentum on Weymouth's side, MacRitchie saved a shot by Joanna Stanford and Bowes returned to the game.

Soon after, the momentum swung in North's favor as Conley scored the lone goal and North's defense, anchored by senior co-captains Rachael Powers (sweeper) and Cronin, prevented Weymouth from mounting a late comeback.

Needham Blanks Red Raiders, 4-0 Knocked Out Of Tourney, North Eyes Bright Future

With most of the players returning next season, the North Quincy High School boys' soccer team looks to use the successful 1998 campaign as a "launching pad for the future," said head coach Bob Dano.

The Red Raiders' season came to a close last Saturday, when host Needham scored three second-half goals en route to a 4-0 win in the Division 1 South Sectional opener. Despite the loss, North Quincy's coach remained optimistic about building on this fall's tournament appearance, the Red Raiders' first since the early 1980s.

"Soccer is definitely on the upward swing at North Quincy," said Dano, referring to the tournament appearances by both the Red Raider boys and girls teams. "I hope to get an other good freshman class next year and have competitive teams for the next few seasons at least."

In the loss to third-seeded Needham, the 14th-seeded Red Raiders trailed, 1-0, at the half, but a few costly miscues put the game out of reach. After leaving a Rocket wide open on the first goal, a miscommunication problem resulted in the second tally. Needham increased its lead to 3-0 when a North defender blocked a shot but was ruled behind the goal line by the referee.

"The score looks one-sided, but other than a few mistakes, it was a good game," said Dano. "We handed them their first two goals and the third came on a fluke play. By the time they scored their fourth goal, I had inserted substitutes to give them a taste of tournament play."

Wrapping up their soccer careers were North senior co-captains Kevin Walsh (midfielder) and Matt O'Mahoney (defender), along with senior goalkeeper Rob Bell and senior Mike Regan.

"The kids handled the challenge as well as they could," said Dano. "I knew the kids played their hearts out. You could tell from their reaction afterwards, how disappointed they were. They put their all into it, and I'm proud of them for what they did this season."

North Runners Earn Medals

Several North Quincy High School cross-country runners earned medals at the recent State Coaches Association Invitational held at Franklin Park in Boston.

In the freshman girls' race, North's Natalie Caron placed 12th (13:15). Teammate Linda Nguyen finished 12th (21:35) in the sophomore girls' race. NQ's Jeff Bartoloni and Brian Breslin came in second and fourth in the boys' sophomore race. Red Raider runners Lynda Wilson (sixth), Sarah Houghton (20th) and Christine Marre (46th) all won medals in the junior-senior girls' race.

North's teams will open their Division 1 tournament competition Saturday at Franklin Park. The North girls' team looks to repeat as All State qualifiers, along with Bartoloni and Breslin in the boys' race.

The top five teams and seven individuals not on those teams qualify for All State. There are four Eastern Mass. divisions, two Central and one Western. At the All State meet at Gardner Golf Course this year, there will be two divisions, each of which will contain 18 teams and 28 individuals.

Silver Lake Edges Quincy, 21-19 Presidents' Comeback Vs. Lakers Falls Short

After coming close to earning its first victory, the Quincy High School football team faces one of the Old Colony League's elite this Friday at 7 p.m. when Barnstable comes to town.

The Presidents fell to 0-8 overall, 0-5 in the OCL following a 21-19 league setback to visiting Silver Lake last Friday. The Lakers improved to 2-6, 2-4.

Meanwhile, Barnstable (6-2, 4-1) is coming off a 34-0 thrashing of Plymouth South last Friday, sparked by Stefan Gomes (three touchdowns). Gomes scored twice on passes from Tom Street, and returned a fumble 55 yards for another score. Through eight games, Gomes has compiled 12 touchdowns, including eight on passes from quarterback Mark Shedlock.

"Barnstable is a very tough team and we may have some trouble matching up with them," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella. "That Gomes is a big, strong fast kid and once he gets in the open field, he's gone."

In the loss to Silver Lake, the injury-riddled Presidents rallied on three different occasions but couldn't convert a late two-point conversion to tie the score.

"This was a game we should've won," said Chella, who was missing five starters on offense and defense due to injury. "We were in the game and scored at the end, but got stuffed on the two-point play. We played pretty well, but couldn't pull it out."

Trailing 21-13 with less than two minutes to play, Quincy quarterback Dan Kelly brought the Presidents to within two on a quarterback sneak, his second touchdown of the game. On the two-point attempt, Kelly pitched to running back DoRosario, who was tackled at the two-yard line by Brandon McPhail and Robert Walker.

On its next possession, the Lakers faced a fourth down and four at Quincy's 46 with 55 seconds remaining. Silver Lake's Billy Kingston got the first down with a seven-yard gain, sealing the victory.

Early on, the Lakers capitalized on a Quincy turnover on the second play from scrimmage. DoRosario, who rushed for 100 yards, fumbled the ball at his own 35, recovered by the Lakers' Walker. Nine plays later, Paul Goldie scored on a two-yard run and Andy Brems kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

The Presidents rebounded with a 15-play, 75-yard drive that chewed up the final 6:20 of the first quarter and the first two plays of the second. Kelly scored on a one-yard run after a clutch 12-yard pass to wide receiver Mike Lencki on a third and 9 at Silver Lake's 22.

"Danny threw the ball

very well—he had over 150 yards passing," said Chella. "We did move the ball well offensively, which was a good sign."

Silver Lake re-took the lead later in the quarter on a 74-yard run by Kingston. Brems' extra point gave the Lakers a 14-7 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, the Presidents got a fortunate bounce when a McPhail fumble landed into DoRosario's arms, and the Quincy senior returned its 22 yards for a touchdown. Kelly's point after sailed wide right and the Presidents trailed, 14-13.

On the ensuing kickoff, Silver Lake's Greg Barnes shocked Quincy with a 95-yard return for a touchdown. Two Quincy players appeared to have Barnes wrapped up at the Lakers' 25, but he escaped and scampered to the end zone. The Lakers led, 21-13, on Brems' third point after.

"We had the momentum, but that kickoff return hurt us," said Chella. "That was the turning point, because we were within a point and playing pretty well."

Once again, Kelly led the Quincy offense downfield, driving 87 yards in seven minutes. He completed passes on third and fourth down, then scored on a one-yard keeper. That was as close as Quincy would get, as Silver Lake stuffed the two-point attempt and ran out the clock.

QUINCY HIGH QUARTERBACK Dan Kelly (17), who scored two one-yard touchdowns runs, moves out of the pocket to avoid the rush of Silver Lake's Paul Goldie. The Lakers held off a late Quincy rally to post a 21-19 Old Colony League triumph last Friday night.

PRESIDENTS' SPECIAL TEAMS player Russell Mullen (22) attempts to block an extra point kick by the Lakers' Andy Brems, but arrives too late. Still in search of its first victory, Quincy (0-8) hosts OCL foe Barnstable (6-2) Friday in a 7 p.m. tilt.

Manets, Mustangs Battle For Championship Sunday

The Houghs Neck Manets and the Milton Mustangs face off in Sunday's Quincy Youth Football League championship game at 2:15 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Manets (6-1) won the East Division, while the Mustangs captured the West Division (6-1).

The final regular season standings are as follows:

East: Manets (6-1), North Quincy Apaches (5-2), Squantum Storm (1-5-1), West: Mustangs (6-1), Quincy Point Panthers (2-5) and West Quincy Elks (6-0-1).

In Sunday's action, the Apaches closed out their season with an impressive 12-0 shutout over the previously undefeated Manets. Taking a handoff at his own 4, Apache running back Ryan Farnham raced 96 yards for a TD and a 6-0

The second and third quarters were a defensive struggle as neither offense sustained any long drives. In the fourth, the Apaches added to their lead when Kevin Holleran scored on a 15-yard run. The score was set up by runs from James Coughlin and Farnham.

Apache linebacker Matt Francis and defensive end Steve Farrell sparked the defense with sacks and disrupted the Manet backfield. Defensive backs Holleran and Coughlin made several key plays and defensive linemen Jonathan Carroll, Kenny Tasney, Chris Marinelli, Dave Buttomer, John Zerigian, Pat O'Donnell and Tim Coughlin all played well.

On the offensive side, the Apache line of Bernie Stedman, Tim Chiaccio, Francis, Farrell, Carroll and Buttomer opened big holes for Coughlin and Farnham, while QB Chris Traetti also had a good game. Coaching the Apaches this season were Steve Koski, Doug Henderson and defensive coach Jim Marinelli.

In other action, the Panthers lost to the Mustangs, 20-6. Mark DaRois caught a pass from quarterback Kevin O'Donnell to put the Panthers on the board. The TD strike was O'Donnell's eighth of the season.

Andrew Picard was a standout on the Panthers' defense and teammate Dan Nichol turned in a solid two-way effort.

The previous week, the Panthers defeated the Elks, 26-0, sparked by first-half touchdowns by DaRois, Ryan Greene and Nick Cutler. In the second half, Matt Ramponi deflected a pass and teammate Chris Bolter hauled it in and raced 60 yards for a touchdown.

NQ Extends Win Streak, Moves On In Sectional

The girls' volleyball team from North Quincy High School could be playing for the Division 1 Central Sectional crown this weekend—if the Raiders extend their winning streak for a few more matches.

Following its sixth consecutive victory in last Friday's Sectional opener over Walpole, the seventh-seeded Raiders (17-5) advanced to the quarterfinals, playing at No. 2 seed Newton North (16-2) on Tuesday.

A triumph over Newton North would land NQ in the Sectional semifinals tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the winner of the No. 6 Brookline vs. Nor-3 Lincoln Sudbury match.

The Central Sectional final will be played Saturday at 7 p.m. at Medway High School.

In the tournament opener, the host Red Raiders cruised past Walpole, 15-5, 15-2, 15-1, led by the strong efforts of junior Katie Jellison (11 service aces, nine kills), senior co-captain Alexis Miranda (19 assists) and senior Angela Scott (eight kills).

"I'm very pleased with that win; it was probably our best match of the year," said North head coach Jim Rendle. "Walpole's a good team, but we just played a great match, right from the beginning. I'm also glad we didn't let up when we got a big lead, which has happened in the past."

"Katie played a great match, and Angela did as well. Alexis had a good match and Amy Jellison had a lot of assists, too. The key was our overall team play. We're not making any errors and everyone had good games. If the girls continue to play like they have, we'll be in good shape."

North QB Chris Bregoli May Return Saturday

B-R, Bessette (3 TD's) Overpower No. Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Like most teams that have faced Bridgewater-Raynham, the North Quincy High School football team had trouble containing B-R's offensive attack and lost, 41-6, to the undefeated Trojans last Saturday.

"B-R is just a better team from top to bottom," said North head coach Ken McPhee. "They're a very good team, and we didn't play well. We knew going in that it would be tough, and they are one of the best teams we've faced in recent years. They don't have any weaknesses."

Hoping to bounce back in its final tune-up before Thanksgiving, the Red Raiders (1-7 overall, 1-5 Old Colony League) host Hingham Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in a non-league tilt.

A member of the Division 3 Patriot League, Hingham has compiled a 4-4 overall record, including a 3-2 league mark. Led by the rushing of Craig Buckley (33 carries, 303 yards, four touchdowns), the Harbor-men edged Middleboro, 28-26, last Saturday.

"They're an average team, but they have a better record than us and we can't underestimate any opponent," said McPhee. "Buckley's a good back, but I don't think he's any better than (B-R's Doug) Bessette, or (Barnstable's Stefan) Gomes or (Falmouth's) Jamal Branch. We just have to play our best and hopefully pull out a win."

On the injury front, the Red Raiders may get their starting quarterback, senior co-captain Chris Bregoli, back at the helm. Sidelined for the past three games with a shoulder injury, Bregoli will test the shoulder during the week and if it has healed sufficiently he will play, according to McPhee.

"If Chris is O.K., then he'll get a shot, since he's our starter," he said. "Max has done a great job while he's been in there and gained a lot of experience as a sophomore. He's a hard work worker who wants to get better, and will."

In the defeat at Bridgewater-Raynham (8-0, 5-0), the Red Raiders fell behind on two four-yard touchdown runs by star tailback Doug Bessette in the first quarter. Before halftime, the Trojans built a 21-0 lead on a 19-yard touchdown run by Darnell Kuykendall.

The hosts added to their lead in the third quarter, on a 10-yard touchdown scamper by Bessette and a one-yard run by Jason LeClerc. North got on the board in the third, on a five-yard run by senior tailback Kevin Shaw. A five-yard touchdown run by B-R's David Noone in the fourth closed out the scoring.

"Shaw ran pretty well and picked up some tough yards, as did Brian Depula," said McPhee. "Jody Bravo made a tough catch over the middle and Frank McNamara was his usual self, making plays all over the field. They were just too much for us, like they have been for everyone they've faced this season."

NORTH STARTING QUARTERBACK Chris Bregoli (right) may return to action Saturday against Hingham after missing the last three games with a shoulder injury. Filling in for the senior co-captain has been sophomore Max Repoff, who has impressed head coach Ken McPhee with his poise and determination on the field.

Woodward Soccer Picks Up Two Wins

The Woodward School soccer team improved its record to 8-4-1 in the Independent Girls Conference with victories over Chapel Hill and Commonwealth.

In the win over Chapel Hill, the game remained scoreless until Chapel Hill scored 20 minutes into the second half. Woodward sophomore Caitlin Golden tied the game with four minutes to play. Senior captain Jessica Boothby notched the game-winning goal two minutes later, assisted by senior captain Jackie O'Meara. Junior captain Danielle Gatto collected 10 saves and junior midfielder Janet McNamara and junior defender Jackie McKim played outstanding games.

Against Commonwealth, Woodward trailed, 1-0, until Golden tied the game 16 minutes into the first half, assisted by freshman forward Kathleen Hester and Boothby. Boothby netted the game-winning goal 19 minutes into the second half and added another goal, assisted by Hester. Hester scored Woodward's fourth goal. Senior captain Audrey Ferguson played strong defense for the winners.

In a 2-0 loss to Montrose, Woodward fell behind six minutes into the game and could not get on the board. Montrose scored again in the second half to seal the win. Gatto played well in defeat, making 17 saves, and Ferguson and McKim turned in strong defensive efforts.

THE THREE T'S OF TIRES

Consumers who know how to interpret the alphanumeric code on the side wall of a tire can avail themselves of some important information when it comes time to make a purchase. The most important designations are the traction, temperature, and treadwear grades. High traction translates into superior grip on the road, especially in wet weather. Those who drive for long periods at highway speeds will also want a high temperature rating. Reading traction and temperature grades is as simple as A, B, C - with an 'A' indicating the highest performance. Treadwear ratings indicate how long a tire can be expected to last. They are indicated by a three-digit number stamped on the sidewall. A tire with a rating of 200 should last twice as long as one graded 100, and a tire rated at 350 should last 3 1/2 times as long.

Don't neglect your car. It represents a sizeable investment. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled and can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent running condition whether that means something as simple as rotating or changing your tires, to complex engine work. We're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) and 'A' Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer.

HINT: The last three digits of the code that starts with DOT on the side of the tire indicate the week and year that it was made. Thus, 316 indicates that the tire was manufactured in the 31st week of 1996.

Sheets Confident Ships Will Be Built At Yard

Jaroch said even if the deal with Intermare somehow fell through, MHI has "12 to 15 inquiries" with other foreign shipowners, some of whom would not need loan guarantees from MARAD. He said he is still confident the Intermare deal will be approved, providing the two firms raise the necessary $40 million.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond, whose ward includes the shipyard, said he doubts MARAD would approve $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the modernization of the yard—which it did last December—and then not approve the guarantees to build tankers at the site.

Raymond added that even in a worst-case situation—that is, if the Intermare deal fell through—the city would still have a cleaner, more modern facility at the shipyard that came about at little cost to the city.

value of the property ($102,000) which did not include handicapped accessibility.

Raymond said because of this, the city was denied extra building fees. And future customers were denied handicapped accessibility.

Many abutters told of noisy customers from Point Pub, drug usage and parking problems.

Jake Comer, spokesman for St. Joseph's Parish Council said the previous pub "had a history" and emphatically said, "we do not want a liquor establishment on this site." This drew applause from the audience.

Referring to a statement by Atty. Louis Cassis representing Porter House in which he said Barrett could "open tomorrow" even without the new owners Bridget and Patrick McCarthy, Raymond said proposed Cassis and said based on the misrepresentation by Barrett, they "can't open tomorrow".

Cassis told the board that Barrett could not attend the hearing because he was meeting with the Boston License Board.

Chairman Joseph Shea suggested the building be sold for something else and said during the 17 months that the business was closed "nobody called and said hurry up and open" and said he was "comfortable with it not being there."

After an abutter spoke of drugs still being in the Quincy Point area, Cassis said if that's so, it isn't the fault of the Point Pub.

Even before the vote was taken, Cassis said he would appeal.

Vehicle Damaged Near Quincy, Calif. Morrill Escapes Injury In Mountain Rockslide

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Bill Morrill, continuing on his cross-country trip to visit the other Quincy, has escaped injury in a rockslide in the northeast mountains of California.

But he damaged his 1955 Ford club wagon, stranding him in Quincy, Calif., until the vehicle can be repaired.

In a telephone report from Quincy, Calif. Monday, Morrill said the rockslide incident occurred Friday.

"I ran over a hunk of rock," he said. "It was either run over the rock or run off the mountain. I chose to run over the rock."

Morrill managed to make it to Quincy, which he was near at the time.

"I damaged the front end," he said. "It needs to be repaired. But I have to wait for the parts. They have to be flown in."

And there, in Quincy, Calif., he has found out that it really is a small world.

The service manager at the Ford dealership turned out to be Bud Sherman, formerly of Bowes Ave., Germantown.

"Can you imagine that!," Morrill said. "That's only about three streets from Beebe Road, where I live."

BILL MORRILL

Morrill said Sherman told him he and his wife moved to California in 1965. Sherman's grandfather, Winthrop Sherman, was a longtime civil engineer here.

"Quincy, Calif. is small but beautiful," Morrill said. "It's nestled in the middle of a valley surrounded by mountains. It has a gorgeous museum and there is a lot of logging around here."

"If I didn't live in Quincy, Mass., I would want to live in Quincy, Calif."

But he was a little disappointed. He learned that they pronounce it Quin-see and not Quin-zee as he had been told before leaving on the trip.

Earlier he was in Quincy, Ore.

"Not much there," he reports. "The only thing in the business district is The Quincy Store—a combination gas station and grocery store."

When Mount St. Helens erupted several years ago, volcanic ash blew into and over Quincy, Ore.

"They tell me it was so bad," Morrill said, "that it covered their automobiles. They had to put nylons and panty hose on the air cleaners of the cars so they wouldn't stall."

Morrill hoped to leave Quincy, Calif. by Monday or Tuesday to get ahead of an approaching snowstorm.

He will then head for San Antonio, Texas en route to Quincy, Fla. He had already ascertained that there is no Quincy, Texas by calling ahead to police.

He hopes to reach Florida by the end of this week and then head up to New Hampshire.

"I know Quincy, N.H. is only a bog area but I want to see it," he said. "I saw Quincy, Kan. which is nothing but a western ghost town so I feel I should see Quincy, N.H."

Since leaving Quincy Oct. 20, he has visited 12 Quincys across the country.

"I should get home around Nov. 20," he said. "But that depends on how long it takes to get out of Quincy, Calif."

Rev. Msgr. Mark Keohane, 96 Former Pastor At Star Of The Sea Church

A memorial Mass for the Rev. Msgr. Mark H. Keohane, 96, of West Roxbury, former pastor of Star of the Sea Church in Squantum, will be celebrated Dec. 6 at 11:30 a.m. at St. Bartholomew Church, Needham.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Bartholomew Church.

Msgr. Keohane died Nov. 1 at home.

In 1970, he was named pastor of Star of the Sea Church, where he served for 14 years until his retirement.

He was the eldest priest of the Archdiocese of Boston and was ordained a priest by William Cardinal O'Connell in 1929 at Holy Cross Cathedral. Msgr. Keohane also served in Franklin, Somerville and Dorchester.

In September 1952 Richard Cardinal Cushing asked Msgr. Keohane to start St. Bartholomew Parish. While he was in Needham he was chaplain of the fire department.

Born in Roxbury, he attended St. John Grammar School. He graduated from Boston College High School in 1920 and Boston College in 1924 before entering the seminary.

He is survived by many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

Funeral arrangements were by the Robert J. Lawler & Crosby Funeral Home, West Roxbury.

Donations may be made to The Etrusco Association Inc., 1 Common St., Scituate, MA 02066.

Richard C. Perrin, 50 Chef's Assistant For 10 Years

A funeral Mass for Richard C. Perrin, 50, of Brockton, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Nov. 6 at Sacred Heart Church.

Mr. Perrin died Nov. 2 at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston.

He had been working as a chef's assistant at the veterans center in Brockton for 10 years.

Born in Boston, he lived in Quincy most of his life before moving to Brockton 20 years ago. He graduated from North Quincy High School in 1966.

He was a former Cub Scout and Boy Scout and a member of the Sacred Heart Youth Organization.

He served in the Marines during the Vietnam War, earning the National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal with two stars, the Combat Action Ribbon and the Presidential Unit Citation.

He is survived by his mother, Anne M. (Carnell) Perrin of Quincy; two brothers, Jack D. Perrin of Alaska and Kenneth W. Perrin of Hudson; a nephew and several cousins.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, MA 02171.

Mary J. Silva, 101

A funeral Mass for Mary J. (King) Silva, 101, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Mrs. Silva died Nov. 4 in Quincy Hospital.

Born in Ireland, her parents sent her to live with an uncle and aunt in Hingham at age 12. She moved to Quincy 70 years ago.

Her parents never emigrated, but her late sister, Bridget, and late brother, John eventually also came to live in the United States.

In May 1997, more than 100 people, including Mayor James Sheets, celebrated her 100th birthday at the Custom House Restaurant.

A fan of the Boston Celtics and Boston Red Sox who enjoyed cooking, she was an avid newspaper reader, especially The Quincy Sun, The Boston Herald, and The Patriot Ledger.

Wife of the late Manuel S. Silva, she is survived by two sons, Daniel K. Silva and Richard M. Silva, both of Quincy; a daughter, Robert E. Silva of Quincy; four grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

A private funeral service was held for Ernest Olson, 28, of Quincy.

Mr. Olson died Nov. 3 at the Boston Medical Center after a brief illness.

He was an apprentice plumber.

Born in Quincy, he was raised and educated in Hingham and had been a Quincy resident for the last 10 years.

He is survived by his parents, Ernest G. and Nancy M. (Hoelschen) Olson Jr. of Hingham; two sisters, Julie Olson of Hull and Amy Olson of Quincy; and a friend, Theresa Banks of Quincy.

Burial was private.

Funeral arrangements were by the Downing Cottage Funeral Chapel, Hingham.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701-4688.

Sally Moscardelli, 91 Administrative Assistant; Secretary

A funeral Mass for Sally Moscardelli, 91, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday at St. John the Baptist Church.

Miss Moscardelli died Nov. 6 at home after a brief illness.

She was an administrative assistant for Stone & Webster in Boston, she worked for the company for 10 years before retiring in 1983. She formerly worked as a secretary for 30 years for Bethlehem Steel and General Dynamics at the Fore River shipyard.

Born in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, she came to the United States as a child. She attended Quincy schools and graduated from Quincy High School in 1932.

She was a longtime member of the South Shore Country Club in Hingham and the Quincy Art Center, now the Quincy Art Association.

She is survived by a sister, Edith Trubiano of Quincy; and several nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Drive, P.O. Box 859060, Braintree, MA 02185.

Paul V. Leonard, 64 Boston Gas. Co. Meter Reader

A funeral Mass for Paul V. "Rocky" Leonard, 64, of Quincy, was celebrated Nov. 7 at St. John's Church.

Mr. Leonard died Nov. 3 at Milton Hospital.

He worked as a meter reader for the Boston Gas Co. for 45 years, retiring in 1998.

Born and raised in Dorchester, he moved to Quincy 36 years ago.

He was a member of the AFL-CIO and the Quarter Century Club.

He served in the Army from 1953 to 1955, earning the National Defense Service Medal in Korea.

He is survived by his wife, Catherine M. (McCue) Leonard of Quincy; two sons, Paul R. Leonard of Westwood and Kevin K. Leonard of West Yarmouth; two daughters, Denise M. Friedeborn of Randolph and Carolyn A. Leonard of Quincy; a brother, Robert J. Leonard of Hull; a daughter, Susan M. Frost of Stoughton; and five grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, Research Division, South Regional Center, 1115 W. Chestnut St., Suite 301, Brockton, MA 02401 or to the Brader Willi Syndrome Association, Suite 6, 5700 Midright Pass Rd., Sarasota, FL 34242.

Helen G. Ciliberto, 72

A private funeral service for Helen Granville (Harrington) Ciliberto, 72, of Quincy, was held Monday at the Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Mrs. Ciliberto died Nov. 6 at Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

Born in Boston, she lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy 30 years ago.

Wife of the late Dominic F. Ciliberto, she is survived by two daughters, Kathleen Southerland of Plymouth and Karen A. Parlee of Braintree; 13 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. She was the mother of the late Michael J. Ciliberto.

Funeral arrangements were by the Mortimer N. Peck Funeral Home, Braintree.

Elynore M. Nocher, 78

A funeral Mass for Elynore M. (Haley) Nocher, 78, of Quincy, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 9 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Mrs. Nocher died Nov. 6 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

A homemaker, she previously worked at the World's Fair in New York and enjoyed playing squash and oil painting flowers on trays.

She also enjoyed boating with her husband and swam at Tenean Beach. She was the winner of many swimming meets.

Born in Boston, Mrs. Nocher had lived in Pittsfield before moving to Quincy 48 years ago. She also summered in the Brant Rock section of Marshfield. Wife of the late Joseph "Joe" Nocher, she is survived by a son, Robert J. Nocher Sr. of Plymouth; a daughter, Melissa Jo Cordle of Quincy; a brother, Robert Haley of Weymouth; four grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Visiting hours were scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, 295 Devonshire St., Fourth Floor, Boston, MA 02110.

City To Receive $7,063 Fire Education Grant

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin announce Quincy will receive a $7,063.67 Student Awareness Fire Education (SAFE) grant for Fiscal Year 1999.

SAFE grants are awarded directly to municipalities in the Commonwealth.

"The awards process is very competitive with 215 communities participating, a 10 percent increase from last year," said Mariano.

The Executive Office of Public Safety is responsible for administering the grant program. The program, now in its fourth year, teaches children what to do in case of fire and how to prevent them.

"Over the past three years, it has been estimated 42 children were saved or saved a loved one because of training and activities they learned in this program," said Bellotti.

The SAFE Advisory Board judged the award amounts based on a competitive and component factor. The first criteria is a competitive component review of the grant proposal, which develops a scored rating. The second is a base component factor, which provides funding for all applicant communities and is based on population size.

"The selection process guarantees that all participants receive funding, while those with successful programs earn additional funds through their scored rating," said Tobin.

"The Legislature allocated $1,078,666 in the Fiscal Year 1999 Budget for SAFE grants," Morrissey.

Squantum Air Station Beechwood Topic

Beechwood on the Bay is seeking aviation history buffs who remember the Squantum Naval Air Station.

The Aviation History Info Center at Beechwood has planned a special meeting for Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 7 p.m. entitled, "Squantum Naval Air Station Remembered." Beechwood is located at 400 East Squantum St., Quincy.

The air base chapter of Aviation History began in 1917, according to Sharon Beals, Beechwood's executive director and founder of the Aviation History Info Center. Although it was during World War I (1914-1945) that the developed Naval Air Station developed and flourished, it was in 1917 that the U.S. government initially acquired the 631 acres of New Squantum. The land had had previous aviation use dating back as far as the 1910-12 aeromets.

Following the early aeromets the Massachusetts Naval Militia erected a small wooden hangar there and had operated a small training field. It was on May 4, 1917, that the militia station had acquired for use as an air training school. Earle Spencer commanded the school (his wife later became, in her third marriage, the Duchess of Windsor). When the training school moved to Virginia the Squantum base continued as a seaplane patrol base (one of many along the coast until 1923).

The History Center's Nov. 18 meeting will focus on two pre-base chapters, the first beginning in 1923 with the arrival of Richard E. Byrd (the future Admiral Byrd of Polar fame) and the second chapter beginning in the 1930s under the leadership of Commander John J. Shea.

The Aviation History Info Center, located at the site of Quincy's early aviation history, was established in 1994.

All meetings are free and open to the public, but reservations are necessary. The center encourages aviation history buffs to attend and contribute.

For reservations or more information, call (617) 471-5712.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Extra drive plus common sense bring career gains. Despite a run-in with a friend, social prospects brighten by the middle of the week. Charm and friendliness enhance your position with high-ups.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Judgment is good on the job and you'll have luck in establishing extra credit. The weekend favors romance and leisure activities. You're not tongue-tied when it comes to expressing romantic sentiments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Financial gain is likely. You'll accomplish more than usual at work. Later, you'll enjoy relaxing moments with a loved one. You may take up a new hobby or derive extra pleasure from an existing one.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Unexpected news comes from a relative. After clearing up odds and ends at home, you should go out for a night on the town this weekend. It's a busy time with much gadding about and many phone messages.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Buying something on a lay-away plan is favored. Still, cut down on cash outlay. Social life surpasses your expectations this week. Don't be a stick in the mud.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Private business meetings are favored. You may be drawn romantically to someone from afar or of a different background. Many friends get in touch with you for weekend social outings.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) New friends seem more understanding than others you've known for a long time. New projects make you enthusiastic about work. A child may require bolstering.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Disappointment about a job concern shouldn't keep you from taking a chance on this week's new offerings. A trip may be postponed. Don't brood about a problem.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A family member may voice disapproval about a romantic interest. Make those domestic changes you've been contemplating. Don't give up at the first sign of an obstacle.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A financial worry shouldn't keep you from taking advantage of an offer for a good time. An unexpected invitation may arrive for a surprise party this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Self-doubt is your chief obstacle now. Take a chance on a new project. Be close-mouthed about recent career developments. Don't ask for favors you know a friend can't deliver.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Don't approach higher-ups with new ideas yet. Still, you can continue to work on your presentation. New friends come into your life. Some early weekend blues will dissipate.

Package Store Gets Warning From License Board

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
Although the Dollar Saver package store on 321 Quincy Shore Drive will be leaving there and replaced by CVS, owner Barry Levine came in for a warning by the License Board Tuesday for opening the store on Sundays and hiring inexperienced workers.

Chairman Joseph Shea said "one more incident and the license will be suspended or revoked."

According to Det. Sgt. Robert Perchard, liquor inspector, the liquor store was open on Sunday and customers were present.

Barry Levine who was not present on a Sunday in October, when police were called because the door of the store was open.

Police said his brother Bob was present along with some customers.

They also observed that young people were purchasing cigarettes.

Levine was disputing the fact that the store was open for business, but instead he said "employees were cleaning up."

Police Chief Thomas Frane said there will be "extra vigilant" in observing the site, while Shea said he was concerned with the store being run down because of the CVS venture, and will "monitor it very closely."

Shea told Levine he would have to re-locate the store in order to hold the liquor license.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers said he would have to find out the actual date of the takeover by CVS before any action is taken by the license board.

According to Levine, he was told CVS would take over by the end of this year, however, he said they now said it would be early 1999.

Shea said he plans to call CVS as to the actual date of the start of the renovation.

The board continued the matter to a date uncertain.

The site is the former location of the Best Buy.

Flood Appoints Transition Committee

Sheriff Jack Flood has appointed a Transition Committee to ensure the orderly transfer of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office to the new administration on Jan. 6, 1999.

Flood has named four long-time Sheriff's Office administrators to the Transition Committee: Joseph McParland, the sheriff's chief legal counsel, Special Sheriff Josephine Shea; Supt. Patrick Bradley and Supt. Peter Perroncello. McParland will serve as the committee chairman.

"The Transition Committee will facilitate a smooth transfer of the administration of the Sheriff's Office," Flood said.

A letter sent Friday to Rep. Michael Bellotti informs him of the administrators who will oversee the transition. The Transition Committee will be available to brief the incoming administration on the operation and status of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

According to state law, Sheriff Flood's term ends on the first Wednesday in January.

"It has been my privilege to serve as sheriff of Norfolk County, and I intend to ensure an orderly transfer on Jan. 6," Flood said.

Bellotti, the state representative from Quincy who represents the First Norfolk District, defeated Flood in the Nov. 3 state election.

Quincy Pays Tribute To Veterans On Their Special Day

CHARLES SWEENEY, former School Committeeman and a veteran of World War II, was the keynote speaker at the city's Veterans Day ceremonies. He told those in attendance to honor veterans for sacrificing so much to provide Americans with their freedom.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS brought the city's greetings and paid his own personal tribute to veterans.

Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

EPILEPSY

Epilepsy is NOT a disease; it is symptomatic of a neurological disorder that may be caused by disease, birth trauma, head injury, or interrupted circulation to the brain, such as stroke. Most often, the cause is not known. The brain functions using a complex network of electrical relays. An epileptic seizure is caused by an abnormal electrical discharge from a group of brain cells. The type of seizure that occurs may depend on where in the brain the abnormal discharge occurs. Though there are over 30 seizure types, a new internationally accepted system of classification (replacing the familiar terms "grand mal" and "petit mal") divides seizures into two major classes: "partial" and "generalized," with a number of sub-classifications. With the proper medication, the effect of such conditions can be greatly reduced, if not eliminated. But you really need to make sure you are receiving the best medical care around, and that's where we come in. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we listen to your concerns. We are affiliated with Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. Please call us at 617-472-2550; office hours by appointment.

P.S. If you witness a seizure, contrary to old wives' tales, do NOT put anything into the person's mouth.

3 Quincys -- Right Here

Did you know that according to a famous map maker, there are three Quincys in Massachusetts? And, all three are right here.

Peter Kenney, who was Mayor Frank McCauley's executive secretary, has been following Bill Morrill's cross country trip to visit the other Quincys and was wondering just exactly how many of them there are. The U.S. Postal Service lists 12.

KENNEY

Checking a computer software feature called "Tripmaker" put out by Rand McNally Maps, he was surprised to find: Quincy, Mass., Quincy Center, Mass. and Quincy Point, Mass.

All three are listed as separate communities which vacationers might like to visit.

Kenney thought he had also found one in Iowa not listed by the Postal Service.

We passed that information along to Morrill on the road who checked it out and reports that somebody must have made a spelling mistake on the map.

"It's Quincy, Iowa, not Quincy," says Morrill.

Kenney, incidentally, was in Seattle and Bellevue, Wash., last summer where his son, Michael, is doing hospital clinical work for a doctorate in physical therapy.

They stopped off at a street fair in Bellevue. Kenney was wearing a "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" t-shirt.

And someone remarked: "You're all the way from Quincy, Mass."

The shirt doesn't say "Mass." So Kenney asked the man: "How do you know it's Quincy, Mass.?"

And, the man replied: "That's the only Quincy I know."

Kenney thought that was interesting considering all the other Quincys including Quincy, Wash. which Morrill has visited.

Morrill, who left Oct. 20, returns to his favorite Quincy this week.

CHARLES McINTYRE has left the District Attorney's office to enter private law practice with a well-known Dorchester firm.

McINTYRE

McIntyre, a Democrat, left a couple of weeks before the state election with high praise for his boss, Atty. Jeffrey Locke. "He is fair, hard-working and professional," McIntyre says.

McIntyre served in the Narcotics Unit for four years and was selected as "Prosecutor of the Year" last year.

He has joined the firm of Finneran, Byrne, Dreschler and O'Brien. That's Finneran as in House Speaker Tom Finneran.

McIntyre, the son of late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, made his own political debut in 1993 finishing a strong runner-up in the City Council at-large race. Will he return to the city political scene--or make a possible state office bid?

"Well," he says, "entering private practice frees me up as a possible future candidate. I'll have to think about it."

THOSE OF US who were fortunate to have known him were saddened by the death last week of Donald MacDonald, retired Quincy High School teacher and assistant principal. And one of the outstanding ones.

I think my class was his first Problems of Democracy class at QHS and he made it interesting. Years later we used to kid him that our class broke him in at QHS.

Physically, he was a big man and no one gave him any guff. But he was really a gentle giant with a genuine and giant interest in the welfare of his students.

A World War II veteran, he wrote a book--sprinkled throughout with humor--on his experiences at Anzio Beach in 1944. The book with a tongue-in-cheek title "My Buttons Are In The Way" was published in 1981. He wrote a sequel later.

And, although ill, he was determined to finish a third book on his experiences as a teacher. His friend and former teacher Harold Crowley is putting the final editing touches to it.

"Don encouraged me to become a teacher," says Crowley. "And he was always there to advise and help me. He was my inspiration."

Your's and many others, Harold.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE Vice Chairwoman Linda Stice recently observed a birthday and she doesn't mind saying which one: 50th.

STICE

And, she plans to celebrate that big milestone in a big way. Her husband, Ken Tarabelli, gave her a special present: a gift certificate for her first flying lesson.

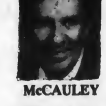

"I've always wanted to learn to fly," she says. "And now I am going to finally start. I will take that lesson at Norwood."

And, then continuing the celebration she plans to run in a half-marathon at Disney World in January.

As a warm-up for the real one in Boston.

Happy birthday, Linda. Go for it!

VERY LITTLE SEEMS to get by Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley, especially when it comes to elections.

McCAULEY

McCauley, a political historian, picked up on an item here last week regarding former WJDA news editor Herb Fontaine and the Quincy vote in the state election.

Fontaine noted that 1,231 of the 1,789 registered voters in Ward 1, Precinct 1 (Merrymount School) and called it an "impressive 75 percent."

McCauley says Fontaine should check his arithmetic. "A good turnout," says McCauley, "but 69 percent and not 75 percent." (He's a stickler, Herb.)

The turnout in the city was 56 percent.

The highest single precinct was Ward 3, Precinct 4 (Wollaston School) with 73 percent, according to McCauley. Second highest, he says, was Ward 6, Precinct 5 (Squantum School) with 72 percent. Ward 1, Precinct 1 with 69 percent was third, he says.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1913 REAL PHOTO postcard view of Faxon Road in North Quincy. The view is from its intersection with Edwin Street looking toward the Parker School. The two houses on the right were destroyed about 50 years ago when a plane from the Squantum Naval Air Station crashed into them. The pilot was attempting an emergency landing in O'Neill Field that is now the site of the Atlantic Middle School.

Let's Put The MCAS Test Scores To Good Use

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Shortly, the results of the MCAS testing will be made public so that school systems and parents across the state can see just what public education is doing as we prepare to cross over the threshold into the 21st century.

I certainly hope the test scores won't be viewed as simply a pass-fail event. Quincy needs to know where it stands in the classroom. We can take the posted results as a challenge rather than a roadblock. The results should be used as a teaching tool. I am confident that Quincy will fare well when the scores are released but every school system should always be seeking improvement, not the status quo.

The City of Quincy has an excellent public school system. It is meeting the challenge of preparing all our children for the future. The system is also doing a great job educating the growing non-English-speaking community. A school system is the building block of society.

Our children get a good education here in this city. I've watched my daughter grow and I've watched her learn. Squantum School provided her with a superb elementary education and Atlantic Middle School continues on this educational process. Good teachers and active parents don't fear the MCAS scores.

The Education Reform Act has changed many things but real classroom learning is the same today as yesterday. It is a partnership between educators, parents and students. The only concern I really have is a seemingly total obsession with a narrowing view of what constitutes classroom learning. How many children sat in Quincy classrooms "studying" their subjects while John Glenn and his crew lifted off into space?

I remember when John Glenn became the first American astronaut to go into orbit. We were taken out of our eighth grade classroom to watch it live in the TV room at my grammar school. In 1962, teachers knew the educational importance of that moment but when John Glenn recently went back up into space after 36 years, my daughter had to wait until she got home from school to see the liftoff on TV.

Watching TV can sometimes can educational. It isn't always "Saved By the Bell." I applaud the Quincy Public School system. In my years as a school-aged parent, I have seen first-hand the hard rock and dedication of our teacher. Their hard work is paying off. I watch my daughter progressing in school and know her road to knowledge started back on her first day in kindergarten when she boarded that yellow school bus for Squantum School.

Let's await the MCAS test scores and put them to good use. As good as we are, we can always be better, eh?

All Veterans Should Be Recognized

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In all the years I have attended Veteran's Day parades and Memorial Day events and listened to masters of ceremonies talk about the sacrifices our men and women have made in all our wars, not one speaker has ever asked the veterans who were present and who invaded Normandy on D-

Day, June 6, 1944 to stand to be recognized.

This also holds true for the brave Marines and soldiers who invaded Guadalcanal, Iwo Jima, Saipan and Okinawa. These are the men who took the brunt of the fire and were either killed or severely wounded.

A tribute should also be paid to John Donlon of Quincy, a D-Day veteran.

Lastly, why hasn't the master of ceremonies in Quincy ever mentioned the names of the five Medal of Honor recipients?

In addition, no one brought up the World War II statue that will be erected in Quincy. Mayor James Sheets should be commended for his efforts.

Anderson To Be Reimbursed In Plan E Court Case

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said he would submit an appropriation for $1,700, reimbursing Councillor Carl Anderson for court costs incurred by him 10 years ago. Anderson was acquitted by the court. He was charged with violating the relationship between manager and City Council under the Plan E form of government.

Della Chiesa's appropriation came after the city council voted unanimously to support the reimbursement. Earlier in the year the legislation was passed, allowing for the payment.

MUNICIPAL PAY RAISE CONSIDERED

Councillor James McCormack, chairman of the Ordinance Committee, said that city employees could expect a pay raise this year, but not the anticipated $800 boost. McCormack's comments came following a closed door meeting of the council in the mayor's office.

While there were no votes in the meeting, it was the feeling of the committee that the taxpayers could not afford the $1.4 million needed for the $800 raise.

Lt. Governor-Elect Francis Bellotti, who represented employee groups on salary fights, spoke in favor of a raise for the police and fire department personnel.

CITY FIGHTS ISLAND DUMP

City Solicitor Douglas Randall filed a bill in equity to block the operation of a dump on Gallop's Island in Dorchester Bay. Randall said that the John Coleman Construction Company lacked the necessary permits to operate the dump.

The town of Weymouth was expected to join with Quincy in fighting the dump because of the pollution of the bay that could result from the disposal operations.

'Quincy's Legacy' Book Debuts At Historical Society Sunday

"Quincy's Legacy: Topics in Four Centuries of Massachusetts History," the Quincy Historical Society's new book on local history, will make its debut at a special publication party and reception Sunday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

The festivities will offer a foretaste of Thanksgiving and the holidays and provide an opportunity to obtain copies of the book at a reduced cost.

"Quincy's Legacy" draws on articles originally published in the society's "Quincy History" periodical and arranges them into a general history of Quincy from the 17th to the 20th centuries. The principal author is H. Hobart Holly, late historian of the society and the book, which covers a wide range of subjects, serves as a memorial to him.

The book will be available at the publication party at a price of $6.95 for Historical Society members and $7.95 for non-members. After that, the book will retail for $8.95 a copy, although members will be able to purchase it at the society's museum shop for $7.95.

Mrs. Virginia Holly and several of the authors will attend the party and will be available to autograph copies. In addition, the society will have presentations about the book and an illustrated presentation on Quincy history, as well as a preview of exhibit plans on Quincy history.

Refreshments will be available. For more information, call (617) 773-1144.

NOTHING SWEET ABOUT IT

"Ah, sugar, sugar..." go fever, and chills. Osteomyelitis, or infection of the bone For the more than 10 million people with diabetes in this country, foot problems are a major cause of visits to the doctor, and many of those visits are related to the level of sugar in the blood. High blood sugar makes the body more susceptible to infection by crippling the white blood cells' ability to fight it off. Since the feet are prime targets for injury (bumps, bruises, cracked skin, etc.) the feet are frequently the site of problems for the diabetic patient. Cellulitis, or infection of the skin, may occur, accompanied by redness, swelling,

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Joanne's Special Sauce

It was a balmy Sunday and we were winterizing our back yard, storing a screen house and all that good summer stuff when we got a phone call from my brother John and wife Anita inviting us to have coffee and pastry at their house.

It was there while talking to our nephew's mother-in-law Joanne that I received today's recipe for tomato sauce.

This sauce has a bit of history to according to Joanne. It seems, that years ago, ladies of the night would make this sauce before going to work. It would simmer for hours so that it would be ready when their husbands returned from work.

Putanesca Sauce

1 medium onion
3 cloves of garlic
1/2 cup small capers
1/2 cup anchovies

2 tablespoons red pepper flakes
1/2 cup sliced black olives crushed tomatoes
basil, parsley, oregano
3 tablespoons olive oil

Saute the garlic and onion in the hot oil. Add the tomatoes with the rest of the ingredients. Simmer for 1 to 2 hours depending on the amount made. Serve over linguine (or a favorite pasta) and of course grated cheese.

(Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing recipes that have been printed in The Quincy Sun.

Teen Get-Away Dances Set For Nov. 21, Jan. 30

Two Saturday night dances will be held by the Teen Get-Away Nov. 21 and Jan. 30 at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center. Admission is $4. The dances will run from 8 to 11 p.m. Soda will be available for 50¢.

Stephen Golden has been hired as the new program director of the Teen Get-Away. Golden, a former history teacher at North Quincy High School, presently is a special education teacher at the Higashi School in Randolph.

Executive Director JoAnn Bragg said, "Steve is a down-to-earth person who interacts well with our members. He is a real asset to our staff. Steve provides leadership and is an excellent role model for our young people. We look forward to a long working relationship."

The Teen Get-Away is designed as a place where Quincy's young people can socialize with their friends in a safe, supervised recreational environment. Members are asked to pay $2 each time they participate, except for dances, which cost $4. Members must be a Quincy resident, in Grades 6-12, and sign an agreement to be substance and violence free.

On Fridays, the center is open from 7 to 10 p.m. at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston. Participants can choose to play basketball or volleyball, listen to music, play bumper pool or video arcade games, Play Station and an assortment of other games, or watch TV or a movie in the Teen Lounge.

On Saturdays, the center is open at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center, from 8 to 11 p.m. Teens can swim, play basketball, volleyball, wallyball, ping pong, floss ball or floor hockey, listen to music, or play pool.

For more information, call Bragg at 471-3822.

ENC To Participate In Book Collection Nov. 21

Best Buddies at Eastern Nazarene College will participate in a national day of community service Saturday, Nov. 21.

The fourth annual Best Buddies Book Blowout is a book collection drive to promote literacy in local communities. All books collected will be given to local charities.

Best Buddies International is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) dedicated to enhancing the lives of people with mental retardation by providing opportunities for socialization and employment.

"The Best Buddies Book Blowout is a chance for people with mental retardation to not only be on the receiving end, but to take an active role in giving back to their communities," said Anthony Shriver, founder and president of Best Buddies International.

This is the second year for Best Buddies at Eastern Nazarene College. For more information on Best Buddies, contact Thomas Pitot, ENC College Buddy director and for information on the Book Blowout, contact Kim Civiello, president of ENC's Student Association of Social Workers.

COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY

UPGRADING YOUR 386/486 OR PENTIUM 75 TO TODAY'S PENTIUM II TECHNOLOGY

When the family, business, government and educator purchased what each of us thought was the ultimate computer configuration package as far back as seven years ago, we assumed that we were all set.

Now the technology has progressively increased with faster connection requirements to the internet, higher quality graphics requiring more memory, better video card capability, larger storage to handle more efficient software programs, faster computer speed to use more than one software package at the same time, and year 2000 compliance.

You can trade in your old box, possibly keep your monitor, keyboard, mouse and some of the components in your system box, and replace it with: Intel Pentium II 333MHz CPU, 64MB SDRAM Memory, 8MB i740 Intel Chipset Video Card, 100MHz Bus Speed Pentium II Mainboard, 32x CD-ROM, Intel 440BX Chipset, 4.3GB Hard Drive, 56k Internal Fax/Modem and/or a Network Card, ATX Mid-Tower Case and Windows 98.

If you have any questions or want configuration advice, call 479-0038, fax 479-3261 or email john@calincorp.com. The Cain Corporation (TCC), 165 Beale Street, Quincy.

South Shore Chamber of Commerce president Ronald Zoolek "is still taking care of business, from his bed, from his chair," said his wife, Jane.

Zoolek returned to his Hingham home Monday to recuperate from a five-hour surgery for a triple heart bypass last Thursday (Nov. 12) at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center.

He was transferred to the medical center Nov. 10 after being admitted to South Shore Hospital in Nov. 7.

Zoolek Working From Bed After Heart Bypass Surgery

RONALD ZOOLEK

He had gone to the hospital for tests after he began feeling pain in his arms after a workout.

"He's doing fine," said his wife. "The doctors told him to take it easy, just normal stuff," she said.

But he's still in touch with the chamber, she said.

She also relayed a message from him.

"He's overwhelmed by the generosity of his friends," she said. "He ran out of space for all the flowers he received."

"And, he said he'll be back to work before you know it. He said he wants to get back before they realize they can get along without him.

"So, he still has a sense of humor," she said.

"And, he said he's at a great advantage because of his great co-workers."

Zoolek, who is 59, has been head of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce on Miller Stile Road for 20 years.

Chrisom, Hill To Be Christmas Parade Co-Grand Marshals

Retired Principal Peter Chrisom of North Quincy and Lloyd Hill of Quincy High, have been selected as Co-Grand Marshals for the 45th annual Quincy Christmas Parade Sunday Nov. 29.

Their combined teaching in the Quincy public schools span almost 75 years. As principals they oversaw an estimated 20,000 students graduate from the two high schools.

In announcing the honor being bestowed on these two popular educators,

"The selection of Mr. Chrisom of Mr. Hill as co-grand marshals for this year's parade is most deserving because of their years of dedication and outstanding contributions to the students in Quincy's public school system on all grade levels," said Festival Committee Chairman George White.

Rotarians Seek Professionals For Exchange Program

Members of the Quincy Rotary Club are seeking four outstanding business and professional people to visit the Netherlands in the spring of 1999 through the Group Study Exchange Program of the Rotary Foundation.

Candidates for the program should be business and professional men and women who are in the early stages of their careers and committed to remaining in the work force well after the exchange. Candidates must reside in this Rotary District and be a U.S. citizen.

The Rotary Foundation provides for each team member selected a round-trip airline ticket between the home country and host country.

The local Rotary Club will provide for meals, lodging and group travel in the Netherlands. Vocational days will be planned for the team members to exchange ideas with their professional counterparts.

For additional information and an application form, contact Caryn Smith of the Quincy Rotary Club at (617) 770-0536. Interviewing will take place on the local level and then in November on the district level.

Ayers Wants Neighborhood Meeting On Liquor License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers asked the License Board at Tuesday's meeting not to take action on a request from Tedeschi Food Shop on 751 E. Squantum St. for a retail package store and malt license until a neighborhood meeting is held.

Atty. Louis Cassis, representing Mark Shanahan owner of Tedeschi's presented the board with a petition signed by 260 persons in favor of the license.

Cassis said Dollar Savers, a liquor store on Quincy Shore Drive is about to be sold to CVS and that it is in the "customers interest" that Shanahan made the request.

Tedeschi's has been at the same site for more than 30 years. Shanahan has owned it for a little over a year.

Opponents cited various supermarkets in the area that are now able to sell beer and wine and said they were enough places rather than a convenience store. They said they fear other convenience stores will want the same thing.

In answer to some opponents as to the danger of "kids purchasing liquor" Cassis said Shanahan who has had years of experience in the business, plans to install surveillance cameras throughout the store as a deterrent to minors.

Cassis said liquor is usually purchased by adults for the youth and said it's a "silly notion" to think kids are going to be drinking near the store. He said Shanahan is familiar with his customers and would be "vigilant".

Hillary Keene a resident of Marina Bay spoke in favor of the license and said some of the liquor stores at Marina Bay are seasonal and usually "closed in the winter."

Keene, who has lived in the area for 12 years said she considers Tedeschi's a "neighborhood store" and thought having the license would work "very well".

Other opponents including the pastor of Star of the Sea church cited traffic congestion, and a "threat to youth." They also presented a petition to the board with about 100 signatures of opponents.

One proponent, Gregory Galvin said Shanahan runs an "excellent operation": and if given the license can "prove to the board what a responsible man he is to the community."

Police Chief Thomas France, sitting in for Chairman Joseph Shea and who allowed persons to speak either in favor or against, said a request such as this requires "two visits to the board".

In answer to lack of parking, Shanahan said he has 11 parking spaces and that sometimes other businesses in the area use the spaces.

Ayers said he would conduct the neighborhood meeting Nov. 24 at the Nickerson Legion Post.

The next License Board meeting will be Dec. 1, when they plan to take action on the request.

Jen Brundige Named AWHs Amnesty International Captain

Jen Brundige of Quincy, a junior at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree and a former student of Broad Meadows

Middle School in Quincy, has accepted the position of captain of the AWHs Chapter of Amnesty International.

Brundige received the honor as a result of her experiences in "The Kids' Campaign to Build a School for Iqbal" at Broad Meadows. The Broad Meadows students raised $150,000 to build a school in Pakistan in memory of Iqbal Masih, a young human rights activist and former child slave murdered in his native land on Easter Sunday, 1995.

At Archbishop Williams, Brundige has continued to fight against human rights violations and spread awareness about the problem.

$100,000 Grant To Address Norfolk County Jail Overcrowding

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office has won a $100,000 grant from the Executive Office of Public Safety to address overcrowding at the Norfolk County Correctional Center by turning a gymnasium into a housing unit for inmates.

The grant will pay to install security equipment, a heating and ventilation system, and plumbing in the gymnasium, which for two years has been a make-shift housing unit handling overflow inmates in the overcrowded facility.

The Norfolk County Correctional Center, which opened in December 1991, was built with 290 one-man cells. The population presently is 534, with inmates double- and tripped-bunked in cells.

The number of inmates housed in the gymnasium could more than double from a current 46 to 100 with the renovations. The number of offenders in all sheriff's office facilities and programs, including the two alternative centers and the electronic incarceration program, stands at 703.

To handle the increased numbers, inmates nearing the end of their sentence have been housed in the gymnasium since 1996. The gymnasium has bunk beds, two toilets and no showers.

The $100,000 grant, which the Sheriff's Office must match with $11,111, will bring the gymnasium into compliance with correctional standards. Improvements will include one toilet and wash basin per eight inmates, and one shower per 12 inmates.

Quincy 2000 Workshop Focus: How Owners Can Better Manage Their Business

How business owners can better manage their businesses was the focal point of the third in a series of recent workshops sponsored by Quincy 2000.

Jim Henderson, owner of a Quincy Center accounting firm was the speaker at the workshop attended by 15 representatives from local businesses.

Henderson said each business owner has three aspects to his or her personality: the "technician" or the one who does the actual work; the "manager" who runs the business and the "entrepreneur," the business visionary.

For most business owners, Henderson said, the technician is the dominant personality.

The challenge, he said, it to balance the technician with the manager, and the entrepreneur so that the business is less dependent on the owner and more associated with good quality consistent services.

The first step is to clarify short- and long-term goals, Henderson said. For example, in the sales and marketing area, he said the business owner should start by defining his or her target market, then develop strategies for reaching that specific market.

Michelle Leonard of Leonard's Salon & Spa in North Quincy said she found this part of the workshop "particularly useful" and plans to begin a direct mail campaign targeted at new residents of Quincy.

In the area of operations, Henderson advised the group to hire, train and retain good workers, implement programs to improve efficiency, and deliver all goods and services promptly each and every time.

Jack Spinale, who operates the Quincy-based Coastal Air, Heat and Refrigeration, agreed, saying "the key for the small business is getting and keeping good employees." Without good help, noted Spinale, the small business will always remain small.

Henderson told the business owners how to develop for their business in the area of sales and marketing, management and finance, and operations. He emphasized the importance of consistently tracking key financial data, to alert the business of any potential problems and to measure progress and results.

"I really enjoyed the presentation," said Tiffanie Williams, owner of the Quincy advertising and public relations firm, Tiffanie Williams & Company. "These seminars are a great thing for the Quincy business community because they provide us with the opportunity to get together and enrich ourselves."

Leonard agreed, saying as a new business owner she found the workshop "informative and helpful."

Ann Fisher, Economic Development Specialist at Quincy 2000, who coordinates the workshop series, said, "After receiving such positive feedback about Quincy 2000 workshops, we are encouraged to continue and expand the program."

Upcoming programs at Quincy 2000 include the two-part workshop "How to Write a Business Plan" Nov. 17 and 19; a workshop on "Tax Issues for the Small Business" Dec. 2; a Jan. 12 workshop on "Understanding Financial Statements and a Workshop on 'Tactical Marketing' Feb. 11. Following Clamp Incident New Surgery Counting Policy At Hospital

Quincy Hospital this week implemented "an enhanced counting policy" in its operating room after surgeons discovered a five-inch metal clamp had been left inside a 72-year-old woman's abdomen during surgery last month.

Hospital spokeswoman Renee Buisson said the woman was readmitted to the hospital Nov. 6 for treatment of an infection which occurred subsequent to her intestinal surgery Oct. 28.

A routine, pre-surgery X-ray revealed the clamp, she said.

The woman, who does not want to be identified, was unaware of the foreign object. She was listed in good condition Tuesday at Quincy Hospital following the second surgery.

"Over the last several months, the hospital has been developing an enhanced counting policy in the operating room," said Buisson.

"They have been counting needles and sponges for a long time, so they were looking to expand that [policy] to include surgical instruments.

"It takes a lot longer to [expand] a policy," she said. They have to evaluate all the surgical packs, and some have hundreds of instruments in them.

"What they were trying to do is evaluate the packs and determine the least number of instruments they need to have in the [operating room], maintain standardization and have all the equipment necessary," Buisson said.

For example, she said, some doctors like certain forceps and they have been trying to standardize some surgical packs. "There are dozens of types of packs, depending on the type of surgery, whether it's gall bladder or stomach surgery, intestinal surgery, orthopedic. They're all different.

"As with any new policy or procedure, the surgical staff have to get used to the count sheet that will be used, how to process this. It takes time."

The bottom line is that all instruments in the surgical pack will be accounted for both prior to and after surgery.

A peer review committee investigated the incident which involved two surgeons, according to Buisson. "Since the patient suffered no ill effects from this, no action was taken against the physicians. The committee determined that the most effective remedy would be to put the new policy in place."

Hospital officials also have spoken with representatives from the state Department of Public Health.

"We have given them information, but because the patient came in for a second surgical procedure that was not caused by the clamp and she had no ill effects from the clamp, it's not necessarily reportable," said Buisson.

Council Supports Establishing Satellite Veterans Clinic Downtown

The City Council went on record Monday in favor of establishing a satellite veterans clinic in downtown Quincy.

Councillors Bruce Ayers and Paul Harold noted the increasing veterans population in Quincy — and their increasing age and need for health services.

They said that the facilities at Causeway Street in the North End and the medical centers in Jamaica Plain and Brockton are not convenient.

Harold added that downtown Quincy would be a preferred site, especially with the transportation links here.

The Council agreed to solicit support from Rep. William Delahunt and Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and John Kerry and referred the matter to the Council's Veterans Affairs Committee.

Question For Council: Should City Lease Or Purchase Vehicles?

By MARILYN JACKSON

Within the next few months the finance committee will explore the cost benefits of leasing vehicles for city departments weighed against outright purchasing them.

A $79,000 appropriation request to buy several vehicles for the inspectional services department, using part of the recently certified $3.45 million in free cash, prompted the councillors' decision before tabling that request.

However, the councillors agreed to spend $20,000 for a four-wheel-drive pickup for the public works department's supervisor who will oversee all snow plowing and sanding operations this winter.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton said he would obtain the vehicle through the state purchasing program and may have to rent a vehicle for three months until the new truck arrives.

Council President Peter Kolson said the inspectional services department is in a different category from the DPW.

Several employees in the inspectional services department use their own vehicles to get about in the city and are reimbursed at a total cost of about $8,000. John Keenan, executive secretary to the mayor, said all departments had been surveyed as to their vehicle needs.

"There are a great number in poor condition," said

Keenan. "We looked at replacement costs, alternative fueled vehicles and leasing."

He said that the city does not have a maintenance program now that would make leasing vehicles cost effective. For instance, he said, the life of a police cruiser is about 18 months.

For other vehicles, which use few miles by comparison and don't require repairs until the seventh or eighth year, leasing may be appropriate.

Councillor Frank McCauley said the city had leased vehicles in 1982 and 1983 when he was mayor. "We had no free cash; we were facing a $10 million deficit." Leasing then was the city's only option, he said.

South Boston Health Study Open To Quincy Residents

Sheets Sees Work Starting Harold Says Council Misled On Shipyard Tanker Pact Status

By MARILYN JACKSON

The U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) has not determined that Massachusetts Heavy Industries can build six tankers for the $40 million contract price or that the company will be able to provide the necessary performance bonds.

Nor has MARAD determined the economic soundness of the proposed transaction, in part because so much time has elapsed since it was first proposed.

City Councillor Paul Harold said Monday he only learned of this after obtaining a letter MARAD had sent to shipyard owner Sotiris Emmanouil.

But at last week's Council meeting, attorney Timothy Jaroch, a consultant to Emmanouil, painted a different picture. In a report about the shipbuilding project given to the City Councillors last month, Jaroch stated that MARAD had reviewed and approved the application.

Harold is furious. He wants sanctions imposed on individuals who deliberately misinform the City Council.

Just before the Nov. 9 council meeting, Harold had spoken by telephone to MARAD deputy administrator John Graykowski and found out that MARAD had not approved the application of Internare Navigation, SA, for the loan guarantees and grinded Jaroch.

At last week's meeting, Jaroch apologized for his misstatement and explained he meant that MARAD had received all the materials needed to help the agency decide about the loan guarantees.

"These are major issues," Harold told the councillors. "The last sentence [in the letter from MARAD deputy administrator John Graykowski] says that the attorney 'should correct these inaccuracies.'"

The statements, however, were not corrected.

"These are deliberate misrepresentations," Harold said, urging the council to consider establishing sanctions for false testimony before the council and the swearing in witnesses in critical matters pending before the council.

Councillor Michael D'Amico, chairman of the Rules Committee, said he would hold a hearing on the matter the first of the year. But the principal issue is whether ships will be built again at the yard, which General Dynamics closed in 1986.

Already, considerable investment has been made in modernizing the shipyard, and both Quincy and Braintree have agreed to assess no taxes for five years. And, the state has provided more than $10 million to remove asbestos and other material from the property.

"Mr. Emmanouil is not the applicant," said Mayor James Sheets Tuesday. "It's Emmanouil Papalexis. He is an outstanding, reputable businessman who has the capacity to have six ships built and will."

Sheets did not find fault with Jaroch's remarks to the council.

Said Sheets: "I knew exactly what Tim Jaroch was talking about when he drafted that document. I was very much involved in getting the guarantee loans to modernize the shipyard."

"But for someone who was not involved in the process, it is not as easy to understand what Tim Jaroch was saying."

"In the final analysis, it will work out well."

Sheets said the modernization program will end in late February or early March. "It's my understanding, and I don't speak for Sotiris Emmanouil, that construction of the first tanker will begin then. I expect the guarantees for construction will be in place."

"He has letters of intent for a number of ships, and he'll build quickly."

Snug Harbor School Receives $3,500 Grant

The Snug Harbor Community School in Germantown has been awarded a grant of $3,500 by Travelers Property Casualty Corp. as part of the company's local contributions program being conducted at Travelers Property Casualty offices throughout the country.

The Snug Harbor School is a nationally-recognized Blue Ribbon School of Excellence. The school plans to use the grant to purchase equipment and software for its computer lab.

The selection of the Snug Harbor School was made by Robert Cahill, foundation coordinator for Travelers Property Casualty Corp.'s Quincy office. Cahill recently presented the check to Acting Principal Alan Osborne at a ceremony the local Travelers office. Also present to accept the check was Assistant Principal Robert Limoncelli. Susan Stanton, a Snug Harbor alumna and an employee of Travelers also participated in the presentation.

The initial selection of a local worthwhile non-profit organization is made by Travelers field office personnel, who are best able to identify specific community needs. Recommended grant proposals are forwarded to the Travelers Foundation in New York, the philanthropic arm of the Travelers corporate parent, Travelers Group.

The Travelers Foundation focuses its efforts on the needs of children and families through funding educational programs, social services and arts enrichment activities. The Travelers Foundation awarded 2,766 grants in 1997 totaling $12.4 million and will grant $15.2 million in 1998.

Delahunt To Serve On Democratic Steering Committee

Cong. William Delahunt has been selected to serve on the Democratic Steering Committee which is responsible for nominating members of House Committees.

Also serving on the Steering Committee are the Minority Leader, Caucus Chairman and Whips, and ranking members of Appropriations, Rules, Budget, Commerce and Ways & Means Committees.

The appointment is for the duration of the 106th Congress, which convenes in January.

The Steering Committee

plays the lead role in sorting out assignments for each of the 435 House members on the 19 standing Congressional committees. Once fully constituted, the Steering Committee will review the composition of all House committees, and make formal recommendations to the full Democratic Caucus. A counterpart panel performs the analogous function for Republican House members.

The Steering Committee can begin reviewing prospective committee assignments only after Democratic and Republican leaders agree on final committee ratios.

Planning Board Meeting

The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) beginning at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Public hearings for four proposed zoning changes were scheduled. They included:

*7 p.m., establishment of an Industrial C zoning district.

*7:15 p.m., rezoning of 199 Quincy Ave. from Business B to Planned Unit Development (PUD).

*7:20 p.m., rezoning of 861-869 Southern Artery from Business B to Residential B.

*7:30 p.m., striking out the word "need" and inserting the word "shall" in the table of dimensional requirements.

Also to be discussed were a proposed preliminary subdivision, Cobblestone Village at 271 Sea St. by Gallagher Group Inc. and a proposed PUD special permit at 70 Quincy Ave., the former Quincy Oil Co., by Massachusetts Cooperative Bank.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985).

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended and a longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient. Again, deadline for nominations is Thursday, Dec. 31.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Social Security Would Cost City $7.8 Million

"This would be a quick fix for Social Security reform," said Ralph White, president of the association. "You'd be getting younger people in who would not be receiving benefits, so there would be an infusion of cash."

White said the state's oversight agency has estimated the mandated Social Security proposal would cost $3 billion in the next 10 years for all governmental agencies — state, county, cities and towns.

"That's in addition to the $1 billion to fund current pension systems. That's a tremendous amount of money for cities and towns," said White.

"Secondly, and equally important, the state would be forced to come up with a new pension plan for new hires because it could not give same benefits."

"And Social Security would not be enough to attract good workers or teachers. The state would have to come up with a supplemental plan, just as the federal government did when it went into the Social Security system in 1975," White said.

"Our pension system has greater benefits than Social Security," White said.

He said Massachusetts developed its own retirement system because the cities and towns did not choose to join the Social Security system when it first began.

Second Cable TV Provider Agreement Seen Within Month

programming to that provided by MediaOne.

"MediaOne is a good template," said Horton.

He said RCN has been aggressively marketing its service, but it is available only in Somerville and Boston and soon in Arlington.

Horton, who lives in Somerville, said he noted that his cable provider, Times-Warner, opted not to increase rates in Somerville this year where it faces competition. He predicted rates would be competitive in Quincy as well.

Asked about other future providers, Horton said Bell Atlantic, which took over Nynex, has renewed interest in providing cable service. Initially, it was considering building a fiber optic system but now is looking at satellite transmission, said Horton.

In the future, the small satellite dishes will pose another layer of competition, he said. At this time, however, they are not allowed to carry Channels 4, 5 and 7.

He said MediaOne is under no obligation to lease its cable lines to another provider, and RCN plans to build its own system. In some communities MediaOne offers a bundled service, which includes telephone and Internet service in addition to cable.

"RCN can package services however they want," said Horton. "However, under the law, we are only authorized to look at the cable component" of the service.

As for cable rates, Horton said RCN offers 75 channels for $26 a month, while MediaOne offers a basic service of 15 to 20 channels for less than $10. He said even with regulation, cable rates have increased greater than the rate of inflation, and next March, rates will be deregulated.

The basic service includes community access, he said. Community programming, such as the televising of city council meetings, could be fed to both cable systems for transmission to subscribers.

In terms of revenue to the city, Horton said RCN has pledged 5 percent of its gross revenues earmarked for local programming. RCN projects having 8,000 subscribers in its 10th year of operation.

By comparison, MediaOne pledges 4.25 percent of its gross revenue for local programming which means about $300,000 generated from 25,000 subscribers. Quincy College, the Thomas Crane Public Library and governmental programming through the mayor's office are recipients of those funds, Horton said.

He said for the past couple of months he has been working on "due diligence issues," ensuring that RCN has its own financing to build a cable system. Boston Edison Company owns 49 percent of RCN's Massachusetts firm.

In addition to providing a performance bond, the city could ask for a letter of credit, he said.

With Stop And Shop $5,000 Donation Project Hero Campaign Goes Over The Top

Project Hero, the community campaign to raise $50,000 to purchase two thermal imaging units for the Quincy Fire Department, is over the top.

The $50,000 goal will be officially reached today (Thursday) with a check for $5,000 from the Stop and Shop Supermarket Company.

The check presentation will be made at 10 a.m. at ceremonies at Quincy Center Plaza, Hancock St., Quincy Center, below the corporate headquarters of Stop and Shop.

Daniel J. Flynn, III, Quincy businessman and the campaign chairman, will accept the check with Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Kindergarten classes at the Montclair School will also make a presentation of $500 that they raised. The North Quincy High School Marching Band will perform.

Terry Vandewater, Stop and Shop Director of Public Affairs said:

"Supporting a project such as this is very important to all Stop and Shop employees. We recognize how difficult it can be to raise funds and awareness. Our commitment to Quincy and its residents is significant to us especially with our corporate headquarters located in downtown Quincy."

The campaign to raise the $50,000 was started in April by Flynn and co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun.

The Sun donated a full page public service advertisement weekly listing the donors and updating the progress of the campaign.

"The response has been tremendous", Flynn said. "We have received notes and donations from friends and relatives of fallen firefighters, from residents who want to remember their loved ones and from corporations who recognize the need for having such equipment."

There have been more than 400 donations from the community, he said.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth said: "As Quincy's community newspaper we were happy to join Dan Flynn in this community project.

"It proves once again that Quincy residents including our readers and the Quincy business community are always there ready and willing to help a worthy cause. And this has been a most worthy cause."

"This new equipment will help firefighters find people through thick smoke and flames in residential and other building fires. Lives will be saved because Quincy cared."

Janice Erller's kindergarten classes at the Montclair School have donated allowances, and other monies collected for the cause "You hear so much in the press these days about some of the negative things children do" stated Erller, "It's nice to see positive press about a project such as this that involves the schools, the community, the fire department and the corporate world."

$25,000 Appropriated For New High School Band Uniforms

The marching bands of Quincy and North Quincy High School will look really sharp next year when they step off in the annual Christmas Parade.

The city council approved spending $25,000 to provide new uniforms for the bands at both schools.

John Keenan, the mayor's executive secretary, said the request came from band members when asked why this item was not in the school budget.

"They have been out-clasped at the Christmas parade, and they won't have the new uniforms this year," he said.

Environmental Consultant For Quarry Hills To Be Hired

An independent consultant will be hired to analyze the environmental studies for the proposed $200 million, 1641-unit apartment complex at Quarry Hills.

The City Council Monday appropriated $20,000 from free cash to hire a Green Environmental Company to review the environmental studies prepared by Haley and Aldrich and by David Stanley.

The city is under the gun to have the analysis completed of the projected, described as the biggest proposed development south of Boston.

The City Council must vote on the proposal within 90 days of the closing of the public hearing, which is scheduled in December.

Public Works Commissioner David Colson said

this would not be a traffic study, although traffic is a component of an environmental impact report.

He said the focus will be on environmental contamination of the land, runoff and the effects on the surrounding neighborhoods, noise, dust and construction.

He added that the consultant will look at the current sampling being conducted at the site and determine whether more sampling should be done. If additional testing is necessary, he will try to fit it in.

"We want to reassure the abutting community about the potential development."

"This is a site containing the old city dump which was used by many other outfits," said Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott. "This is to our benefit."

Four Quincy Teachers Receive B.C. High Award

Four Quincy teachers recently received the Boston College High School Excellence in Teaching Award.

They are: Georganne Browning, St. Mary's School; Charles Carmody, Broad Meadows Middle School; Laurence Osborne, Single-Family Home Sales Rise In Mass.

Single-family home sales in Massachusetts rose in 1998, according to the 13th consecutive quarter during the summer of 1998, according to a recent Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) report.

The report said historically low mortgage rates, strong consumer confidence, and favorable changes to the state's capital gains tax laws boosted housing demand in the third quarter to a new record level for a three-month period.

Condominium sales were especially strong, rising 32.8 percent over last year's levels, while third quarter sales of detached homes improved 6 percent versus the same period in 1997.

The MAR data specifically shows that condo sales increased statewide by nearly 1,000 units over the comparable period last year, climbing from 2,939 sales in the third quarter of 1997 to 3,902 from June to September of this year.

Sales of detached single-family homes rose more modestly, from 13,368 closings in the third quarter last year to 14,459 in the third quarter of 1998, but that was due in part to a shortage of listings in some markets. Still, this year's third-quarter sales level sets a new record for residential sales in a three-month period, surpassing the 14,041 sales in the second quarter of 1987.

"This market is one for the record books, and buyers, as well as sellers, are benefiting," said MAR President Mary Crowley. "With income levels up and 30-year mortgage rates averaging less than 7 percent the entire summer, housing has become increasingly more affordable."

To illustrate her point, she said at today's rates the monthly payment on a $150,000 mortgage would be about $80 less than a year ago ($979 in 1998 versus $1,057 in 1997), which, in turn, would allow for the purchase of almost $12,000 more home ($161,940 in 1998 versus $150,000 loan in 1997) over last year.

Furthermore, the state

Legislature's approval of new, higher capital gains tax exclusions ($500,000 for married couples/$250,000 for singles) on the sale of a principal residence has meant significant savings for current homeowners anxious to move.

"The more favorable treatment of capital gains has taken the tax consequences out of the home-buying decision for many seniors and empty-nesters and allowed them to buy down, especially to the condo market," Crowley said.

Regional data from the MAR report clearly shows the impact. Condominium sales rose in all seven regions of the state during the third quarter of 1998 over the comparable period last year. In fact, double-digit sales growth control occurred in every region, with the most impressive increases occurring in the Central (+76 percent) and West (+45.1 percent) regions.

In the detached single-family home market, regional sales gains were less consistent but still quite strong. Healthy sales increases occurred in five regions, with Worcester County (Central), Cape Cod and the Islands, the South Shore, and southeastern Massachusetts all exceeding the statewide rate of sales growth between the third quarters of 1997 and 1998.

By month, sales of detached homes rose 12 percent in July and 6 percent in August before slipping 1 percent in September, while condo sales improved 36 percent in July, 28 percent in August and 18 percent in September versus the same months in 1997. In the first nine months of 1998, detached home sales were up 10 percent and condos sales up 8 percent.

Red Raiders Advance To State Semifinals

Clean Sweep For NQ In Central Sectional

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Jim Rendle hoped his team would play its best volleyball in November, and so far the North Quincy High School girls' team has done that, claiming its eighth Div. 1 Central Sectional title in the last 10 years.

"I'm absolutely thrilled for the girls, because they've worked hard and never given up," said Rendle, North Quincy's head coach. "It's been a solid team effort all season and to see them execute what you teach in practice, there's no greater thrill for a coach—win or lose."

The Red Raiders, who have swept their last nine matches dating back to the regular season, advanced to the state semifinals against West Sectional champion Ludlow yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at Milford High School.

A victory over Ludlow would catapult the Red Raiders into the Div. 1 state championship match against the winner of yesterday's Barnstable-Dracut showdown. The state final will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Bentley College.

"We don't know much about Ludlow, but we played both Barnstable and Dracut and know what to expect from them," said Rendle. "Playing them prepared us for the tourney, and hopefully we can keep playing at a high level."

Last Saturday night at Medway High School, the Red Raiders avenged last year's Sectional semifinal loss with a 15-7, 15-8, 15-8 victory over Milford in the Sectional title match.

Trailing 5-4 in the opening game, North took control by reeling off eight unanswered points to take a commanding 12-5 lead. During the run, junior Jessica Lorman (six kills, seven digs) collected two blocks and senior Angela Scott and sophomore Amy Jellison each added two kills.

Milford scored a point to halt the streak, before committing three straight errors as North won the opener, 15-7. In the second game,

North senior co-captain Alexis Miranda (14 assists) recorded five assists and three aces, while Lorman contributed three kills as the NQ retained the momentum.

Junior Katie Jellison (12 kills) sparked the Red Raiders in the third game, scoring two of the team's last three points and ending the match with a tremendous spike. Junior Tia Harris also played well, picking up four blocks and six kills.

"I was really thrilled with our overall team effort," said Rendle. "I think it was our best of the season, because we just dominated play after being down early in the first game. It was a tremendous defensive effort, which is the strength of our team. We kept our errors down, which was another big factor. To get this kind of effort from so many players, it's very special."

North advanced to the Sectional final with a 15-12, 15-9, 15-4 triumph over host Brookline last Thursday. Leading NQ were junior Meghan Ginty (eight kills) and senior co-captain Alison Haddad (11 digs, five kills), both of whom provided a spark off the bench. Huether and junior Caitlin Powers also played well for the Red Raiders.

In their quarterfinal match last Tuesday at Newton North, the Red Raiders rallied from 14-11 deficits in all three games and came away with a memorable 16-14, 16-14, 20-18 victory.

"This was just a great match, and for us to win it shows the never give up attitude these girls have," said Rendle. "In the third game, they served at us nine times to win the match, but each time we were able to come back and eventually overtake them."

Trailing 18-17 in the third game, North's Amy Jellison served up three consecutive aces to close out the match. Scott (18 kills) and Katie Jellison (16 kills) turned in strong efforts for the victors.

NQ Freshman Girls Finish Season On A Positive Note

After a sluggish start, North Quincy High School's girls' freshman soccer team finished strong with a 3-2-2 record down the stretch under coach Frank O'Donoghue.

"We never had a full team, with some moving up to the junior varsity and varsity, but the girls worked hard and were a great group to coach," said O'Donoghue. "The second half was much better, as the girls improved and saw their hard work pay off."

As the season drew to a close, the Red Raiders picked up victories over Marshfield and Braintree and concluded with a 1-1 tie against Lincoln-Sudbury.

"That victory over Marshfield was our best game of the year," said O'Donoghue. "We had our full team and we beat a

North's top scorer was Allison Lacey (five goals, three assists), who made the jump to varsity along with Caitlyn Herlihy, Kathryn MacRitchie, Lauren Sleeth and Kelly Rice. Sleeth and Rice joined the varsity early in the season, while the others were called up for the regular season finale and tournament.

Also playing on North Quincy's freshman team were Diana Berberan, Samantha Chaisson, Kara Cheesman, Kelly Coleman, Kristin Connors, Danielle Francisco, Jen Higgins, Jackie Koch, Lauren Magaldi, Kate Markhard, Laura Matos, Brittany McCleskey, Meghan McLean, Amy O'Donnell, Erica Peterson, Steffanie Roche, Caitlyn Spencer, Caitlin Doughty and Allison Downs.

"Before this season, some of the girls never played, but as the season went on, they improved tremendously," said O'Donoghue, who has been involved with NQHS soccer for a number of years, coaching two sons and a daughter at the school.

"They all get in the game and have the opportunity to contribute, and all of them did a fine job," he added. "It's nice to see them do well and help the program. The future of the program looks very bright."

Stone, Bowes To Represent North At EMass All-Star Game Sunday

Following its best season in team history, the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team will have two representatives in the Div. 1 EMass All-Star Game.

North Quincy senior co-captains Betsy Stone, one of the top scorers in the Old Colony League with 22 goals, and Kristen Bowes, who recorded 12 shutouts as the league's top goalkeeper, will play in the All-Star Game on Sunday at 2 p.m. at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

"This will be the first time we've ever had anyone play in the game," said North head coach Paul Bregoli, who guided the Red Raiders to a 13-2-5 record and their second straight state tournament berth.

"It's a tremendous honor for both of them, and they both worked very hard to get where they are. It's also a tremendous boost for the program, because most schools only have one chosen, and we had two."

Selected as two of the top five OCL All-Stars at the league meeting, Bowes and Stone were nominated by their coach for EMass All-Star status.

"They're two of the best in the OCL and I'm ecstatic for them," said Bregoli. "They paid their dues and now are getting rewarded. I'm very proud to have them represent the program and the school at the game."

Luke Sheets' Band Concert Tonight At Eastern Nazarene

Quincy's Luke Sheets and his band will perform a rock concert tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the student center auditorium at Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston.

Admission is free. Sheets recently released a new solo album entitled, "Let The World Spin." Band members are David Scott, Paul Shomo, Matt King, Chad Morgan and Chris Mercer.

CD's, tapes and merchandise will be available at the concert.

For more information, contact David Scott at 617-847-6916.

Red Raiders Post 27-0 Shutout

Early Barnstable TD's Spell Doom For Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Two quick Barnstable touchdowns put Quincy High School's football team in an early hole, en route to a 27-0 defeat last Friday against the Red Raiders.

Coming off a strong effort against Silver Lake the previous week, Quincy fell to 0-9 overall and 0-6 in the Old Colony League with its latest setback.

"We're a young group with a lot of injuries, but we escaped this one without any more injuries, which is a positive," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella.

"We moved the ball but couldn't finish it off. All we can do is hang in there and on Thanksgiving just do the best we can."

All that stands between Quincy and a winless season is the annual Thanksgiving Day showdown against rival North Quincy, a battle the Presidents have won four consecutive years. The last team to win five straight Thanksgiving Day contests was Quincy, from 1954 to 1958.

In the setback to Barnstable, the visiting Red Raiders wasted little time getting on the board, driving 77 yards on four plays. Fullback Mike Broughton opened the drive with a 16-yard run, followed by a 33-yard pass from quarterback Tom Street to tailback Stefan Gomes. After a six-yard run, Broughton tossed a 22-yard TD pass to Gomes with 8:35 left in the quarter.

Following Quincy's second punt, Barnstable took over at its own 38 and needed just one play to add to its lead. A 62-yard touchdown run by Broughton, followed by Matt Norton's extra point, provided the visitors with a 13-0 lead.

A sack by senior defensive end Shu Yang and a fumble recovery by senior defensive back Dan Kelly halted Barnstable's next drive, but the visitors would not be denied. On its first possession of the second quarter, Barnstable drove 67 yards in four plays, culminating on a 47-yard touchdown pass from Street to Gomes.

Unable to get its running game in gear, the Presidents were again forced to punt. Broughton caught Kelly's line drive kick on the run at the 50, eluded a number of tacklers and found the end zone for his second touchdown. Norton added the extra point to close out scoring midway through the second quarter.

Quincy put together a drive on its first possession of the second half, highlighted by a 31-yard pass from Kelly to junior wide receiver Andy Tam, but a sack and a fumble ended the threat.

Midway through the fourth, Quincy senior defensive end Mike Hartford recovered a fumble, but the Presidents turned the ball over when senior running back Tim Kellam fumbled a few plays later.

With under a minute to play, junior Ryan McMahon blocked a Barnstable punt, giving Quincy the ball at the Red Raiders' 34. Junior running back Russell Mullen carried the ball twice for 14 yards, before Kelly was sacked for a seven-yard loss. On a fourth down and 14 play, Kelly connected with senior wide receiver Mike Rampoli, but the six-yard play was not enough. Barnstable took over and ran out the remaining 12 seconds to close out the victory.

Doran & Horrigan, Harold Club, Kiley, Barry's Deli Among Winners

Bruce Ayers Club and Lydon-Russell tied, 7-7, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey House League Mite Division action.

A goal and two assists by Steven Barresi sparked Doran & Horrigan over Quincy Sheet Metal, 6-4.

Joining Barresi on D&H's score sheet were Greg Cahalan and Kevin Keefe (one goal, one assist each), Glenn Peterson and Frankie Flora (one goal apiece), and Andrew McCabe, Brendan Gilmore, James Finn, Ben Francisco and Jeremy Mock (one assist each). For QSM, Lamy Papalambros (hat trick), Wayne Milford (goal), Andrew Barba (two assists), and Mike Leone, Matt Furey, Matt Grady and Josh McKeon (one assist apiece) did the damage.

John Magliozzi's two goals helped Paul Harold

MITES

Club beat Barry's Deli, 7-4.

Also scoring for Harold were Kyle Roche and Bryan Ash (one goal, one assist each), Shawn Dowling, Seamus McKenna and Chris Burke (one goal apiece), and Bobby Fontana, Mike Griffin, Ryan Shea, Doug Haskins and Eric Johnson (one assist each). For Barry's, John Sessions (two goals, two assists), Jonathan Cahill (two goals, assist) and Kevin Magoon (three assists) scored.

Two goals apiece from Dan Findley and Jason Laura led Kiley Real Estate over Doherty & White, 6-5. Kiley also got contributions from Bill Kiley and Joe Vialpando (one goal, one assist apiece), Justin Laura (two assists), Matt Flaherty and Brian McLean (one assist each). For D&H, scorers were Mason Mayberry (two goals, assist), Mark Gilbody (two goals), Brian Campbell (goal, two assists), Eric Angelhart (goal), and Sam Calley, Patricia Shea, Chris Devlin and Matt Rodriguez (one assist apiece).

In other recent action, a hat trick and assist by Bill Kiley sparked Kiley Real Estate over Paul Harold Club, 5-3.

Steve Markarian's hat trick helped Barry's Deli defeat Lydon-Russell, 6-4.

Brian Sullivan (two goals, two assists) paced the offense for Bruce Ayers Club in a 5-2 triumph over Doran & Horrigan.

Jay Cashman and Quincy Sheet Metal skated to a 2-2 tie. Scoring for Cashman were Patrick Young and Peter Eeley. For QSM, goals were netted by Jeff Giordani and Josh McKeon.

Domenic Noskovic's hat trick helped Doherty & White defeat Bruce Ayers, 10-8.

A goal and an assist apiece from Lamy Papalambros and Josh McKeon lifted Quincy Sheet Metal over Kiley Real Estate, 4-3.

Seven points apiece from Laura Leger (two goals, five assists) and Glen Peterson (four goals, three assists) and six from Brendan Gilmore (hat trick, three assists) sparked Doran & Horrigan over Lydon-Russell, 16-6.

Jay Cashman and Paul Harold Club skated to an 8-8 tie. For Cashman, Kenny Patey (hat trick, three assists) led the way, while Bobby Fontana (hat trick, two assists) paced Harold.

Five points apiece by Frankie Sorrento, Joe Canavan and Patrick Dunn sparked The Quincy Sun over Smith & Brink PC, 11-2, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey House League Squirt Division action.

Sorrento (four goals, assist), Canavan (hat trick, two assists) and Dunn (two goals, three assists) were joined on the Sun score sheet by Andrew Gormley and Brendan Mulcahy (two goals, two assists each) and Mike Barter, Robert Mann and Kevin Bossart (one assist apiece). For S&B, Ian McRae and Anthony Gilbody scored, Chris Garvey had two assists and Jim Fitzpatrick added an assist.

Westminster Dodge and Keohane's skated to a 3-3 tie.

Scoring for WD were Dan Poggi, Steve Graham and Andrew Donovan, with two assists from Ray Marchand and one from Andrew Connolly. Leading Keohane's were Eric Beagle (goal, assist), David Guerrero and Mike Giordani (one goal each), and Matt Giordani, Matt Lawlor and Brendan Gavaghan (one assist apiece).

Ryan Dalton posted the shutout in goal as Burgin Platter blanked Pat Foley Painting, 10-0.

Leading BP's offensive attack were Dave Tappet,

In other recent action, Matt Giordani's two goals and assist helped lead Keohane's over Pat Foley Painting, 6-2.

Other scorers for Keohane's were David Guerrero and Craig Calley (one goal, one assist apiece), Brendan Gavaghan and Joe Carita (one goal each) and Jim Carita (assist). Goals for Foley were by Bryan Gilligan and Pat Devlin.

Mike McKeon and Jim Fitzpatrick both notched two goals and two assists, sparking Smith & Brink PC over Westminster Dodge, 4-2. Ian McRae collected an assist for S&B. For WD, Brian Carney and Daniel Poggi scored and Evan Harrington added an assist.

Glen Gibbons scored twice and added an assist as Burgin Platter Insurance defeated The Quincy Sun, 5-2. Joining Gibbons in the scoring column for BPI were Matt Tobin (two goals), Joe Ferris (goal) and David Regan (assist). For the Sun, goals were by Mike MacPherson and Andrew Gormley and Joe Connolly added an assist.

Joe Ferris and Glen Gibbons notched two goals apiece as Burgin Platter topped Smith & Brink PC, 7-3.

For BP, Mike Maxey and Alex Smith had three assists each, Tim Lally and Matt Tobin both collected a goal and an assist and John Kurpeski scored a goal. Leading S&B PC were Rob DeAngelis (goal, two assists), Tom Keefe and Joe Morris (one goal apiece), and Anthony Gilbody (assist).

Four goals by Andrew Gormley lifted The Quincy Sun over Keohane's, 10-2.

Also scoring for the Sun were Ryan O'Keefe and Michael Barter (two goals apiece), Joe Canavan (one goal, one assist), Brendan Mulcahy (goal, assist), Imrain Moin and Joe Garland (one assist apiece). For Keohane's, goals were by David Guerrero and Mike Gibbons.

Bregoli Returns, But NQ Falters

North Unable To Stop Buckley, Harbormen

Overshadowing the return of North Quincy High School quarterback Chris Bregoli, the explosive Hingham football team erupted for 35 first-half points and went on to beat North, 47-14, last Saturday.

Displeased with the effort, North Quincy head coach Ken McPhee called the setback "one of the worst performances, from top to bottom, I've ever seen at this school."

"We got beat in every aspect of the game," he added. "From the coaching staff on down, we were not ready to play and Hingham was. I take responsibility for it and will not let that happen again."

Bregoli, who missed three games due to a shoulder injury, turned in a memorable performance, completing 22 of 37 passes for 252 yards and two touchdowns, but the visiting Harbormen had too much firepower for the Red Raiders (1-8 overall, 1-5 Old Colony League).

"Chris came back and gave a good performance and threw the ball well, but as a team we didn't play real hard," said McPhee. "It was nice to see him come back, but we have a lot of work to do before Thanksgiving."

On the game's first drive, Hingham's Craig Buckley (185 yards, four touchdowns) rushed four times for 52 yards, including a four-yard touchdown run. Buckley added a 29-yard touchdown run and quarterback Nick Shore scored on a five-yard run before the quarter ended.

After a 24-yard kickoff return by freshman Pat Bregoli, his older brother Chris engineered the team's best drive of the half. Completing seven passes to junior wide receiver Jody Bravo (nine catches, 99 yards) and senior co-captain tight end Frank McNamara (12 catches, 151 yards), Bregoli drove the offense to Hingham's 5. North came up empty, however, when a pass on fourth and 2 was batted down by Hingham's Andy Scerbo.

The Harbormen then drove the length of the field and scored when Buckley broke free on a 42-yard touchdown scamper.

Before the half ended, North threatened to score but a turnover halted the threat. Two passes to McNamara for 53 yards moved the ball inside Hingham's 20. After an incomplete pass on third down, Bregoli connected with McNamara for the first down, but the ball was stripped away and recovered by Hingham.

The problems continued for the Red Raiders early in the second half, as Chris Primo intercepted a Bregoli pass and returned it 40 yards for a touchdown.

Once again, a fumble halted a drive deep in Hingham territory. Bravo caught three passes for 45 yards, but a botched handoff on fourth and 1 at Hingham's 8 resulted in a turnover.

North finally got on the board late in the third quarter, on a 22-yard touchdown pass from Bregoli to Bravo. The duo also hooked up for the two-point conversion pass. After NQ senior defensive end Craig Bigham recovered a fumble, Bregoli fired a pass over the middle to McNamara, who outran Hingham defenders for a 36-yard touchdown.

The Harbormen closed out the scoring in the fourth quarter on a nine-yard touchdown run by Dave McDonnell.

DRAINING EXPERIENCES

The number of aluminum components (including cylinder heads, water pumps, manifolds, and engine blocks) under the hood of today's cars seems to be increasing each year. The two primary heat exchangers, the radiator and heater, are also aluminum, which requires a great deal of corrosion protection provided by the vehicle's coolant. Because the corrosion protection provided by green and red antifreezes is depleted after two years, it is a good idea to have the cooling system flushed and the coolant replaced within this time frame. The newer, superlong-life antifreezes (usually orange in color) may remain in service for longer intervals. Do not try to replace red or green antifreeze with the orange type without first consulting an auto technician.

Next time you need work done on any system, including its cooling system, bring your car into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our ASE Certified technicians and our availability of parts will assure you of a job well done. We're proud of our staff and you can trust us to get you back on the road quickly. Quincy Youth Basketball Tournery Tips Off Friday At NQHS Gym

A record 55 boys and girls teams in Grades 6 through 8 will participate in the annual Quincy Youth Basketball Tournament this weekend at the North Quincy High School gym.

The tournament tips off Friday at 5:45 p.m. with games until 9 p.m. Saturday, games will begin at 8:45 a.m. and continue until 9 p.m. On Sunday, games start at 8:45 a.m., with the playoff rounds slated to begin at 3 p.m.

All four basketball courts will be in use during tournament hours. Every player will receive a commemorative tournament T-shirt.

Each team is guaranteed a minimum of three games, and the teams with the best record in their respective division will move onto the playoffs. The overall winner will be crowned Quincy Youth Basketball's 1998 Tournament champion.

Tournament organizers are pleased with the interest the tournament has received throughout the South Shore and the state, with teams from the New Hampshire border and Cape Cod involved along with teams from Quincy and the surrounding area.

A number of local businesses and elected officials have stepped forward to assist with the sponsorship and to help offset the operating cost. Members of the North Quincy High School coaching staff will donate their time to officiate, as will Curry College assistant coach Jim Rourke.

Proceeds from the tournament go to the NQHS Coach's Association to be used for the enhancement of the athletic programs at the school.

The tournament is open to the public and organizers encourage the public to attend and cheer on the youngsters.

Wilson Leads North Quincy Girls

The North Quincy High School girls' cross-country team continued its nearly perfect season, taking second with 129 points in the Div. 1 EMass state championships.

Leading North as she has all season was Lynda Wilson, who placed sixth overall. Other NQ runners were Sarah Houghton (24th), Linda Nguyen (30th), Christine Marre (43rd), Natalie Caron (46th). Kelly-Rose O'Brien and Genevieve O'Brien also finished strong for North.

Nationally-ranked Newton North finished first with 50 points. North Quincy, which finished ahead of Brookline (172), Haverhill (173) and Central Catholic (228), advanced to the All-state Championships to be held Saturday at Gardner Golf Course.

On the boys' side, North's team totaled 584 points, its best finish in years, coming in 18th overall and third among Old Colony League teams. Pacing the boys' effort were Brian Breslin (12th) and Jeff Bartoloni (15th). Both received medals, and Breslin was the last at-large qualifier in Div. 1. Bartoloni just missed qualifying by two spots.

Players Needed For Alumni Hockey Game

The Quincy High School Hockey Boosters Club is seeking players for the

scheduled for Nov. 28 at Quincy Youth Arena. The first game will begin at 7 p.m., followed by the second game at 8:15 p.m. All alumni hockey players who graduated through 1994 are eligible to participate.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought
For The Week

Many people are afraid to face their troubles and problems head on. They often feel, if they ignore the problem, it will either go away or eventually correct itself. But no problem corrects itself. Nor does it normally go away. Many times problems are like snowballs... they just keep growing and growing...

Someone once said that trouble makes us better or bitter... Let's think upon this... The words "better" and "bitter" differ in only one letter, but it is significant that the one letter is "l." "Better" becomes "bitter" when the letter "l" crowds out the letter "e." That mischievous little letter "l" causes a end of troubles in life. When "l" crowds itself into any situation, take care... Starting out as "l" it will quickly grow to "I"; beginning with a little assertion of self, it will end up at last the giant of selfishness which rules our every mood.

Couldn't it be said that when people think of their troubles in terms of self, of how much they are being persecuted and misused, then the letter "l" gradually wins out and a sorrowful experience leaves them bitter?

Try to forget yourself in the midst of your sorrow. Think of how your troubles might have spilled over and afflicted someone else. And remember the loving God who on the cross showed that He shares our sorrow...

Our Facade Remains Circa 1800s.
Inside, We're All Set for 2000.

When the Blackmur residence was purchased by Dennis S. Sweeney in 1929, Quincy had a new place to pay its respects. At the time, residents liked the intimate parlors and separate visiting areas.

They still do. But today, some families prefer a larger, more modern visiting area. Other issues, like handicapped and elderly access, have become important, too.

That's why we recently added 1,645 square feet to our Elm Street location. From the front of the building, you won't notice the change. But, inside it means a much larger room and a more accessible entrance.

All, without disturbing our historic roots.

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's a good time to take inventory. Take time this week to polish off unfinished chores and projects at home. Later, plan a weekend outing with friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You and a family member aren't seeing eye to eye. Try to make your case logically instead of willy-nilly. Emotions are running too high to solve anything.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Don't underestimate a good friendship. You never know when you'll need a shoulder to lean on. Business and pleasure mix well this weekend if you use proper judgment.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A "chance of a lifetime" is waiting in the wings for you. Don't even think about letting it pass by. The weekend favors socializing.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Be wary of someone who arrives from a distance. An intriguing project sparks your interest. Be confident and take the task in hand.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Travel indications are favorable, and you need some rest and relaxation. Enjoy some wonderful times with close friends and family. A child needs you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A co-worker has romantic feelings about you. Singles can scope out the situation carefully, but married people should avoid this possibly explosive situation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's a good time to surprise someone with a loving gift. However, make sure that you keep all your personal financial records to yourself. Connections prove helpful professionally.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If you have the urge to tackle a do-it-yourself project, by all means, go for it. You will be satisfied with the results. The project can be achieved at home or on the job.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) If you are looking for a promotion, raise or new career, you're in luck. While your partner is somewhat nervous about your job situation, you must persevere.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) While shopping, you'll acquire the deals you have been seeking. A friend could be somewhat evasive, but don't take it personally. Work matters are looking up.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Partners plan a social event. Don't commit yourself to any financial transactions without the proper advice. Seek out a banker or investment adviser.

Surcharge-Free ATM Alliance

Eastern Bank announces it has joined the SUM Program, a surcharge-free alliance of Massachusetts ATMs which is administered by NYCE Corporation.

The program includes 115 members with over 750 participating ATMs. Surcharges are convenience fees that some financial institutions charge non-customers for ATM use.

The surcharge-free SUM program is designed to provide consumers with surcharge-free banking alternatives throughout a broad geographic area of the Commonwealth. It has been endorsed by the Massachusetts Bankers Association, the Community Bank League of New England, and the Massachusetts Credit Union League.

According to NYCE, financial institutions in the program will pool designated ATMs and allow all other program participants' customers to use them surcharge-free.

ATMs participating in the surcharge-free alliance will be identified by NYCE's special SUM logo, which will be posted on all machines. Eastern Bank currently operates 48 ATMs throughout Greater Boston.

Eastern Bank Corporation, a mutual bank holding company, and its wholly-owned subsidiaries, Eastern Bank & Trust Company, is a $2.5 billion full-service banking company with 42 offices in the Greater Boston area and a Corporate Lending office in Boston. Eastern's lines of business include consumer banking, trust and investment management, mortgage banking, consumer finance, commercial lending, asset-based lending, and equipment leasing.

Industrial C Zone Before Planning Board

The planning board was scheduled last night (Wednesday) to review a proposal offered by Ward 3 Councilor Patrick W. McDermott to create a new industrial zone in the city.

By creating an industrial C zone, the city would be able to look at different industrial parcels and determine whether a four-story height limitation would be appropriate, explained McDermott.

Last December, the height limitation in the industrial B zone was increased to eight stories, which is suitable for development at Crown Colony or at the shipyard, said planning director Richard Meade.

But there are some other smaller industrially zoned parcels throughout the city which about residential neighborhoods.

McDermott told the council that the proposal for an industrial C zone would be a copy of industrial B zone without the eight-story allowance and could clean up smaller parcels in the Montclair, Wollaston and North Quincy areas.

If the planning board approves the proposal, then zoning changes will be recommended for some industrial properties.

Last winter there were several public hearings to address citizens' concerns about the new height limits, but there was no resolution, said Meade.

"This is Councilor McDermott's efforts to make sure there are no inappropriate eight-story buildings in his area. He said Councilors Bruce Ayers and Steve Durkin know of parcels in their wards which also could be affected.

Meade said he was not aware of any proposal for an eight-story building in those parts of the city, but there is concern about what may be proposed in the future.

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, wrote a letter in favor of the zoning amendment.

"As crafted, the industrial C zoning proposal will provide an alternative to industrial A and B districts without impacting dimensional and use requirements in the industrial zones.

"Since some industrial B zones are situated in close proximity to residential properties, it is reasonable to create a new industrial district that provides for a height limitation of four stories rather than eight," he wrote.

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

The City Council took the following action at Monday night's meeting:

- Approved $16,000 to pay for a new traffic control unit at the intersection of Newport Avenue and Hobart Street which was demolished in an automobile accident a year ago. Stop and Shop originally had provided the unit as part of its traffic mitigation.

- Approved spending $5,500 for fire alarms, $5,000 for emergency management and $4,000 for a new meter at the Lincoln-Hancock School to measure chlorine in the swimming pool.

- Approved adding $12,500 to the non-contributory pensions account, subject to the state enabling legislation. Sixty-one employees or widows of employees hired prior to 1939 by the city are affected.

- Directed John Aldrich, who wants to build a deck at his condominium at Harbourside Condominiums at Marina Bay, to secure planning board approval. Because the property lies in a planned unit development district, planning board approval must be obtained first before the council can grant approval. The Council will review the request again Dec. 7.

- Accepted three donations from the William Deagan Memorial Road Race — $750 to the Montclair School, $750 to the Snug Harbor School and $1,000 to the Manet Community Health Center.

- Accepted a $100 gift from the Houghs Neck American Legion Auxiliary Unit 380 for the underwater dive team vehicle command post.

- Approved a Jan. 1 date for Quincy Youth Hockey bingo because three upcoming holidays fall on their regularly scheduled Thursday night games.

PETER CHRISOM

LYOYD HILL

Chrisom, Hill Parade Co-Grand Marshals

Retired Principals Peter Chrisom of North Quincy High School and Lloyd Hill of Quincy High School will be Co-Grand Marshals for Sunday's Christmas Parade.

The two educators' combined years of service in the Quincy public school system as teachers, assistant principals, and principals spans almost 75 years.

Hill, who was appointed principal of Quincy High School in 1978, retired last January. Chrisom, who became North Quincy High School principal in 1972, retired last June.

The two will ride open touring cars with members of their families at the head of the parade.

Lighting To Be Turned On Friday

The holiday season will begin Friday in Quincy when the Christmas lights will be turned on at Constitution Common in front of City Hall.

The lights will be switched on at 8 p.m. but there will be a program before beginning at 6:50 p.m.

Gary, "the Sildest Clown" will present a Christmas program for children and costumed characters will distribute candy-canes to youngsters starting at 6:30 p.m.

Officials and winners of the elementary schools' Christmas poster contest will be introduced at 7:10 p.m. The North Quincy High School Select Choral Group, directed by Tracey O'Sullivan, will present a special Christmas music program.

Between 7:55 and 8 p.m., Santa is expected to make a brief appearance.

In case of inclement weather, ceremonies will be held at Presidents Galleria, 1250 Hancock St, Quincy Square.

Winning contest posters will be displayed in the windows of The Quincy Sun and other downtown locations.

Santa Mail Box At City Hall Plaza

A "Santa Mail Box" for children to write letters to Santa will be placed in City Hall Plaza-Constitution Common this Friday.

Children can write letters to Santa and place them in the boxes. The letters will be mailed to Santa's North Pole address.

Two Retailers Eye Quincy Center Location

By MARILYN JACKSON

Two well-known retailers could be moving into Quincy in early 1999, according to Joseph Zink, senior vice president of Atlantic Management Inc.

"We've been speaking with a couple of tenants, and hopefully, within the next 60 days, they will be scheduled to go in," said Zink.

He declined to identify the stores.

The retailers are looking at the building at 169 Parkway, previously occupied by the Big Party, which had acquired Paperama a few years ago, and Bed and Bath.

The building has been vacant since mid-August, Zink said. Big Party had leased 33,000 square feet, while Bed and Bath had leased 14,500 square feet.

Zink said he had been "waiting for the Quincy Center Concourse to get going, to see the start of it."

Bids for the first phase of the project, which will link Burgin Parkway to Hancock Street, will be opened Dec. 1.

"This is a state project, and there's $9 million available for this work," Mayor James Sheets said Monday.

"We've worked on this for seven to eight years," he said. "Originally, this work was planned to be part of Burgin Parkway, but then-Mayor Frank McCauley postponed it."

He acknowledged that the project has taken a considerable time to bring it to this point. "But it's a state project," he said. Because the road will go over the MBTA and commuter rail tracks, the T is also involved he said.

Bids for construction of the first phase of the new roadway will be opened Dec. 1, Sheets said, and construction could begin next spring. The second phase of the project, extending the concourse to McGrath Highway, is at the 25 percent designed stage, he said.

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, said there has been a lot of interest in that property.

"And with the development of the concourse, we will see a lot of interest once the roadway is under construction."

"The concourse will provide better access to Hancock Street and to the parking garage and will provide a beautified boulevard, with new red, white and blue signage with two stars for the Presidents Adams. It will be a new entrance way for the city."

Mannarino said Quincy 2000 has talked to other property owners in the area as well.

"All properties along the concourse will become much more attractive once the concourse is built," added Michael Rie, economic development coordinator for Quincy 2000. "There are a number of retail and office buildings around there, and property owners would decide whether to develop or do new projects" once the concourse is built.

"Many of the buildings don't face onto the future

path of the concourse, so owners may reorient their buildings, or they may have greater plans to redevelop their property," Rie added. "There's a lot

New Design For World War II Memorial

By BERT GARR

Proposed nearly three years ago, plans for a Merrymount Park statue honoring all who served in World War II have finally been completed after some changes to the design.

The latest change adds a Marine to the figures represented.

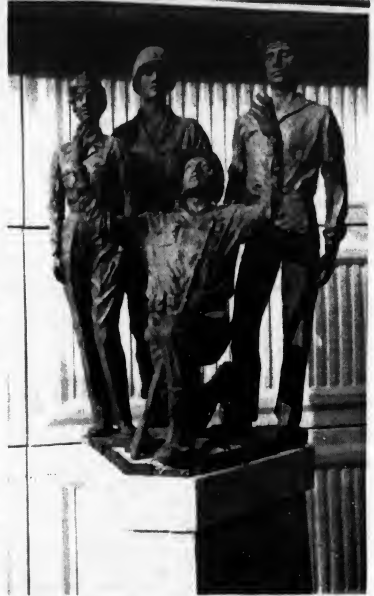

The addition of the Marine brings the number of figures represented on the statue from three to four.

Previously the statue had featured a sailor, meant to represent all who served in the Navy and Coast Guard, a woman meant to symbolize all women who served in a wartime capacity, and a soldier shown kneeling, throwing his hands to the sky and thanking God that the War has ended.

The position of the kneeling soldier's arms was also changed to clarify the idea that the soldier was reaching his arms to heaven and not surrendering to enemy forces.

The soldier's expression of emotion was modeled after a real occurrence.

Like to be mortgage-free by the time you retire?

Trade your current 30-year mortgage in for a 15-Year Mortgage from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. The monthly payment's a bit higher, but chances are you're earning more now and it's a great form of "forced saving." The benefits? You lock in your mortgage at the lowest rates seen since the 1960s, you save tens of thousands of dollars in interest, you build equity faster and - by the time you retire - you'll be mortgage-free! It's what people dream of and right now the dream is closer than ever.

Come see us and we'll run the numbers for you. Or call Richard or Angela at 617-471-0750.

	30-YEAR MORTGAGE $100,000	15-YEAR MORTGAGE $100,000
Rate	8%	6 1/2%
P&I Payment	$733.77	$871.11
Total Paid	$264,157	$156,800

If you can pay $137 more a month on your mortgage, you can save $107,357 in interest. It's a great deal!

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

On November 24, 1832, a South Carolina convention passed the Ordinance of Nullification against a permanent tariff, threatening to withdraw from the Union ... November 29, 1916, the U.S. established a military government in the Dominican Republic ... November 26, 1950, China sent troops across its border to counter UN forces ... November 24, 1963, Lee Harvey Oswald was shot and fatally wounded by Jack Ruby, a nightclub owner ... November 28, 1995, the federal 55-mile-per-hour speed limit was repealed by a measure signed on this day ... November 23-25, 1996, leaders of the 18-member nations of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum met in Manila, Philippines, with concerns about China occupying much of their time ... November 24, 1996, First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton arrived in Thailand for a visit; President Clinton joined her there the next day, on the first such visit by a U.S. president November 25, 1996, the APEC leaders declared that they would eliminate tariffs on most computers and other high-tech products by 2000; about 80 percent of the world trade in these products involved the APEC nations, but some nations, including China, had resisted tariff reduction over concerns about protecting their industries ... November 25-26, 1996, during intense questioning from Daniel Petrecoli, a lawyer for the plaintiffs (the Goldman and Brown families) in the O.J. Simpson wrongful death civil suit, O.J. Simpson denied ever striking or beating his ex-wife; however, confronted with a photograph showing Nicole Simpson with a battered appearance after an incident in which he had pleaded guilty to spousal abuse, Simpson conceded he had been "wrongly physical" ... November 29, 1996, Republicans asked the Justice Dept. to appoint an independent counsel to investigate the Democrats' questionable fund-raising tactics, but Deputy Asst. Attorney General Mark Richard said there was "no specific credible evidence at this time that any individual covered by the provisions of the Independent Counsel Act has committed any federal crime."

30th Anniversary Comments

We've had some nice comments from readers on our recent 30th anniversary issue of The Sun.

But we knew, as we researched it, that we were risking overlooking some events and people. And, we did, disappointing some readers.

Quincy is a pretty active community. Trying to keep track of everything that happened here over 30 years is really "Mission Impossible." However, we think we did recap most of it.

But there were omissions. I don't know, for example, how we missed the death of Msgr. James Scally, popular pastor of St. Ann's Church. An anonymous reader reminded us that he died Aug. 7, 1987 and added, "he is sorely missed."

We also missed the death of long-time friend, George Alcott, retired city Sealer of Weights and Measures and dedicated secretary of the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

And, to make that oversight even worse, his wife, Marilyn, reminded us that George died Sept. 26, 1993-on the 25th anniversary of The Sun.

We heard from several readers for not mentioning Maureen Hallen's appointment as assistant city clerk. Don't know how we could have done that to a good friend who is doing such a good job since succeeding the late Pat Toland.

Bill Sullivan, retired legendary Quincy High School football coach, and another good friend, wrote:

"Congratulations on the 30th anniversary of The Sun. The supplement will be a valuable history reference for the teachers and students in our schools and a wonderful keep-sake for all families in the future."

"On many of the recent trips I have taken to other parts of the country I stop to visit with old friends from Quincy. I am always surprised with their knowledge of Quincy events. Their reply is, 'We get The Quincy Sun in the mail.'"

"Thank you for your coverage of Quincy sports-especially the two local high schools. The pictures and write-ups are a great motivating factor for players and coaches as well as a source of interest to the fans."

"I enjoyed the testimonial given to you by Bob Derbes, in particular his reference to the Quincy Point connection."

(And, did you know that Bill is a former Quincy Pointer, too?)

Former Mayor Joseph LaRaia said: "Enjoyed reading 30 years of memories in the supplement to The Sun."

And, jokingly added: "I was only mayor two years but I got my picture in it (the supplement) four times."

Joan Parkes of Marlborough wrote:

"I enjoyed the 30th anniversary issue of The Quincy Sun to the extent of reading it until 2 a.m. this morning. It was especially meaningful as we lived in Quincy."

"Since returning East in 1981 (from California) I heard stories of the 1978 blizzard first hand. National TV gave only two or three repetitive snippets of the scene."

"Also, I met many friends and acquaintances in print in the supplement and was happy to hear about them. Keep up the good work!"

Janet (Hall) Floore of Green Valley Drive, Louisville, Ky. wrote:

"I had lived in Quincy until I married in 1984. My whole family still lives in the Quincy Point, Adams Shore and Wollaston areas."

"I really enjoyed looking back at all the articles about General Dynamics, St. John the Baptist Church and Quincy Junior College of which I graduated in 1984. My father worked on the ships at the shipyard and we spent many Sundays at the christenings of the ships."

"I had forgotten how rich in history our fair city is and all the wonderful people that have gone to pass. I really enjoy all of the happy memories I have of Quincy. I myself have been in your paper several times. In 1979 in the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant and again in '83 and '84 for my engagement and wedding pictures."

"Thank you for all the joy you bring your readers. I had a few good laughs and I shed a few tears."

Charles Morris, Jr. of Commercial St., Braintree, wrote:

"Although I live in Braintree, I am still a Quincy boy at heart. South Quincy, to be exact-God's Country."

"I have been an avid reader of The Quincy Sun for years. I read with great interest the 30th anniversary edition. Congratulations."

Morris, who graduated from Quincy High School in 1941-the school's "first cap and gown graduating class"-adds: "I will march down the field to the music forever. Two most popular words in November: Beat North!"

A nice card from old friends Norma and Peter Gacia: "Congratulations on a most successful 30th!"

And from Adelaide Dineen of Hancock St., Wollaston, another good friend going back to my early newspaper days as a police beat reporter and who was so helpful in the admitting office at Quincy Hospital: "Best wishes to you. Go for 50!"

Twenty more years! Don't know if there's enough gas in the old tank.

Financial Aid Seminar At NQHS Dec. 3

A financial aid seminar hosted by the counseling departments of Quincy High School and North Quincy High School will be held Thursday, Dec. 3 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the auditorium at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St.

A representative of the Massachusetts Educational Financing Authority

(MEFA) will discuss various aspects of financial aid and the process parents and students go through when applying to college. The seminar will teach parents how to fill out financial aid application forms, the process of filing the appropriate forms, how financial aid is calculated and awarded, how to compare financial aid award letters, and making alternative financing decisions.

For more information, call Scott Price at MEFA at (617) 261-9760 or North Quincy High School at (617) 984-8747.

READERS' FORUM

Honoring Local Heroes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Recently, I read a letter to the editor in USA Today from Baltimore, Md. The letter writer tried to define the term "hero."

According to him, "Heroes are not home-run sluggers, slam-dunking hoopsters or record-breaking track runners. The real heroes are our parents, teachers, doctors, firefighters, police officers and everyday Americans who work 40 to 60 hours a week so that maybe their kids can have better lives."

As I read the letter which praised American soldiers, civil rights workers and the Oklahoma City rescue workers, I thought of people closer to home who are also heroes. Unsung but not taken for granted. Folks like the late Joe Harold Sr.

Recently, the Neponset River commuter rail bridge was renamed the Joseph R. Harold Sr. Memorial Bridge. According to City

Councillor Paul Harold, "The naming of the bridge is a son's tribute to his father and a public recognition." Added state Sen. Mike Morrissey, "Mr. Harold really was in the business of helping people and the bridge we have across Neponset, it helps people every day. It helps them get to school and get to work."

I also thought of former Ward 1 City Councillor Leo Kelly. A park at the corner of Manet Ave. and Sea Street in Houghs Neck was dedicated in his honor. Kelly served six terms on the council but his community service has been a lifetime. It wasn't something he did to get rich, it was something he did and continues to do because it is the right thing to do.

Mr. Harold became known as "Mr. Veteran" because of his work with the veterans. His work with the DAV is legendary, but he never did anything because it was his job as state assistant with the Mass. DAV for 43 years, he did it because it was the right thing to do.

Harold was a decorated World War II veteran, a real war hero but his greatest heroism came also in his later years helping others through some of their worst battles. Kelly was a city councillor and the job of a councilman is to represent his constituency but Kelly never did just his council duty. He was and remains a hero in his neighborhood, always trying to improve the quality of life for his neighbors and neighborhood.

You know, true heroes don't really need memorials because a true hero never sees himself or herself as one. We call them heroes for what they represent and for how they inspire us.

The other day while over at City Hall, I walked across McIntyre Mall and thought of another hero. He was a mayor and a state senator but more importantly he was someone who cared about his community and tried to help it. It's amazing James McIntyre was only 35 years old when he was first elected mayor. His job was political like Kelly's. He had his constituency and like Harold and Kelly, his greatness wasn't found in self-glorify.

Finally, as that Baltimore letter writer stated, we all can be real heroes in our own ordinary lives by doing what is best to help the community we are a part of. Most heroes don't get malls, parks or bridges named after them. But all of them are heroes by their words and actions. I'm glad we honor heroes in our midst. It is an important communal affair but we should also remember that we are all called to be heroes at some point in our lives.

The Kids Saw Through It

Editor: The Quincy Sun:
Congratulations to the Quincy Kids Vote Program (Quincy Sun, 11/5/98 for voting No on Question 1, the Campaign Financing Reform.

This question is public financing by taxpayers. Why should I support a candidate whose views are opposite to mine? More than likely most candidates take the popular or easy view of an issue. They never estimate what can happen down the line.

On Nov. 6, in the Herald, we read "Question 2 still needs to be passed by the legislature and could be altered." What a fraud! The people voted on something not already assured. The TV ads pronounced that the money would be given only to "qualified candidates." Who qualifies?

Once again, the people are deceived. Mr., Mrs. and Ms. Taxpayer shall start off paying $56 million a year to finance elections. Now Tom Finnegan estimates that the figure could be $100 million.

No, the wording wasn't that complicated. The kids saw through the deception; it was the adults who were asleep at the wheel!

Quincy's Yesterdays

Plans For New YMCA Unveiled

By PAUL HAROLD

Plans for the new Quincy YMCA were unveiled this week by Carle Hayward, YMCA president and chairman of the fund-raising campaign.

The new building would be located on the "Y" property at Coddington and Newcomb Streets, facing Quincy High School. The four-story portion would house the dormitories, with a new swimming pool, bowling alleys and gymnasiums located in the two-story building.

Building committee members were Floyd Folmsbee, Delcavare King, Mrs. Robert Faxon, Joseph Grossman, Mrs. Marjorie Bowen and George Daley.

PLANS READIED FOR YULE PROMENADE

John Lyons, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's yule promenade committee, announced preliminary plans for the annual downtown song fest.

Scores of youth and church singing groups were expected to participate. From 8:30 to 10:10 p.m., all store lights would be turned off, with only the Christmas tree along Hancock St. lighted.

MISS COSTELLO RETIRES AFTER 50 YEARS

Miss Mary Costello retired from teaching third grade at the Coddington School, after 50 years.

Described as a "stately teacher," she commented on the new generation of students saying they were more aggressive, bolder and not as well-behaved as their parents. "The trouble with today's students is that they've been given too much freedom—allowed to see too many movies," she said.

QUINCY-ISM

Johnny Pesky, the popular Red Sox player, gave out jackets at the Montclair Men's Club's testimonial for its Quincy Park League teams. Joseph Gildea was chairman, with "Red" King as master of ceremonies. . . Mayor Charles Ross called a meeting of the city's legislative delegation to discuss the MDC's plan to build a traffic rotary at Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Dr. The delegation consisted of Sen. John McKay, and Reps. William Jenness, Charles Hedges, Alfred Keith and Avery Gikerson. . . The Quincy Housing Authority was asking for names for its new $400,000 veterans' housing in West Quincy. . . Mrs. Lucy Brophy poured tea at the Court Corpus Christi, Catholic Daughters of America's annual Christmas bazaar at Lyceum Hall in Houghs Neck. . . Officers of the NQHS Alumni Association were James Will, president; Walter Bryan, treasurer; and Corinne LeBlanc, secretary. . . John Grossman donated a Quonset-type hut to serve as the headquarters for the city's March of Dimes campaign. It was located on Hancock St. between the Waldorf Building and the Chamber of Commerce. . . Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kolson celebrated their 10th anniversary. They had three children: Irene, age 8; Robert, 4; and Peter, 1. . . Houghs Neck resident Harold Shaw died. He played baseball for the Canadian league. . . Mrs. Richard Barry was chairman of the North Quincy Catholic Women's Club's annual Christmas fair. . . The Quincy V.A. office relocated from the Adams Academy to the second floor of the post office. . . UCT Counselor Kenneth Fallon, Jr., was appointed as a park commissioner, replacing Joseph Pinel. . . R.S. Robbie on Saville St. rented cars for $4.50 a day. . . Ten Papile sons followed their father, Ralph V., as members of the John Adams Eagle aerie. Seven were World War II veterans and William was the Ward 2 councillor-elect. Besides William, they were Ralph J., Edward, John, Albert, Alfonso, James, Leo, Angelo, and George. . . Peter Corea of Woburn was ordained as pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church. . . Past Grand Knight (GK) Alfred Helfrich was chairman for the past GK Walter Ervin's testimonial. . . Quincy Rotary joined Brintree Rotary's effort to send "Bundles to Brintree, England" to aid needy families. Bert Eckblom and Arthur McGilvray were on the committee. . . Fred Hoffstein was elected commander of the Quincy Jewish War Veterans.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Turkey Stuffing, Sweet Potato Pie

Here is that time of year again and if you are the one doing the cooking as I am, here are two recipes that can be made ahead, for a more relaxed day.

One is for stuffing and the other is for sweet potato pie.

Easy Turkey Stuffing

giblets and livers from turkey (cut up small) (optional)
6 ounces ground beef or pork, or both
6 slices bread (soaked)
1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs
2 cups stuffing mix (soaked)
1 medium chopped onion
2 stalks chopped celery
1 egg
1 cup water
salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup white wine (optional)
2 tablespoons oil

In hot oil, saute the celery and onion. Add the meats you are using and cook until blended. Add the wine, water, stuffing mix, soaked bread and egg. Add more water if too dry and more breadcrumb if watery. If you want just bread stuffing, eliminate the meat and follow the same recipe.

Stuffing should be completely cooled before placing it in the turkey just before roasting. Preheat oven to 425. Upon placing the turkey in the oven reduce heat to 350 degree and roast 20 minutes to the pound.

Sweet Potato Pie

1 1/2 cups mashed sweet potatoes
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs slightly beaten
1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 cups cream
2 tablespoons melted butter
1/4 tsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 nine inch pie crust unbaked

Mix all ingredients together until well blended. Place in the unbaked pie crust. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 10 minutes, reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for another 35 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Happy Thanksgiving!

NAILING DOWN THE COLOR

About the only colors that come to mind for most people when they think of the toenails go by names such as Blushing Berry and Perfectly Plum. If you pay attention, however, the color of toenails can reveal a lot about a body's general health. For example, a bluish-gray tint to the nails may be a sign of certain heart and lung diseases. Pale nails are common among people suffering from anemia. Small black spots visible underneath the nail may indicate a heart valve infection. Little white patches often appear after an injury or due to certain vitamins or mineral deficiencies. When a toe injury is severe, a nail may blacken completely and eventually fall off. When bacteria invade an injury, the nail may turn greenish black. Discoloration and minor deformities usually clear up without special treatment, when the underlying condition is relieved. If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

P.S. A groove may appear crosswise in a nail following any illness, due to poor nail growth. The condition is usually temporary.

'Look Good...Feel Better' Program At Quincy Hospital Nov. 30

Quincy Hospital will host the American Cancer Society, in partnership with the Cosmetic, Toiletary and Fragrance Association (CTFA) and the National Cosmetology Association (NCA), "Look Good...Feel Better" program at the hospital, 114 Whitwell St., from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 30 in Conference Rooms B & C.

The program is free and open to people living with cancer.

The program teaches newly diagnosed cancer patients or those who are undergoing chemotherapy or radiation treatment how to enhance their appearance during treatment. A cosmetologist will instruct participants how to use makeup, wigs and other accessories to regain self image and confidence during a time when looks may change due to treatment.

PATRICIA FRANKLIN (left) of Quincy, Quincy Visiting Nurse Association Home Care Aide, displays the Home Care Aide of the Year Award she recently received from the Massachusetts Council for Home Care Aide Services. Congratulating her is Geri Dussault, QVNA Home Care Aide manager.

Patricia Franklin Named Home Care Aide Of The Year

Patricia Franklin of Quincy, a Home Care Aide with Quincy Hospital's Quincy Visiting Nurse Association (QVNA), has been named Home Care Aide of the Year by the Massachusetts Council for Home Care Aide Services.

The award honors the commitment, compassion and personal skills exemplified by professional Home Care Aides in Massachusetts. In addition to the award, Franklin received a citation from Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci for outstanding service.

Franklin has been employed QVNA for over six years. In that time, she has consistently provided outstanding patient care evidenced through numerous letters received from patients expressing their gratitude for the care she has provided. She also helps orient new QVNA Home Care Aides.

"Pat was nominated for her ability to assist clients in our community and to serve as a role model for her peers," said Geri Dussault, QVNA Home Care Aide manager. "She takes pride in what she does and always has a smile for her clients. She is what Quincy Visiting Nurse Association is all about."

Home Care Aides work under a medically-supervised plan of care to assist clients and/or family caregivers with household management and personal care. The responsibilities of the Home Care Aide include assisting with the activities of daily living, non-sterile wound care and assistance with self-medication, prescribed exercises and rehabilitation activities.

In addition to caring for patients, Franklin also volunteers her time to work on committees and participate in fund-raisers.

Jennifer Fell, Nail Technician

Jennifer has been a member of the Eugene Thomas Salon team since September. During this time, she has worked as a professional manicurist, working primarily in the art of natural nails. Jennifer is a graduate of North Quincy High School. After graduating she proceeded to attend Quincy Beauty Academy, where she specialized in nails.

A natural manicure focuses on nail health and appearance. Other services offered include changing of nail polish, massaging of the hands and arms, and bleaching of stained nails. With the natural look coming back into style, the nail aspect of style is soon to follow. Eugene Thomas uses and sells O.P.I. products exclusively. It is a strong polish and can take a lot. The charge is $12 for a natural manicure and $18 for a natural manicure which includes a massage or bleach and french manicures as well.

Pedicuring beautifies and relaxes the client. Pedicuring helps with dryness, cracking, fatigue and cramping. A pedicure entails cleaning, clipping and shaping of the nail, moisturizing and pushing back of the cuticles and filing & buffing of the feet. It also includes a foot and lower leg massage. A pedicure lasts about 1 1/2 hours and the charge is $20.

In Wake Of Violence

Raymondi Proposes DOVE Member On Policing Commission

By MARILYN JACKSON

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi has proposed adding a representative of DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) or an advocate for domestic violence prevention to the Community-Oriented Policing and Problem-Solving (COPPS) Commission.

COPPS was created last summer; Raymondi said he hoped the Council could act on the proposal at its Dec. 7 meeting. Mayor James Sheets will make the appointment. The proposed ordinance change is advertised this week.

"In light of the tragic murder of a woman on Dysart Street, the result of domestic violence, and the disappearance of a woman in Houghs Neck, I felt the whole issue of domestic violence could be reexamined.

"I'm not on the commission," said Raymondi, "but this would be an opportunity to focus on how the city, the police department and the district courthouse deal with domestic violence with the idea of improving the entire system."

"This is an important issue that needs to constantly be addressed to make sure we are doing all we can to protect victims of domestic violence and potential victims," Raymondi said.

COPPS presently consists of 20 members from a wide spectrum of the city, including the Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, School Superintendent Eugene Creedon, Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park Department, Barry Welch, director of the Recreation Department, Lt. William Falco, president of the Superior Officers Association, Capt. Don Riley, of the Community Police and Officer Robert Hanna, Officer Tom Connors, president of the Patrol Officers Association, John Mather, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, Father Bob Monagle of St. Joseph's Parish, Josephine Shea of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department, Linda Stice, director of the Quincy Commission on Family, Thomas Fabrizio of the Division of Social Services and Bruce Carr of the Quincy District Court Probation Department.

Neighborhood representatives include Paula Nicholson, Normand Goyette and Michael J. Kenney. Police Chief Thomas Franc is commission chairman.

Raymondi, an advocate for community policing, said the commission was organized in an effort to bring a pro-active approach to crime and to conditions that generate crime across the city.

Adding an individual who works with domestic violence victims could bring broader understanding of the issue to the commission.

According to Ann Marie Simone, executive director of DOVE, during the last fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1998, the agency saw more than 1,000 women through its outreach program. They were women from Quincy and the surrounding area, which she defined as Greater Boston and the South Shore, principally Norfolk County.

In addition, DOVE sheltered 153 women and 292 children last year and referred another 627 women and children to other shelters because it was not safe for them to be in Quincy, Simone said. She said DOVE also received 2,570 calls on its 24-hour hotline.

"We take calls from anywhere," she said. "We want everybody to know the number to call — 617-471-1234 — and that there is help available.

"There's not just one way to be safe," she said. "There are many options. We want people to call us.

"Knowing the phone number, having an extra set of car keys, an extra bag packed for you and kids are common safety tips," she said. "But each case is different for every woman.

"We work individually with each woman, but she knows her batterer best," Simone said.

Protecting Your Home

(NAPS)—Would you remember if you had a bomb in the basement? Probably, but many people forget how potentially dangerous their water heaters can be.

If they explode, many water heaters possess enough stored energy to launch themselves right through the roof. Luckily, protective measures can greatly reduce your accident risk.

To keep your water heater operating safely, here are some common safety questions, answered by the National Board of Boiler and Pressure Vessel Inspectors.

Q: What is a boiler?

A: A piece of equipment in which water is heated, steam is generated, steam is superheated, or any combination thereof, by the application of heat from combustible fuels, electricity, or solar energy.

Q: I don't have a boiler in my home, why should I be concerned?

A: Although not classified as a boiler, the domestic water heater found in every home technically fits within the criteria listed above. Explosions involving water heaters generate enough impact (energy force) to lift a house off of its foundation.

Q: Are water heaters dangerous?

A: When installed improperly or operated improperly, the potential for danger exists. However, safety devices installed on water heaters help minimize the risks.

The most important

To protect your home from devastating accidents, it's important to have your boiler inspected periodically. Qualified personnel can quickly recognize potential problems. In this home the water heater overheated to the point of leveling a house to its foundation.

safety device found on any water heater is the combination of temperature and pressure relief valve. The valve is designed to relieve the pressure in the water heater due to high temperature or high pressure.

Q: Can steam be produced in a water heater?

A: While not impossible, it is improbable. The most dangerous condition which can exist is water exceeding 212 degrees Fahrenheit while still pressurized.

Under these conditions, steam will be produced at any point when the pressure is released, such as a spigot or a rupture in the water heater shell.

When the high temperature water is released to the atmosphere, it will flash immediately to steam with a corresponding volume increase of approximately 1600 times.

Q: What happens if the water heater ruptures?

A: Upon a malfunction of the operating and safety controls, the water temperature can exceed 212 degrees F. A rupture in the pressure-retaining material will result in a tremendous release of energy (an explosion), causing severe property damage and possibly injury and loss of life.

To prevent accidents, many concerned Americans are asking their state legislatures to strengthen and enforce boiler and pressure vessel inspection and safety laws.

For the name of the chief boiler inspector in your area, write The National Board of Boiler and Pressure Vessel Inspectors, Communications Dept., 1055 Crupper Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43229-1183, call (614) 888-8320 or send e-mail to getinfo@nationalboard.org.

Groundbreaking Ceremony Held At Faxon Woods Community

Atlantic Development hosted a groundbreaking recently for Faxon Woods Retirement Community, a $30 million community designed with 330 units in three distinct buildings for Independent Living, Assisted Living and for persons with Alzheimer's disease.

The first building will be operated by Amicus Healthcare to provide care for people with Alzheimer's. The new 35,000-square-foot facility will provide living space for 60 persons and is expected to open in mid-1999.

The Assisted Living building will be 110,000 square feet and designed to accommodate 140 people. The Independent Living building is approximately 120,000 square feet and designed to accommodate approximately 170 people. The Assisted Living building and Independent Living buildings are expected to be completed in late 1999.

Local representatives joined officials from Atlantic Development and Amicus Healthcare for the groundbreaking. Speakers included Atlantic Development President Donald J. McKinnon and Amicus Healthcare Director of Development Thomas Gaston, as well as Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymond and John Keenan, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets.

"This groundbreaking signals the beginning of construction for an important addition to the City of Quincy," said McKinnon. "Amicus Healthcare is known for the high quality, compassionate care it provides residents of its facilities."

Construction of the Faxon Woods Retirement Community continues the development of the Granite Crossing area which has been master planned for over 1 million square feet of mixed use development by Atlantic Development.

Since 1995, Atlantic Development has completed the first three phases of Granite Crossing which include: Roche Bros. Supermarket, Wal-Mart and the Avalon at Faxon Park luxury apartments. Additionally, 10 homes being built by Habitat for Humanity, known as Granite Village, are on abutting land donated by Atlantic Development.

Christmas Poster Contest Winners Announced

More than 1,000 Quincy elementary school children in both public and parochial schools participated in the annual Christmas poster contest, sponsored by the Christmas Festival Committee.

Prizes of $100, $75 and $50 savings bonds were awarded in two judging categories — Grades 1 through 3 and Grades 4 and 5. Honorable mention ribbons were awarded to 10 children in each judging category.

The three winning posters in each judging category will be displayed in the Quincy Sun window in Quincy Center, starting Friday, Nov. 27. The honorable mention posters will be displayed in various store windows on Hancock Street in Quincy Center during the holiday season.

Winning first prize were

Danielle DiSciaccia, a fifth grader at the Squantum School and Jane Le Pham, a third grader at the Sacred Heart School. Second prize winners were Michael Capone, a fourth grader at the Squantum School and Steven Morreale, a second grader at the Squantum School. Third prizes went to Megan Sullivan, a fourth grader at St. Ann's School and Kevin Nguyen, a third grader at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

Honorable mentions in the Grades 4 and 5 category were awarded to the following: Sarah Koo and Stephanie Sakenaris of the Squantum School, Paul Kuska and Meghan McColgan of St. Ann's School; David Correia and Ali Chaudhry of the Marshall School, Linda Man of the Parker School, Virginia Hsia of Beechwood Knoll School, Stephen Nguyen of the Lincoln-Hancock School and Stephanie Wong of the Montclair School.

Honorable mention awards in Grades 1, 2 and 3 were presented to Ashley Costa, Lindsay Reilly, Jessica Ketner Gril and Sarah Minton, all students at Beechwood Knoll School, Ian Wright of the Wollaston School, Derek McFarlane of the Marshall School, Andrew Bell of the Squantum School, Alicia Fitzpatrick of the Bernazzani School and Coral Trivedi and Matthew Coughlin of the Montclair School.

Central Middle School Students Collect Over 2,500 Boxes Of Food

Students at Central Middle School are renewing their tradition of community service throughout the year by holding a canned food drive in November and "The Care and Share" program this month.

More than 2,500 boxes and cans of food were donated by students to the Food Pantry at the Interfaith Social Service Agency in Quincy. Food is distributed to more than 250 area families in need, each month.

McDonald's Restaurant in Quincy has supported the program by donating lunch in the homeroom in each grade which brought in the most donated food.

December marks the beginning of the Care and Share program in which students work together with their classmates on fund-raisers to purchase clothing for families in need. The Interfaith Social Service Agency will identify the ages and clothing sizes of area family members, so that new clothing can be purchased for them prior to the holiday season.

The Quincy McDonald's is again supporting the Central students by donating one dozen Teenie Beanie Babies for a drawing. Tickets, which are $5 each, can be purchased at the McDonald's on Southern Artery.

Proceeds will go toward the purchase of clothing for the Care and Share program.

Morrissey Office Hours Here Monday

Sen. Michael Morrissey will hold office hours Monday, Nov. 30 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in Quincy City Hall, second floor conference room.

Citizens are invited to voice their opinions on legislative issues and community interests. Morrissey or a staff member will be available to assist people in filing legislation for the next legislative session or address their concerns. Legislation for the 1999-2000 legislative session must be filed by Wednesday, Dec. 2.

Those unable to attend Monday, contact Morrissey at (617) 722-1494, fax him at (617) 722-1055 or by e-mail at mmorris@senate.state.ma.us.

Popular Unit Stepping Into Retirement After 25 Years

Sunday's Parade The Final March For The Klassy Clowns

By JOHN NOONAN

The Klassy Clowns will make their final march down Hancock St. in Sunday's Quincy Christmas Parade, ending an era.

Sponsored by the Dedham Knights of Columbus, the popular unit has entertained paradegoers here and elsewhere for the past 25 years.

As the members complete the 2.8 mile parade route, they will step into retirement.

Initially the Klassy Clowns were invited by owners of Barry's restaurant in Quincy to assist in the lighting of Quincy Center. The band's Christmas participation in the parade then became a tradition.

Retirement of the members, all Knights of Columbus or Columbian Squires, with the exception of the two female banner bearers, is bittersweet.

According to Robert Dunne, longtime coordinator of the unit, the ranks of the members have been reduced due to age, relocation, retirement elsewhere, and, sadly, death.

Dunne said that the memories each member has retained in the participation or observation will be the sweetest pair of their recollections.

Recollections include the horn player who celebrated his 25th wedding anniversary marching through Norwood Center on the Fourth of July as his wife ran beside him to shout "happy anniversary!"

Then there was the clown who, year after year, parade after parade, held an empty dog leash and encouraged parade viewers to pet the invisible dog to the delight of young and old alike.

There was also a drum major who was led to believe he was in control whenever he blew his whistle, only to find that the band members were busy socializing with the crowd and were not ready to respond to his calls to order.

Dunne said that every member has his own personal memory of parades in hot, cold, long, short, windy and cloudy weather.

They'll also remember marching behind Army tanks or horses, preferring the tanks.

They will never forget the aroma of cooking corned beef in South Boston and the smell of fried dough and pasta sauce in the North End. Then there were the stories traded on bus rides home about events of the day and the plans for improvements to make the marching better for the next time.

Dunne acknowledged the sadness that goes along with knowing that, after

IT WILL BE the end of an era when the popular Klassy Clowns make their final appearance in Sunday's Christmas parade and then step into retirement. (Quincy Sun Photo/Charles Flagg)

Sunday, there will be no next time.

Dunne conceded that it was unlikely any of any member of his family or many others will ever again stand on the corner, watch a parade, and not feel a pang of nostalgia.

Each will say, "I was there and it was great."

It will be the end of 25 short years this Christmas season. But the happy, fond, and caring mental images will linger with the Klassy Clowns for years to come.

They've been a real "klass" act.

Quincy Schools Robotics Team Developing Robot For Competitions

For the fourth consecutive year, the Quincy Public Schools Robotics team is developing a robot for the regional and national FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) competition in January.

Approximately 140 students from North Quincy High, Quincy High and the Center for Technical Education are working together to create robotic drive trains. The QPS Robotics team name is HYPER which stands for Helping Youth Pursue Engineering and Robotics.

FIRST Robotics is a national engineering competition which professionals work with students to introduce them to the field of engineering. Students and engineers brainstorm, design, construct, and test a robot for competition.

Working with engineers and machinists from Gillette Co., the corporate sponsor, students are divided into five sub-teams: animation, web page development, design and construction, and Chairman's award.

Using computer software, the animation group is creating a 30-second clip on the robotics project. The web page development group is learning how to use HTML to create a web page (<http://www.qhs.gillette.com>) representing QPS Robotics.

There are two design teams working independently, each with engineers and machinists from Gillette, to create competing drive trains. Students in the Chairman's award team are working to document the progress of the entire team. The documentation will be submitted to FIRST as evidence of the teamwork needed to succeed in this project.

The public can support QPS Robotics trip to the national competition by attending the upcoming Holiday Dinner Theatre at the Quincy Masonic Building, 1170 Hancock St., Quincy Center, on Wednesday, Dec. 2. Tickets for the show are $25 each and include dinner at 6:30 p.m. followed by the show at 8 p.m.

For tickets and information, contact Jerry Quintiliani at 984-8745 or David Smith at 984-8839. Reservations are required.

Win Would Snap Four-Game Skid North's Seniors Strive To Go Out As Winners

By LIAM FITZGERALD

For the seniors on the North Quincy High School football team, this year's annual Thanksgiving Day showdown with Quincy is of the utmost importance.

Besides the usual motivation to defeat their long-time rival, North's seniors do not want a repeat of last year, when a fourth straight Quincy victory denied NQ's senior class of a Thanksgiving triumph during their high school careers.

"It's important to them, because they haven't won a Thanksgiving game in their first three years here," said North head coach Ken McPhee, who will lead the Red Raiders into Veterans Memorial Stadium on Thursday for the 10 a.m. kickoff.

"It's a big game for those kids, and the incentive is definitely there. They want to win one of these before they go. We won't have any problem getting them up for this one, that's for sure."

Despite all the hoopla that surrounds the fall's biggest sporting event in Quincy, McPhee and his coaching staff are working to ensure that the players' focus remains on one goal: winning on Thanksgiving.

"They've been very focused in practice, even with all the distractions that come up this time of year," he said. "They know there's a game to play and the coaches have done a good job keeping them focused on football."

Although both teams have had their share of struggles this season (combining for a 1-17 record to this point), McPhee is well aware of the importance the game holds for both teams.

"A win is what the kids need, but Quincy wants the same thing, because they haven't won one yet," he said. "It all comes down to one game. The rest of the season is forgotten once this game starts."

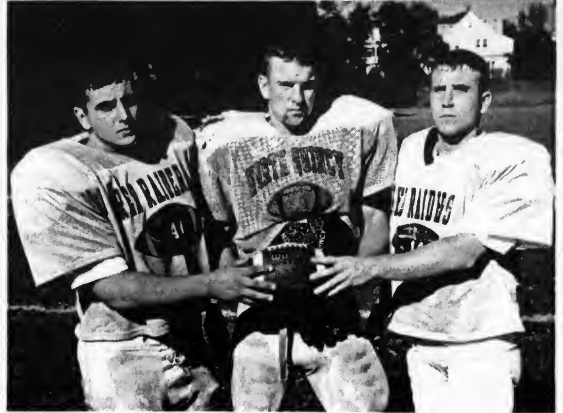

Back for another shot at Quincy are senior co-captains Chris Bregoli, Frank McNamara and Adam Tiro, all of whom will be counted on for leadership and strong efforts from the coaching staff.

Starting his second Thanksgiving game at quarterback, Bregoli recently returned from a shoulder injury and threw for over 250 yards and two scores in a loss to Hingham. Bregoli (two TD passes, four two-point conversion passes, four extra point kicks, one field goal this season) nearly led North to the tying score in the waning moments of last year's 7-0 loss to Quincy, but ran out of time.

"Chris played well in our last game and has looked good in practice, making the right reads and hitting receivers in stride," said McPhee. "He's ready to go and knows what to expect after playing in last year's game."

One of Bregoli's main targets will be McNamara, who has averaged just under 10 catches a game and was recently named to the Old Colony League All-Star team for the second consecutive season. Junior Jody Bravo has also been a reliable receiver, catching three touchdowns.

"We'll come out and throw, because that's what we do best," said McPhee. "We've had a lot of success throwing the ball. Frank's our best receiver and Jody has been a good one for us, making some big catches."

Out of the backfield, North uses a combination of speedy tailbacks (senior Kevin Shaw, junior Steve Minukas) and a powerful fullback (junior Brian Deptula). Deptula has scored five rushing touchdowns, while Shaw has run for one touchdown.

Defensively, McPhee is most concerned with the athletic, mobile quarterback from Quincy, junior Dan Kelly, who has compiled four rushing TD's, two TD passes, a two-point conversion run, a two-point conversion pass and kicked three extra points this fall.

"I think Kelly is one of the best QB's in the OCL," he said. "He's a great athlete who has a very strong arm and makes things happen."

NQ will also keep a close eye on Quincy tailback Nathan DoRosario, who scored the lone touchdown in last year's 7-0 win. Quincy wide receiver John Katsarikas has missed a few games due to injury but is a threat with his explosive speed, said McPhee.

Regarding Quincy's success in the late stages of the last few contests, McPhee said the Red Raiders will guard against that by playing the entire game until the final whistle blows.

"We have to make the plays down the stretch and not let Quincy put something together late," he said. "If we do that and can win the game, it would be a lot more pleasant Thanksgiving than in recent years."

Raiders' Deptula Leading Scorer

North Quincy fullback Brian Deptula is the leading scorer going into the Thanksgiving Day classic between Quincy and North Quincy.

The 6-0, 230-pound junior has scored five touchdowns and 30 of North's 96 points. He scored a touchdown in four of the first five games and scored the only touchdown in North's lone victory, 7-0 over Silver Lake.

North's second-leading scorer is junior wide receiver Jody Bravo, who has caught three touchdowns and four two-point conversions, for a total of 26 points. Senior quarterback Chris Bregoli has compiled 19 points with two TD passes, four two-point conversion passes, four extra points and a field goal.

Leading the way for Quincy with 29 points is junior quarterback Dan Kelly, who has rushed for four touchdowns and a two-point conversion, tossed two TD passes and a two-point conversion and kicked three extra points.

Two others are tied for second with 12 points apiece: senior fullback Nathan DoRosario, with a rushing touchdown and a fumble recovery return for another score, and junior wide receiver Nick DiStasi, the recipient of two TD passes from Kelly.

Drive For Five Motivates Presidents Winless Quincy Aims To Keep Streak Alive

By LIAM FITZGERALD

What would be the perfect way to end to a season marred by numerous injuries and setbacks?

Defeat North Quincy in the annual Thanksgiving Day football game, said Quincy High School head coach Peter Chella.

"This game can be either detrimental or beneficial, and I think for us it will be beneficial," he said. "It takes the focus off of the difficulties we've had. A win would be very big, because this is our last shot to get one. It would definitely cure all of our ills."

The Presidents (0-9) enter Thursday's 10 a.m. game at Veterans Memorial Stadium winless for the first time since 1987, according to then-Quincy head coach Jack Raymer. That season, Quincy tied North, 14-14, and finished with an 0-9-1 overall record.

Quincy, however, recently has held the edge in the Thanksgiving Day showdown, reeling off four straight victories. A fifth consecutive win would match the longest streak since Quincy captured five in a row from 1954 to 1958.

Chella, 3-0 on Thanksgiving as Quincy's head coach, said he would rather see his team play well than concern himself with any type of streak.

"The streak is not a big deal to me personally," he said. "Streaks aren't important, and I never mention it to them. I just want to see them go out and play well and win. I want them to have fun and enjoy the experience. If the kids make the plays and are able to win, that's great."

Although both teams have combined for a 1-17 record, Quincy and North have shown signs of improvement during the second half of the season.

Prior to a 27-0 loss to Barnstable on Nov. 13, the Presidents were narrowly edged by Silver Lake, 21-19, and came up just short in a 22-16 setback to Plymouth South.

Meanwhile, North fell to Plymouth South, 10-8, and shut out Silver Lake, 7-0, before losing to Bridgewater-Raynham and Hingham.

"I think it'll be a very good game," said Chella. "As I've said before, it's our Super Bowl, the biggest game of the year."

"From my viewpoint, the kids been more intense and focused than before and want to redeem themselves with a victory. They are having fun getting ready and I just hope it continues."

Leading Quincy offensively will be junior quarterback Dan Kelly, a player Chella has the utmost confidence in to get the job done. In his first year as the starter, Kelly has played a role in 43 of Quincy's 69 points, with four touchdown runs, a two-point conversion run and three extra points, along with two touchdown passes and a two-point conversion pass.

"I'm very happy with Danny," he said. "He's a great athlete who makes things happen and throws the ball well. Having that ability takes some of the focus off the running game and makes the opponent prepare for both.

"He's also gotten much better as the season has gone on, finding open spaces and throwing to different receivers."

Chella also expects others to contribute, including last year's hero, senior fullback Nathan DoRosario, of whom Chella said, "I'm sure Nathan will have something to say before the game is over."

Surveying the strengths of his opponent, Chella cited North's strong passing game, led by senior quarterback Chris Bregoli, senior tight end Frank McNamara and junior wide receiver Jody Bravo.

"They have some good runners in (Brian) Deputala and (Kevin) Shaw, but the way they can hurt you the most is through the air," he said. "Bravo and McNamara are talented receivers and Bregoli is playing even better than he did last year, so we'll have to be prepared to face them defensively."

As in years past, Chella said he has developed a feeling about how the team will play based on its pregame preparations.

"You develop a feeling being around these kids, and the practices have been good," he said. "The kids have been taking notes, studying hard and making all the necessary preparations for the game."

"It's a whole different atmosphere and that's a very good thing. The initial signs have been good, so hopefully that will continue through the game."

Who Has The Advantage?

Picking a favorite in the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day game is always difficult, and this year is no exception, as the teams enter the showdown with a combined 1-17 record.

Only North has managed to pull out a victory this season, defeating Silver Lake, 7-0, in the seventh game of the season.

Against common opponents, the Presidents and Red Raiders have had similar results. In Old Colony League play, both lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, Falmouth, Taunton, Plymouth South and Barnstable.

Both teams were 0-2 in non-league games. Quincy lost to Randolph and Rockland, while North fell to Stoughton and Hingham.

Offensively, a few other similarities that could pay dividends for both teams are their mobile quarterbacks and powerful fullbacks.

For the Red Raiders, junior fullback Brian Deputala has scored on runs of 1, 2, 3, 7 and 12 yards, giving North a viable option inside the opponents' 20-yard line.

On the Presidents' side, Kelly, senior tailback John Katsarikas and senior fullback Nathan DoRosario, last Thanksgiving's hero, have scored rushing touchdowns this season.

Defensively, both squads have had their ups and downs, with North yielding 40 or more points twice and Quincy allowing over 50 points once and over 40 in two other games. In a two-game span in October, NQ allowed 10 points in a setback to Plymouth South and shut out Silver Lake, 7-0.

Sullivan Quincy's Top Thanksgiving Game Coach

Bill Sullivan is Quincy High School's most successful head coach in Thanksgiving Day games.

He went 6-2 against North Quincy as a head coach from 1952 to 1959. Sullivan led the Presidents to five consecutive wins from 1954-58, the longest win streak in series' history.

He lost to the Red Raiders in 1953 and 1959.

Sullivan was an assistant to Munroe MacLean from 1939 to 1951.

QBs Bregoli, Kelly Set To Square Off

Senior Chris Bregoli will quarterback North Quincy and junior Dan Kelly will call the signals for Quincy when the Red Raiders and Presidents meet on Thanksgiving Day.

Bregoli will make his second start, while Kelly will start at QB for the first time on Thanksgiving.

Despite missing three games with a shoulder injury, Bregoli showed his versatility as he tossed two touchdown passes and four two-point conversions, kicked four extra points and a field goal.

Kelly, replacing last year's winning quarterback, Kevin Moore, has had a hand—or foot—in many of Quincy's points this fall. He has thrown two touchdown passes and a two-point conversion, ran for four touchdowns and a two-point conversion and kicked three extra points.

Tam (3 TD's), Defense Spark Quincy JV Over North, 35-14

Three touchdowns by Andy Tam, including an interception return for a score, sparked Quincy High School's JV football team over North Quincy High School, 35-14, on Saturday.

Quincy, which finished with a 6-3 record, jumped out to a 7-0 lead when Gregg Walsh recovered an NQ fumble in the end zone on the first play from scrimmage at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Presidents' quarterback Mark Robertson later connected with Tam on a 10-yard touchdown pass on a quick slant route. North cut the deficit to 14-6 with a touchdown, but Quincy pushed the lead back to two scores when Tam returned an interception 50 yards for a TD before the half ended.

Again, the Red Raiders closed the gap with a touchdown, but the Presidents scored the last two touchdowns to seal the victory.

Leading 21-14, Tam caught a screen pass from Robertson and raced 60 yards for his third TD. A two-yard scoring run by Russell Mullin gave Quincy a 34-14 lead, and Tom Shruhan (5 for 5 on extra points) kicked the extra point to close the scoring.

Quincy's defense, coached by Dan Morrell, turned in a strong effort, led by Mike Feeley, Mike Kelley, Paul Desmond, John Alves, Dan Dorsey, Joe Cox, Kris Ricupero and Brad DiMartino.

Providing protection for Robertson and the Presidents' offense were linemen Joe Callahan, Alves, Joe Duffy and Cox.

Late Touchdown Sparks Quincy Freshmen Over NQ

With five seconds left in the game, running back Kris Kamborian scored on a one-yard run, lifting Quincy High School's freshman football team over rival North Quincy High School, 14-12, last Saturday.

Starting at its own 35-yard line with a minute remaining, Quincy quickly drove down the field at Veterans Memorial Stadium and scored the game-winning touchdown in the season finale for both teams.

Early in the game, Quincy (3-7) got on the board first by sacking North's quarterback in the end zone for a safety. The Red Raiders rallied for a touchdown to take a 6-2 lead, but the two-point conversion attempt failed.

North clung to its 6-2 lead until the fourth quarter when Kamborian scored on a 12-yard run for an 8-6 Quincy lead. The extra point kick was no good. For the Presidents, Kamborian, Lorenzano, Galligan, Kelly, Sullivan, Shruhan, Kerr, Shawn Bowles, Paul McLaughlin, Brett Schwaim, Kevin Livingston, Dan Connors and Brian Keeffe played well offensively.

On its next drive, the Red Raiders were faced with a second down and 12 but consecutive personal foul penalties against Quincy moved North to Quincy's 28-yard line. Three plays later, NQ went ahead again on a seven-yard touchdown pass with 1:05 remaining in the game. After the two-point conversion failed, North kicked off to Quincy, which then embarked on its game-winning drive.

North Perfect in 1966, 1992

North Quincy has twice entered the Thanksgiving game with a perfect record, 1966 and 1992.

Ken McPhee had a role in both as a starting guard on the 1966 club and the coach of the 1992 team.

The 1966 team, coached by the late Carl Leone, had a 9-0 record, won the Greater Boston League title, shared the Class A crown with Arlington and shut out Quincy, 8-0.

The 1992 team had an 11-0 record, won the Old Colony League title, beat Arlington in the Div. 1B Super Bowl and shut out Quincy, 20-0.

Excitement, Last-Second Drama Mark Q-N Series

For sheer excitement and last-second drama, few football rivalries can match

Quincy-North Quincy.

Close games have defined the series, especially in recent years.

Thirteen of the last 15 meetings have been decided by less than one touchdown and conversion.

Last year, Quincy edged North, 7-0, on a late fourth-quarter touchdown run by junior Nathan DeRosario.

Last year, and in 1993, 1989, 1987 and 1985 the outcome was in doubt until the final play of the game.

In 1984 and 1994 the Presidents grabbed interceptions in the final minutes to thwart comeback efforts by North Quincy.

In 1975 the Red Raiders won the only overtime game in the series, 15-8.

Of the 65 meetings between the Red Raiders and the Presidents, 37 have been decided by one touchdown and conversion or less.

The margin of victory has been greater than two scores in just 17 games.

The Series Record:

Quincy 32, North 27, 5 Ties

Entering the 66th meeting between Quincy and North Quincy, the Presidents hold the edge with 33 wins.

North has won 27 times. Five games have ended in ties. The contests in 1934, 1937, 1940 and 1983 were scoreless affairs. The 55th meeting in 1987 ended in a 14-14 tie.

The series was last deadlocked (7-7-3) going into the 1950 game.

This year Quincy is aiming for its fifth straight victory. The last time either team accomplished that feat was when the Presidents won five in a row from 1954-58.

North will be trying to stop a four-game skid. The Raiders had won three straight before the Presidents snapped North's winning string in 1994.

1947 Game Drew Largest Crowd

There has always been debate as to which Quincy-North Quincy game drew the largest crowd.

It appears the 1947 game had the largest attendance, reported to have been 18,003. In 1946, the paid attendance was 16,065.

Many estimate that close to 25,000 saw the 1947 game, if you count those who watched for the walls and trees, and those who lined the bus yard where the MBTA garage now stands.

Thousands of extras also watched the 1946 contest.

The biggest previous crowd was the 15,000 who watched the 1939 game.

In recent years, an estimated 9,000-12,000 have attended the game.

Despite Effort, NQ Loses Final Barnstable Too Much For North

By LIAM FITZGERALD

An impressive run came to an end Sunday when North Quincy High School's girls' volleyball team fell to defending state champion Barnstable in the MIAA Div. 1 state final.

Winners of its last 10 matches heading into the match at Bentley College in Waltham, North kept it close by winning the second game, but Barnstable pulled away for a 3-1 victory to clinch its fourth consecutive state championship. Over the past four seasons, Barnstable has compiled a remarkable 105-1 record.

"Barnstable is clearly the best team in the state, and they played like it," said North head coach Jim Rendle. "I was real pleased with our effort; we never folded, just kept battling and I'm proud of the girls for their great effort."

In particular, Rendle credited the leadership and dedication of North's four seniors, Kim Huert, Alexis Miranda, Alison Haddad and Angela Scott, as the key factor in the Red Raiders' success this season.

"I'm especially pleased with the leadership and dedication of our four seniors, who led us all year long," he said. "When the season started, we didn't know if we could put it together and make a run, but the seniors took charge."

"Their work ethic on and off the court and their all-around play set a great example for the younger kids to follow. They showed what it takes to succeed: hard work and dedication. I'm proud of all of them."

Heading into Sunday's final, neither team had dropped a game in the tournament, but that changed when the clubs split the first two games.

Barnstable jumped out early in the opener, sparked by Lauren Knight's 10 kills and Lyndsay Stephensen's seven service points, along with some North errors, and won the game, 15-2.

"Knight is a dominant player, and like a lot of teams, we had trouble controlling her," said Rendle.

It appeared that Barnstable would run away with the match when it took an 8-2 lead in the second game, led by Knight (36 kills) and the serving of Emily Turco. North, however, rallied like it had in previous tournament games and cut the deficit to 11-9, a result of several Barnstable mistakes.

A few more Barnstable errors and two kills by junior Katie Jellison, followed by two service points by Scott, gave North a 15-12 victory and knotted the match at one game apiece.

Building on its success in the second game, North (21-6) took an early 3-1 lead, but Barnstable quickly regained control, reeling off 14 of the next 15 points to win the game, 15-4.

Down two games to one, North kept the fourth game close, trailing 6-5 before Barnstable pulled away behind the serving of Atkins. Trailing 13-6, Haddad collected two service points, but two Knight kills closed out the game, 15-8, and sealed Barnstable's fourth consecutive state title.

Last Wednesday, North advanced to the state final with a convincing 3-0 sweep of West Sectional champion Ludlow in the state semifinals at Milford High School. Harris, junior Meghan Ginty and Katie Jellison (11 kills) sparked the Red Raiders to the 15-4, 15-0, 15-2 win.

Recreation Gym Program Starts Saturday

Quincy Recreation Department will conduct supervised recreation programs in 10 neighborhood school gymnasiums on Saturday beginning Nov. 27.

The Saturday gym programs are free and are open to boys and girls age 8 through high school.

Time varies for each age group. All programs have walk-in registration at each location, and are open only to Quincy residents. Participants may attend the location of their choice, not just their neighborhood gymnasium.

Assorted gym activities such as floor hockey, tag football, basketball and lay races will be conducted under the supervision of recreation staff.

The core schedule is from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m. for elementary age youth; 9:45 to 11:15 a.m. for middle school age; and 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for high school age. Times may be adjusted to accommodate differences in attendance by age group.

The Saturday schedule is offered at these locations: Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Quantum, Clifford Marshall, Wollaston and Atlantic.

Limited Openings For 'Tot-Time' Program

The Quincy Recreation Department has limited openings for "Tot-Time", a program for preschool age youngsters and their parents.

"Tot-Time", a parent and tot recreation program for children ages 3-5 will feature one and a half hours of supervised play, one day a week, in the Ward Four Community Center located at the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center.

"This program is designed to provide an opportunity for increased socialization among parents and children through games and activities conducted by recreation staff," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

"The department has received many requests for this type of activity particularly during the inclement weather of the winter months."

Welch thanked the Ward Four Civic Association for their assistance in organizing this activity which is open to all Quincy residents.

The program will cost $19 for a seven week period and will be held Fridays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Enrollment will be limited and taken on a first-come, first-served basis, beginning immediately, at the main office of the Recreation Department, 1 Merrymount Parkway (formerly 100 Southern Army).

The program starts Friday, Dec. 4. For more information, call 376-1394.

QUINCY SUN PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

"That was what one of my men did when they found out that the war had ended," said former Army Commando Division leader Leonard Morris.

Morris, conceived of the statue along with fellow Quincy resident and D-Day veteran John Donlon, who served as an Army infantry soldier.

"We needed something to honor the millions of men and women who died in that war," said Donlon.

Morris explained that the Mayor has been supportive of the project from the beginning.

"The fact that this project is finally getting constructed is due to the efforts of a lot of people."

He added that funding for the project has come largely from the sale of commemorative bricks which members of the Memorial committee have been selling to the public in recent weeks.

Bricks are still available for $50 apiece and may be inscribed with three lines commemorating a loved one, or just showing support for any person that served in the war effort.

Bricks are also available for any area merchants wishing to show their support.

Anyone wishing to purchase bricks may contact the mayor's office at 376-1990.

Morris and Donlon stressed that sales of the bricks have been swift.

They hope that eventually the nine foot statue will be the centerpiece of a larger monument named "Veteran's Mall" in Merymount Park. The statue would be near the bricks and surrounded by four large flagpoles.

"We want to make sure that people never forget those who died and those were lucky enough to survive the fight for this great country," said Donlon.

With the plans completed and erection of the statue set for Veteran's Day, 1999, Donlon and Morris seem to be well on their way to their goal of building a memorial with an important reminder for this generation of Quincy citizens and all those that follow.

Sunday Openings For Liquor Stores During Holidays

With the approval of the Local Licensing Authority, package stores are allowed to be open in all communities on Sundays during the holiday season, beginning with Nov. 22, the Sunday before Thanksgiving, and extending through Dec. 27, the Sunday before New Year's Day.

On Thanksgiving Day, package stores, manufacturers, wholesalers and importers may not sell or deliver alcoholic beverages at any time during the day. Hotels, restaurants, taverns and clubs may sell alcoholic beverages during the regular hours.

These Sunday openings are subject to the following conditions:

•Local Licensing

Authority is required in the form of a permit issued by the authority after a public hearing.

•Stores may not open before noon.

•On Nov. 22, Nov. 29, Dec. 6, Dec. 13, Dec. 20 and Dec. 27, stores must close no later than 11 p.m.

The local authority may require an earlier closing.

•Employees must be paid at a rate not less than one and a half times the employee's regular rate.

•No employee shall be required to work, and refusal to work on a Sunday shall not be grounds for discrimination, dismissal of hours or any other penalty.

If Dec. 24 and Dec. 31 fall on a Sunday, stores may be open until 11:30 p.m. subject to approval by the Local Licensing Authority.

Sister Paschala Noonan To Discuss Dominican Nun Life At Library

Sister Paschala Noonan, a Quincy native who has traveled the world, will speak at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St., on Tuesday, Dec. 1 at 7:30 p.m.

Sister Noonan will read from her recently published book, "Signadou: A History of the Kentucky Dominican Sisters" as part of her discussion about life as a Dominican nun.

Sister Noonan grew up in Quincy, and family members remain local residents.

Her brother, John Noonan, is chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging. She was baptized at St. John's, received First Communion at St. Ann's, and was confirmed at Blessed Sacrament.

As a Dominican, Sister Noonan has served as a teacher, a nurse, a hospital administrator and a writer. She has also served as the director of elderly care for this diocese. Her writings have won awards from The Readers Digest, Phi Delta Epsilon and Ellery Queen Mystery Magazine.

Sister Noonan has also contributed historical articles to encyclopedias in this country and abroad. She is a research assistant with Project OPUS, the team compiling American Dominican history and is currently working on pictorial history of the Kentucky Dominican Sisters.

Books will be available for sale and for signing.

The library is handicapped accessible.

COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY

By John C. Cain, Jr.

UPGRADING YOUR 386/486 OR PENTIUM 75 TO TODAY'S PENTIUM II TECHNOLOGY

When the family, business, government and educator purchased what each of us thought was the ultimate computer configuration package as far back as seven years ago, we assumed that we were all set.

Now the technology has progressively increased with faster connection requirements to the internet, higher quality graphics requiring more memory, better video card capability, larger storage to handle more efficient software programs, faster computer speed to use more than one software package at the same time, and year 2000 compliance.

You can trade in your old box, possibly keep your monitor, keyboard, mouse and some of the components in your system box, and replace it with: Intel Pentium II 333MHz CPU, 64MB SDRAM Memory, 8MB i740 Intel Chipset Video Card, 100MHz Bus Speed Pentium II Mainboard, 32x CD-ROM, Intel 440BX Chipset, 4.3GB Hard Drive, 56k Internal Fax/Modem and/or a Network Card, ATX Mid-Tower Case and Windows 98.

If you have any questions or want configuration advice, call 479-0038, fax 479-3261 or email john@calncorp.com. The Cain Corporation (TCC), 165 Beale Street, Quincy.

*A Thought
For The Week*

It's that time of the year that nearly everyone pauses to give thanks for all the goodness that has passed their way during the past year. Thanks are given for the love of our families; the love of friends; the love of our neighbors and for so many things...

We, at the Deware Family Funeral Homes, are thankful, too, for so many things. We're thankful for the love of both family and friends in our community and State in which we live. We're thankful, too, of the privilege of living in the most wonderful country in the world...

We're thankful for the opportunity to be part of your life every week, and for the trust you place in us for allowing us to be part of your reading every week.

We're especially thankful for the trust and confidence that you have shown to us at our home and toward our services...

We, at the Deware Family Funeral Homes, wish all of you a very Happy Thanksgiving.

Your Social Security

Direct Deposit

By LAURIE ZASTROW

With the current attention to the law requiring people to sign up for direct deposit, the dilemma of many people may be summed up by a recent call:

Decisions, decisions, decisions, should I use direct deposit or not? The law says I have to sign up by January 1999, but I've heard that I can wait. What do I have to do?

We want you to sign up for direct deposit, and we hope you decide to do so soon. But changing the way you receive your Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefit from a check to direct deposit is a hard decision and maybe you need more time to think about it. If so, don't worry! You'll continue to receive your check automatically, until you make a decision, even after January 1999.

Until that time, we want you to give careful consideration to the safety and convenience that using direct deposit provides you. For the last 23 years, Social Security and SSI benefit recipients have used direct deposit. Social Security has delivered more than 1.8 billion direct deposit payments worth $1.9 trillion, and not one has ever been lost or stolen.

Besides providing safety for your money, direct deposit puts you in better control of your finances. Your money is in your account the morning of the scheduled payment day, even when you are out of town or unable to get to your bank.

If you agree that direct deposit is right for you, contact your bank. They'll be glad to help you sign up. If you don't have a checking or savings account right now, most banks, savings and loan or credit unions offer a variety of accounts, some with little or no fees. Look for one that best meets your needs.

You also can sign up for direct deposit by calling our tollfree number, 1-800-772-1213. If you call us, the Social Security representative will ask you a few questions to determine your identity. We'll also need your account information and your Social Security number.

What if you don't have an account at a bank, savings and loan or credit union? The government is developing a special low-cost program for you. It's called the Electronic Transfer Account (ETA) program, and it should be available next year. When ETA's become available, we'll send you information about direct deposit, the ETA program and your choices.

Arthur Eliason, 88

A funeral service for Arthur Eliason, 88, of Brintree, formerly of Quincy, was held Tuesday at Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Mr. Eliason died Nov. 21 at the Life Care center in Raynham after a long illness.

He worked as a steel clerk at the Fore River shipyard for many years. He worked for both Bethlehem Steel and General Dynamics before retiring in 1962.

He was a member of the Fore River Long Service Club.

Born and educated in Quincy, he had lived in Quincy most of his life before moving to Brintree 27 years ago.

Husband of the late Clorinda C. (Campitelli) Eliason, he is survived by two daughters, Barbara C. Bythow of Bridgewater and Carol J. Flanders of Brintree; seven grandchildren; six great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the South Shore Habitat for Humanity, Attn: Granite Crossing Project, c/o 28 River St., Brintree, MA

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some mistakes could occur in the handling of money now. Why not let that sum of money get another day's interest? Conserve assets.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Just remember that not everyone is as straightforward as you are at this time. Speak your own mind, but take what others say with a grain of salt.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) There's nothing like a small gift or consideration to show someone at home that you really do care. You can do a lot to pick someone's spirits up now.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're tempted to seek the unusual in entertainment now and thereby get yourself in some sort of trouble. Opt for conventional fun outlets.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Much that occurs on the job is confusing at this time. Sort things out at home on your own time when you'll be better able to put the pieces together.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It does seem like somebody at home could use a night out as a break from routine. Partners won't quibble if out somewhere enjoying themselves this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Don't just take somebody's word about an investment. Stay away from areas about which you know little. Accent work as the vehicle to financial success.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)

Somebody who flatters may not be the person to ask for advice. Partners are your best allies at present. Be a good listener. Pay attention.

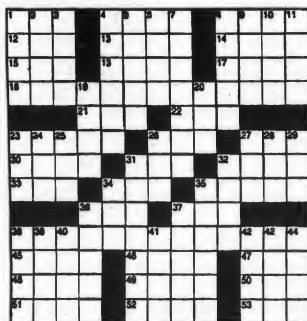

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) There are some loose ends to tie up before you really know how a business venture is going to turn out. Guard against distractions now.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Friends at a distance seem more reliable than some nearby acquaintances. Don't be so quick to confide in people you don't know well.

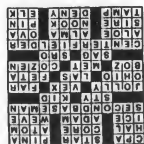

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) So you're not ready to go out and conquer the world now, but you can bone up on some facts that you'll need later. Take one step at a time.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Unless you've done your homework, don't become involved in what looks like an unfeasible proposition. It's in the friendship area where you'll shine now.

FEELING INJECTED?

Since the mid-1980s, all domestic cars and most imports have come equipped with fuel injection, which is vastly superior to the carburetor in terms of delivering fuel efficiently. Of the essentially two types of fuel-injection systems in use today, throttle body injection most operates like a carburetor in that it mixes air and fuel at the manifold and sends the mixture to the individual cylinders by way of the manifold's runners. On the other hand, the more advanced and precise port fuel injection systems provide each cylinder with its own high-pressure fuel injector situated above its intake port. Thus, atomized fuel is sprayed directly into the combustion chamber, enabling optimum burning of the gasoline.

If you have questions about your car or any of its systems, including its fuel injection system, don't hesitate to ask when you come into LEO & WALT'S SUNCOCO. For most of all of your car's repairs, we have modern test equipment, the right parts, and the best ASE Certified technicians available in the area. Get acquainted with us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). 'A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer.' Suncoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon. - Fri. 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

HINT: Fuel injection has made hard starts, flooded carburetors, and sticking chokes things of the past.

Quincy Hospital Lab Accredited

Quincy Hospital announces that their laboratory has been awarded a two year accreditation by the Commission on Laboratory Accreditation of the College of American Pathologists (CAP) based on the results of a recent on-site inspection.

The laboratory's director, John V. Cooney, MD, Ph.D. was advised of this national recognition and congratulated for the "excellence of the services being provided". The laboratory at Quincy Hospital is one of more than 5000 CAP accredited laboratories nationwide.

The CAP Laboratory Accreditation Program, begun in the early 1960's, is recognized by the federal government as being equal to or more stringent than the government's own inspection program.

Inspectors examine the records and quality control of the laboratory for the preceding two years, as well as the education and qualifications of the total staff, the adequacy of the facilities, the equipment, laboratory safety, and laboratory management to determine how well the laboratory is serving the patient.

The College of American Pathologists is a medical society serving more than 14,500 physician members and the laboratory community throughout the world. It is the world's largest association composed exclusively of pathologists and is widely considered the leader in laboratory quality assurance.

Commission on Women Conducting Honduran 'Life Drive' Here

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women in Quincy will conduct a 'Life Drive' from Monday, Nov. 30 to Friday, Dec. 11 to help the people in Honduras, whose homes and lives were devastated by Hurricane Mitch in October.

More than 6,000 people are dead, 500,000 are homeless and 5,000 have been reported missing.

The Commission is collecting needed items that will be sent to San Pedro, Sula, Honduras, including food items—vegetable oil, sugar, baby food (no glass), milk (powdered and canned), ready-to-eat canned foods, beans, rice; medical supplies—medical equipment, bandages, gauze, cotton balls, antibacterial ointments, antifungal ointments, aspirin, distilled water, rubbing alcohol; equipment—flashlights, batteries, matches, candles, charcoal, blankets, tents, sleeping bags, cots, tarps, mosquito repellent; house-wares—pots and pans, manual can openers and cooking utensils.

Clothing articles will not be accepted. Many organizations have been overwhelmed with clothing and are unable to store, sort or ship the items they have received.

Those wishing to donate to the relief drive may drop items at the Department of Public Works parking lot, 55 Sea St., Quincy (next to the Quincy Police Station) between 8 and 10 a.m. and 1 and 3 p.m. weekdays, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekends.

Monetary contributions may be made to Catholic Charities or the American Red Cross.

For more information, or a more detailed list of items for the Honduran 'Life Drive,' call The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women at (617) 376-3728.

Dawn Ryan On Greater Boston Manufacturing Partnership Board

Dawn Ryan, president of Bay State Metals in Quincy, has been elected to the Greater Boston Manufacturing Partnership's Board of Directors.

Bay State Metals, located at 80 Myrtle St., Quincy, is a full service machine shop specializing in metal fabrication for multiple markets including the high tech and computer industry and has been a family business since 1960.

Ryan took over as president when her father passed away in 1997. Sales last year totaled $3.1 million.

The Greater Boston Manufacturing Partnership is a collaboration of local manufacturers and educational institutions, whose purpose is to provide low-cost, high-quality technical services to manufacturing companies of 500 or less employees within the greater Boston area who seek to improve their business.

Joseph Ferguson Honored

Joseph Ferguson of Quincy, a member of the FamilyNet Team, was recently honored for excellence in public service on behalf of the Commonwealth's abused and neglected children at the 15th annual Pride in Performance awards ceremony held in Cambridge.

The team led the Department of Social Services from fund procurement and development to implementation over a two-year period. During this time, the team secured federal and state funding; purchased, installed and networked hardware in over 30 different sites; worked with outside consultants to develop a comprehensive application encompassing all the major operations of the agency; and trained over 3,000 staff at various junctures on the project.

Two years ago Quincy 2000 developed an action plan which identified the area along south Hancock Street for significant future development.

"A lot of those parcels are underdeveloped now," said Mannarino.

"We don't own the properties, but we can encourage the development or redevelopment of them," he said.

"I feel very positive about Downtown Quincy," said Zink, who acquired 169 Parkway and three other buildings on the Parkway in the spring of 1997 for a total cost of $5.4 million.

Zink said he has been discussing facade issues with Mannarino, and Quincy 2000 "has been very helpful in the process from the beginning. Mayor Sheets has done a phenomenal job too."

Mannarino said Zink would be eligible to participate in Quincy 2000's facade program which, to date, has invested between $300,000 and $400,000 across the city.

Those funds are used as leverage, said Mannarino, and businesses had invested twice as much as what Quincy 2000 has spent.

In addition, if a business is creating jobs in a vacant building, some additional funding could be available as well, he added.

"With any real estate development, it is dependent on the regional economy and the local economy," Mannarino continued. "We want to see where the economy goes in the next several months or a year and see what redevelopment proposals surface."

Morrissey Urges Halt To Cuts In Prescription Drug Benefits

Sen. Michael Morrissey has joined other state and federal officials working to prevent the impending cuts in prescription drug benefits to certain Medicare enrollees.

The cuts come as a result of a federal court ruling that a Massachusetts law, preempted by a new federal law, can no longer require Medicare HMOs to offer unlimited prescription drug benefits to seniors and persons with disabilities.

"Senior citizens desperately need continued access to full prescriptions drug coverage," Morrissey stated in a recent letter to Harvard

Pilgrim's president and CEO, Allan Greenberg. Despite efforts by state and federal officials, Harvard Pilgrim plans to cap prescription drug coverage for its Medicare enrollees at $800 per year. Other Medicare HMOs in the state are expected to follow Harvard Pilgrim's lead and cap their benefits.

Morrissey is urging the state's congressional delegation to continue trying to resolve the problem through new federal legislation. "Please continue your efforts to establish new federal legislation that will clearly show that Massachusetts state law in the area of Medicare prescription drug benefits should not be preempted," Morrissey wrote in a letter to Congressman William Delahunt, Barney Frank and Joseph Moakley. More than 200,000 seniors and citizens with disabilities in Massachusetts currently receive coverage under a Medicare HMO.

Public Hearing Dec. 7 Proposed Tax Rates: Residential: $15.24 Commercial: $32.28

By MARILYN JACKSON

The Mayor and Board of Assessors will recommend a 6-cent drop in the residential tax rate this year and a 19-cent increase for commercial, industrial and personal property when the City Council convenes a public hearing on tax classifications next Monday.

The proposed rates are $15.24 per $1,000 valuation for residential property, and $32.28 per $1,000 valuation for commercial, industrial and personal property, up 19 cents, if the councillors agree to using the same classification percentages as last year.

Marion Fantuccio, chairperson of the Board of Assessors, emphasized that the state Department of Revenue still must certify the proposed rates but expected that would be done by Monday. The new rates will be based on a recently completed citywide revaluation.

An average single-family home, assessed at $143,700 last year, has increased in value by $5,300 to $149,000, she said. That tax bill will increase by $72 from $2,198.61 to $2,270.76, a 3.3 percent increase.

The city's biggest taxpayer, State Street Realty, will see its tax bill jump $74,093 to $3,177,723 based on their new assessed value of more than $98.4 million.

Fantuccio said the state-mandated revaluation, which is conducted every three years, cost the city about $100,000. Two consultants were hired; Gerard Natale Jr. of Real Estate Research Consultants in Danvers conducted the revaluation for all the commercial, industrial and per-

Cost Estimated At $500,000 Historic First Parish Needs Major Repairs

By MARILYN JACKSON

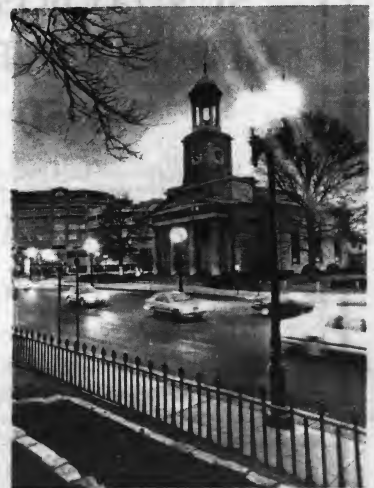

When engineers last year inspected the Church of the Presidents to replace its 110-year-old slate roof, they discovered an even bigger — and more expensive — problem. The eight wooden trusses need to be strengthened.

Al Skomial, a member of the church and the project coordinator, estimates that all the work will cost "$500,000, plus or minus."

Two of the eight wooden trusses above the magnificent domed plastered ceiling over the sanctuary supporting the roof had failed, and two other trusses are showing signs of stress and are bending, according to a structural engineer's report.

"The ceiling has been weakened because the trusses are overstressed, but the structural engineer doesn't feel that the church has to be closed," Skomial said. "If there is another blizzard of '78, it might be another matter, but we're

Gift Shop Gets Ice Cream, Candy Go-Ahead

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
David Lydon, owner of the Treasure Chest at President's Place in Quincy Center received approval Tuesday by the License Board to sell ice cream and candy.

Lydon told the board that he had expanded the card and gift shop from 824 square feet to 1,524 square feet taking some of the former dry cleaning store.

Lydon said "We've got ice cream back in Quincy Center" and added that "ice cream and candy were lacking in the center."

He said persons may come in and either purchase ice cream by the package or an ice cream cone and be able to eat it in the Atrium. He said he plans to sell packaged and loose candy.

Lydon said his store is the first one seen as you walk into the building and it was his intention when he renovated to have people "have a fun place to come."

He said the aquarium decor features sand colored floors and turquoise blue walls.

Lydon said the front of the store has been changed to a complete glass structure.

The grand opening for the newly renovated store is tomorrow (Friday) at 2 p.m.

Why Live With Back Pain ?

Low Back Pain results in untold suffering every day. People often think it's just something they have to learn to live with.

Improper lifting, sitting, over-exertion, trauma from car accidents/sport injuries, and disc problems are just a few of the possible causes of back pain.

Chiropractic adjustments are non-invasive and often can help normalize function, which helps to reduce painful symptoms without drugs or surgery.

Raymondi Seeks Change In City Council Meetings

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi has proposed that the City Council hold its regular meetings on the first Monday of the month, reserving the third Monday for public hearings, matters related to planned unit developments, special permit requests and committee meetings.

A 15-minute open forum would be provided for public comment on the third Monday of the month.

Raymondi last week asked the councillors to consider seriously this proposed reorganization to make the council more effective, more efficient and better organized so that the public would be better served and the council could address its business at hand.

"We're jamming in too much in one night," Raymondi said later. "I feel we're not being efficient and effective in dealing with significant public matters because we are trying to compress so many matters in a short time frame.

"The real business wouldn't begin until late in the evening," he said.

City Council President Peter Kolson said the proposal would make the meetings more efficient for constituents who often wait for a long period of time before a scheduled agenda item comes up for discussion.

"It's time for a look-see," added Councillor Francis X. McCauley.

The councillors agreed and referred the matter to the rules committee.

Raymondi incorporated some of the existing council policies in his proposal, such as suspending meetings during July and August and adjourning at 11 p.m. The new policy would not prevent the councillors from agreeing to extend the time of a meeting if necessary.

Whenever there is a Monday holiday, the council would meet on Tuesday or on a date as provided by the council.

Raymondi first proposed streamlining some of the council's deliberations when he was first elected two-and-a-half years ago. As a result, committees now have three or five members, rather than the full council. Other committees which never met were abolished, he said.

QUINCY JUNIOR GIRL Scout Troop 4163 teamed with Stop & Shop Supermarket to provide a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner to a needy Quincy family. Store Manager Paul McEachern donated the food items for the dinner while the girl scouts collected the items in a scavenger hunt throughout the store. Collected items were placed in a holiday basket and delivered to a needy local family. Front row, from left, Stephanie Stephenson, Amanda Kayalles, Christina Tyack. Middle row: Meredith Palmer, Andrea Jacobson, Deirdre Kilcullen, Colleen Monkley, Emily Pabud. Third row standing: Megan Callaghan, Christine Guerrier, Nicole McElhinney, Danielle O'Connell, Victoria Donaghue, Jackie Larkin, Amanda Silverman and Store Manager Paul McEachern.

New Restaurant Is Planned At The Hollow

An application has been made to the License Board for a transfer of the common victualer all alcoholic license held by Donna Cloney, owner of the Hollow Restaurants, Inc. 516 Adams St., Quincy, to Joseph Crugnale of Belmont, president of Naked Fish Restaurants, Inc..

Chairman Joseph Shea said at Tuesday's meeting that Crugnale is the same person who originated the Bertucci's Restaurants, and but said he wasn't sure what kind of food would be served.

The board will hold a hearing at 10 a.m. Dec. 8 in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

Shea said the restaurant will be completely renovated inside and outside. The 7,379 square foot restaurant seats 229 persons.

The Hollow has been closed since last Spring and according to Shea, there were a lot of rumors connected with the sale of the restaurant but noted that this was the first legitimate request since its closing.

Xmas Joy Fair At O'Brien Towers

Like to be mortgage-free by the time you retire?

Trade your current 30-year mortgage in for a 15-Year Mortgage from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. The monthly payment's a bit higher, but chances are you're earning more now and it's a great form of "forced saving." The benefits? You lock in your mortgage at the lowest rates seen since the 1960s, you save tens of thousands of dollars in interest, you build equity faster and—by the time you retire—you'll be mortgage-free! It's what people dream of and right now the dream is closer than ever.

Come see us and we'll run the numbers for you. Or call Richard or Angela at 617-471-0750.

JUST FOLLOWING ORDERS

When you're prescribed a new medication, here are some things YOU need to do to ensure your safety and getting the drug's anticipated benefits. Make sure your prescribing physician knows all other medicines you take (including non-prescription products like laxatives, pain relievers, antacids, vitamin supplements, and even herbal remedies) and all drugs prescribed by other doctors. Inform the doctor about any allergies. Also be sure you understand the directions for taking the new medicine. Ask the name of the drug, any possible side effects, when to take it and with what, if there are restrictions, and what to do if you miss a dose. Make sure you completely understand the instructions before leaving the doctor's office. Becoming an informed consumer is a good idea when it comes to taking care of your body. Only you know your physical well-being best, and asking questions and getting answers is the best way to ensure you receive the treatment that is most advantageous for you. AAFA-FILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we listen to your concerns. We are affiliated with Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. Please call us at 617-472-2550; office hours by appointment.

Ike 'Loves To Live In Quincy!'

Ike Kravetz has written another song he calls "Love To Live In Quincy."

"I like it better than the first one," he says.

That first one back in the late 1960s was a little ditty entitled, "When They Open The Gates At Moon Island."

That one stunk a little.

"Not the song," says Kravetz.

"Moon Island!"

KRAVETZ

Kravetz, who is an assistant Quincy harbor master and lives on Butler Rd., has been a crusader for cleaning up Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay.

Back in 1988 he was bottling—and selling—Boston Harbor water to let people see for themselves how filthy it was. He sold quite a few bottles.

Now things have improved so much, he says, it's worth singing about. Thus "Love To Live In Quincy."

Assorted, random sample lyrics:

"I love to live in Quincy, the city by the sea ...

"Such a pity if you never visit our fine city ...

"Flounder will be back some day because we have cleaned up the bay ..."

And he has this tribute to Mayor James Sheets: "Our mayor is an honest guy—a politician that does not lie.

"He runs the city very tight and his people are all right ..."

And, another tribute:

"We love our firemen and our cops and the city workers are all tops ..."

There's also some Quincy history on the flip side.

Kravetz has the song on audio tape and is giving copies to friends.

The tapes were produced by Ted Rosen at Talent, Inc. on Newport Ave., Wollaston. The vocal is by George Fornasaro of Quincy.

"I really love my city," says Kravetz. "I really do. It's a great city."

Kravetz gave Sheets one of the tapes and His Honor invited him to have lunch with him this week (Tuesday) in his office.

"Wouldn't you know," he says, "that's the day I have to go into Quincy Hospital for surgery."

Kravetz says he will take a rain check on the luncheon.

"You know, it isn't every day you get to have lunch with the mayor."

A speedy recovery, Ike.

WELL, BRUCE AYERS is finally going to get Peter Kolson to spring for a meal.

The pair again had a luncheon bet on last week's Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game. And this time, the Raiders won, 21-6. Quincy had won four in a row.

Kolson played for Quincy in the 1960s and Ayers for North in the 1970s.

The Empire State Building was built with 60,000 tons of steel, three million square feet of wire mesh, 70,000 cubic yards of concrete, ten million bricks. The structure can accommodate 15,000 people.

The loser has to take the winner of the bet to a restaurant of his choice in the other's ward. Not only that, but the loser also has to wear the school jersey of the winner as they dine.

Ayers hasn't picked out the restaurant yet but plans to really enjoy himself.

"Peter has dined on me for four years," said Ayers. "I've got a lot of catching up to do."

He says he might try lobster stuffed with filet mignon with maybe a little caviar on the side.

One little problem: Ayers had no trouble slipping on Kolson's QHS jersey, but how is Kolson, who looks like the Jolly Green Giant compared in size to Ayers, going to get into Ayers' jersey.

"With a shoehorn if necessary," says Ayers. "Seeing him wearing red and black with be the dessert of all desserts."

RETIRED QUINCY HIGH School Principal Lloyd Hill got a pleasant surprise when he was inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame last week.

HILL

Hill was an All-American tackle and captain of the Brown University football team in 1950. One of his teammates was Joe Paterno, legendary head coach at Penn State. Also playing for Brown back then was the late Carl Leone, who starred at QHS and coached at NQHS.

At the Hall of Fame dinner, the committee presented Hill with a congratulatory letter from Paterno which they had framed.

THE PAUL HAROLD Committee is sponsoring a pre-holiday brunch Saturday, Dec. 13 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Viking Club, Quincy Ave., Braintree. Donation $15 per person.

FORMER NEWSPAPERMAN and good friend Ed Spargo of Wollaston is marking his 91st birthday—an event he calls a miracle milestone.

Ed collapsed at home a year ago and underwent emergency surgery for a "ruptured Triple A," technically known as an abdominal aortic aneurysm.

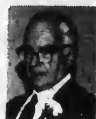

Ed credits his survival to Dr. Michael Murphy and Dr. Magruder Craig Donaldson, who had just been hired by Quincy Hospital, dividing their services with Quincy and Brigham and Women's Hospitals.

He probably should also give himself a little credit for keeping in good health and shape with his "20 Points for Good Health" plan that he circulates to others at his own expense.

Happy birthday, kid. And many more.

LOVED THIS young-at-heart note from Mrs. Mina Scanlan of Hollis Ave., renewing her subscription to The Sun:

Let God Judge Clinton

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I'm responding to the editorial by Francis Doherty, Nov. 13, 1998.

When stating one man is the cause of our country not being decent, aren't you completely ignoring the number of drug addicts, alcoholics, kids shooting kids, children being kidnapped and murdered.

The time and millions of taxpayers money spent by Kenneth Starr and the Republicans on destroying one man should have been used to somehow help solve some of our country's problems and make our country a better place for everyone.

I am not condoning Bill Clinton's actions, but I can't see rubbing his face in it and also his family's and the whole country's also. Enough is enough.

As for Bill Clinton, let

God judge him as He did David and David was a King. (David and Bathsheba Bible)

Help The Smelts

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Smelts are an important link in the aquatic food chain and the fishing industry. The level of the water in the Town Brook has been so low for months that the smelts may not be able to spawn again for the third consecutive year.

The water is blocked by sand bags at the Center Street junction box. When the sand bags are removed, the flow of water will increase, therefore allowing an adequate supply of water for the smelts to spawn this spring. The Army Corp of Engineers plan to do the necessary repairs at the Center Street junction box after the smelt spawning season in June, 1999.

This means there may be no spawning again in the Spring of 1999. Help the smelts now by increasing the flow of water in the Town Brook.

The deep water tunnel runs from Fort Square behind Star Market the mouth of the Town Brook at Town River Bay. Run-off from various building projects and road projects now empty into the deep water tunnel. These discharges with the pollutants in the water are emptied at the mouth of the Town Brook where the smelts travel to spawn and where shellfish beds are located. There is no separation of pollutants from the water in the deep water tunnel, so are we not forcing the smelts and shellfish to live in polluted water and a toxic environment?

Let us learn from the past and remedy this situation now before it's too late.

Della Chiesa, McIntyre Campaign Most Expensive

By PAUL HAROLD

Campaign reports for last month's mayoral campaign between Amelia Della Chiesa and James McIntyre were filed in the city clerk's office this week, showing combined expenses close to $25,000. This was the highest amount spent to date for campaigns in the city.

The winner, Della Chiesa, expended $10,993.04, with a deficit of $3. McIntyre, according to his treasurer Francis Casey, spent $13,752.87, with a balance remaining of $6.

CHRISTMAS MAIL UP 5-7 PERCENT

Quincy Post Office Superintendent Frank Anselmo anticipated an increase in Christmas mail of 5-7 percent over last year. He said it reflected the region's greater prosperity. While he was confident the post office could meet the demand, he said it was, "A battle between space and time."

He planned to expand staff from 250 to 700, with the takeover of the Marine recruiting office in the basement of the post office.

CITY HALL CAT MISSING

Honey, the ginger-colored male cat brought to city hall six months ago to rid the building of rats, was reported missing this week.

He was brought to city hall by Mrs. Elsie Eisner who worked in the auditor's office.

A spokesman for the mayor denied rumors that the cat was let go because was a McIntyre supporter.

QUINCY-ISMS

According to an estimate by police Captain Walter Kemp, a record 100,000 viewed the annual Christmas parade. Chief marshals were Congressman James Burke and John Brownell. For the eighth year in a row, Ft. Thomas Tierney of St. John's was parade chairman. . . To meet a growing demand, a new telephone exchange was established in the city. Granite 1 joined the other three exchanges: GR 2, GR 9, and PR 3. . . Mr. and Mrs. William Duane of Utica St. celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. . . A daughter was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Morse of Hollis Ave. . . Some 500 people attended the testimonial at the armory for the new Norfolk County Sheriff Peter McCormack of Brookline. Dennis Ryan was dinner chairman. . . Mayor Della Chiesa asked purchasing agent Thomas Morrissey the cost of a plaque to honor former Mayor Thomas McGrath, with naming of the "highway" between Washington St. and the Southern Artery. . . The mayor noted that his two-year "no hire no fire policy" had reduced personnel in the DPW and sanitation departments from 244 to 202. . . North Quincy High School coach Ken Rickson said that the varsity basketball team would kick-off the 1959-60 season with an exhibition game against the alumni. Returning starters were Paul LaBreaque, Jim Paintent, Dick Holmberg and Richard Bryan. The fifth spot was a toss-up between Paul Sadlier and Jerry Bradley. Others on the varsity were footballers Walter Bryan, Billy Tedrow, George Ruggiero, Ted Martin, Ralph "Gus" Andrews and Ron Fletcher. . . Clarence Lewis of Clive St. was installed for the 39th year as Tyler at the Rural Masonic Lodge. . . Four-hundred people attended the testimonial at Broad Meadows Junior High School for Edna Austin, the only woman to serve on the city council. . . Teachers Arthur Foster and Frank Langton headed up the work on the Daniel Webster School's float in the Christmas parade. . . Retiring firefighters were John Martell Jr., Theodore Rouillard of Common St. and Lt. Charles Mullane of Spear St. . . Mrs. Robert Tweedy was chairman for the Democratic Women's Club's Christmas party at the K of C on Foster St. . . Mrs. William Jenness chaired the GOP Women's Evening Club party at the YMCA. . . Teachers retiring at Quincy High School were Miss Eileen McCarthy, Miss Margaret Tuohill and Miss Mildred Ordway. . . Firefighter Lawrence Perette was promoted to lieutenant. . . William Ellis and Leo Antonelli were co-chairmen for the Elk's memorial program.

THIS HOUSE in Merrymount is among the stops along the Crane Public Library Holiday House Tour Sunday, Dec. 6 from 1 to 5 p.m. The tour features eight private homes in Merrymount, each decorated for the holidays.

Crane Library Holiday House Tour Dec. 6

The Crane Public Library Holiday House Tour to benefit the library's building fund will be held Sunday, Dec. 6 from 1 to 5 p.m.

The tour starts at the Merrymount Elementary School, 4 Agawam Rd., Quincy. Parking and trolley transportation through the neighborhood will be available.

Carolers and musicians performing at the school and in the neighborhood will add to the holiday spirit. Refreshments will be served at the school following the tour.

The tour will feature eight private homes in the Merrymount section, each decorated for the holidays.

Featured homes are eight early 20th century homes in a waterfront section of Quincy. The land in this neighborhood was subdivided into house lots in 1912 and developed by the Merrymount Company.

Homes presented include:

- a 1927 shingle style that had a major addition in 1996
- a smaller 1949 home with views of Quincy Bay,
- a 1926 cottage style having rooms painted with reissues of 1930's paint colors
- a 1929 gambrel half-bri Dutch colonial with panoramic views from Black's Creek to the Boston skyline and harbor islands
- 1928 weathered shingle designed by Royal Barry Wills
- a 1940 expanded Cape also designed by Wills
- a 1916 Colonial with gardens
- and a house moved to its current location from Weymouth by barge in 1917.

Most of the homes have spectacular water views, and landscaping and gardens which complement the sites. There are many interior features of note, such as built-in bookcases and cabinets, stenciling, beautiful woodwork, doors and paneling, unique fireplaces, original fixtures, interesting windows, and decorative touches.

Tickets are $15 in advance and $18 on the day of the tour. They are available at all Crane Library branches, 617-376-1301, and area businesses.

Children over 12 are welcome. Flat shoes are preferred. Homes are not wheelchair accessible. No cameras.

Cerebral Palsy Honors Bellotti With Public Service Award

Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts recently honored Rep. Michael Bellotti with its "Public Service Award" at Kevin's At The Heritage.

Bellotti, 35, was recognized for his community involvement and leadership as a legislator, especially for his contribution and service to people with disabilities.

"Representative Bellotti has co-sponsored a number of bills that have become laws that protect and better serve people with disabilities," said Don Uvanitte, president of Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts. "He has helped write laws that criminalize the abuse, neglect and financial exploitation of disabled persons. He helped write laws that prohibit insurers from denying life insurance policies based solely on mental retardation, and laws that provide hearing screenings for newborns."

Uvanitte added, "Bellotti is working on comprehensive insurance coverage for diabetics. If passed, more than 400,000 people in Massachusetts who are afflicted with diabetes would get coverage for self-management and education."

In addition to his work as a legislator, Bellotti has served on several nonprofit boards with missions to assist people with disabilities. The boards include Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts, QUILL (Quincy College Independent Learning and Continuing Education for Developmentally Challenged Adults), Family and Guidance Counselor Center/Affiliate of Catholic Charities and Kennedy-Donovan Center (former board member).

Bellotti and his wife, Gayle, have two children and serve as foster parents to children with a variety of disabilities.

"The real heroes here are the people who work day in and day out for organizations like Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts who do so much to ensure that disabled citizens in this state enjoy the same rights and privileges as the able bodied," said Bellotti.

Bellotti was presented with a desk clock to symbolize the countless hours he has spent on issues involving the disabled.

Historical Society To Present 'A Christmas Carol' Dec. 10

Kenneth Brooke, as Charles Dickens, will perform "A Christmas Carol" live at the Quincy Historical Society's holiday meeting at the Adams Academy, Quincy Center., Thursday, Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

As did Dickens in his public appearances,

Brooke will present a one-man dramatic performance, mimicking the voices, expressions, and actions of the characters. Admission is free.

Brooke was born and grew up in England and relocated to America three years ago. A teacher, researcher, and performer, he has developed several dramatic interpretations from literature and history.

The Adams Academy will be decked with special holiday displays. The Society will hold an open house with refreshments preceding and following the performance. Doors will open for the open house at 5:30 p.m.

Holiday Fair At St. Chrysostom's

St. Chrysostom's Parish, 523 Hancock St., will host a holiday fair Friday from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The fair will begin Friday evening with a Chowder supper from 6 to 7 p.m.

Tables include cookies, roll ups, jewelry, books, crafts, bake shop, serendipity gifts, country store, and trash and treasure. There will also be food and entertainment.

Admission is free. For more information, call Betty Siegel at 328-8436.

Turkey Left-Over Entrees

Have you got tons of turkey left over? And tired of hot turkey sandwiches? And did you freeze some of it? Before I did that, I prepared a turkey pot pie. Today's recipe is one which can be made and frozen. The other is an easy Shepherd's pie.

Turkey Pot Pie

2 cups of left over white and dark meat cream sauce (recipe below)
1 cup fresh mushrooms(optional)
1 cup sliced cooked carrots
1 cup frozen peas (or canned)

Basic cream sauce

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups milk or leftover gravy or some of both

2 tablespoons flour

First, par boil the mushrooms and cut in halves.

Melt the butter and add the flour gradually with the milk. Add a smidgen of white wine (optional) and then the mushrooms.

Place in a pie plate and cover with pie crust. Slit holes on top with knife tip or fork and bake in a 350-375 degree oven until crust is brown. Cool slightly before serving.

Or if you want something really simple, here is an easy way to make the pie.

Shepherd's Pie.

2 cups hot mashed potatoes
2 cups carrots and peas (cooked)
2 cups turkey, cut in pieces with 1 1/2 cups left over gravy.

Grease a shallow baking dish and spread about a half inch thick with mashed potatoes. Place a layer of carrots and peas and then the turkey and gravy topped with mashed potatoes in large spoonfuls. Bake in a 375 degree oven for about 20 minutes. Serves from 4 to 6.

Citizens Police Academy Top Float, Quincy Hospital Wins Mayor's Trophy Christmas Parade A Holiday Delight

END OF AN ERA -- The Kassy Clowns march down Hancock Street in Sunday's Quincy Christmas Festival Parade. The unit retired yesterday after 25 years of parade marching.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The 46th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday delighted thousands along the 2.8-mile parade route from Quincy Center to North Quincy, ushering in the holiday season in grand style.

More than 90 units--including marching bands playing festive music and floats decorated with the theme "The Hopes and Dreams of Christmas"--entertained the crowd lined along Hancock Street from School St. to North Quincy High School.

While the parade did not disappoint spectators, it was the last hurrah for the Kassy Clowns. Sunday's parade marked the final march of the widely popular unit sponsored by the Dedham Knights of Columbus as they retired after 25 years of parade entertainment here and elsewhere. Spectators expressed their appreciation for their unique style, applauding and cheering the unit as they passed by.

Prior to the parade, Mayor James Sheets and Festival General Chairman George White presented the Kassy Clowns with a clock and photo on it in appreciation of their participation in the Quincy parade and the joy they have created the last 25 years.

Sheets, a veteran parade participant, called this year's edition the perhaps the biggest and best ever.

"I think I have marched in every Christmas parade since 1973, and this year it was the biggest parade that I can remember. The crowds were bigger than any I've ever seen."

"And there was a tremendous spirit along the way, with the people clapping and cheering. I think unquestionably," the mayor said, "it was the biggest and the best parade to date that I have been involved in."

Grand co-m Marshals, retired North Quincy High School principal Peter Christom and retired Quincy High School principal Lloyd Hill, enjoyed the ride in separate antique cars. Accompanied by members of their families, they waved to well-wishers along the route.

The Shriners were practically a parade unto themselves as 20 units marched, comprising the parade's entire second division. Unites included a Legion of Honor Color Guard, Oriental Band, clowns, motor control scale and antique autos, and the Minuteman Fife and Drums which fired volleys at various parade points.

The finale, as tradition, featured Santa Claus and Mrs. Claus riding high atop a float featuring reindeer animals and youngsters dressed as elves. The Clauses waved to children and adults alike amidst a chorus of hellos and holiday greetings from the parade goers.

The float and band competition featured entrants from Quincy and beyond, some of whom have made winning a tradition of their own.

The Quincy Citizens Police Academy was the grand prize float winner and recipient of the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy and $1500.

Other float winners were: First place, $1,000: North Quincy High School.

Second place, $750: Star of the Sea Church.

Third place, $500: Quincy Parks Department.

Fourth place, $250: Interfaith Social Services, Inc.

Fifth place, $250: Quincy High School.

Best commercial float and Festival Committee Trophy recipient: Sprague Energy.

Best Quincy float and Mayor's Trophy recipient: Quincy Hospital.

Best specialty float and Chairman's Trophy recipient: Quincy DARE car.

In the band competition, Douglas High School won top honors in Division 1 category. DHS was named best in marching, music, percussion, general effect, drum major, and color guard/band front.

Rounding out the Div. 1 competition, Bourne High School finished second and Holbrook High School was third.

In Div. 2, David Prouty High School won first place as it was named best in marching, percussion, general effect and drum major.

Immaculate Heart of Mary, Granby, was judged best in music and received second place overall.

Pittsfield High School took third place.

In Div. 3, Southbridge High School won top honors, receiving best in marching, general effect and drum major.

North Quincy High School was second overall, judged best in music and color guard/band front.

Weymouth High School took third place and best percussion honors.

In Div. 4, New Bedford High School scored a clean sweep. The Whalers finished first in all categories.

In the color guard competition, Quincy Police won first place, followed by Silver Dolphin second and Metropolitan District Commission Ranger.

Rounding out the color guard competition, in fourth to 13th place in that order: Morrisette Legion Post, State Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary, Boston Police, MBTA, Second Marine Division Veterans, Quincy Fire Department, Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, Rockland Police, Bryan VFW Post and Cohasset.

Hundreds of volunteers were responsible for the parade's success, including emergency management agency personnel from Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth. They joined forces with the Quincy Police and Auxiliary Police to make it a fun day for the police-estimated 250,000 spectators.

Volunteers from Communication, Underwater Recovery, Transportation, Shelter, Youth Services, Explorer Post 1 and Quincy and North Quincy Highs AFJ ROTC as well as Fallon Ambulance and American Red Cross.

"It was a beautiful three-day event," said Quincy Emergency Management Director Tony Siciliano, "starting with the Christmas lighting Friday, Santa's jump on Saturday and the Christmas Parade Sunday."

LONG 'LEGS' of the Law, Rick Cobban, waves to spectators along the 3.1-mile route of the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday.

Mike Goodrich Wins Conway Award

Mike Goodrich was recently awarded Jack Conway & Co.'s annual "Thanksgiving Award" for his work in the Quincy office.

Company Chairman Jack Conway and Vice President of Sales Denis Lilla presented the award at the company's annual Thanksgiving breakfast, held at Plimoth Plantation. Winners from each office received a Thanksgiving turkey in recognition of their efforts throughout the year.

"What makes the Thanksgiving award so special is that the winner are chosen by their colleagues," Conway said. "Each office's sales team selects the person they feel best represents the Conway spirit of cooperation, helpfulness and goodwill."

As part of the event, Conway associates and employees collected nearly $1,000 worth of canned food and other non-perishable goods to benefit MainSpring House, a homeless shelter operated by the Brockton Coalition for the Homeless.

Ground Broken For Tortilla Factory

Ground has been broken for a Maria and Ricardo's Tortilla Factory at the site of the former Merrymount Lanes bowling alley on Broad St. next to the Quincy Police Station.

The Galvin Construction Company of Quincy will totally rehabilitate the existing building and construct a new addition.

The Maria and Ricardo's Tortilla Factory is relocating from Jamaica Plain to Quincy because of the company's growth and need for more space.

The 11,000 sq. foot facility will include a retail store for direct sales to the public.

"We look forward to becoming part of the Quincy community," said Santiago Villanueva, a partner in the business.

"We worked closely with many of the city's departments and found them cooperative and professional. I want to thank the city councilors and all the city officials who worked with us."

Galvin Construction Company, a building and development firm, has begun demolition on the existing building and expects the new 11,000 sq. foot facility to be completed next February.

Next Civil Service Examination For Building Custodians March 27

The next civil service examination for building custodians on the municipal level will be held March 27, announces Rep. Stephen Tobin.

Individuals interested in taking the test must submit an application to the Massachusetts Human Resources Division by Jan. 29.

The written examination will be designed to test, where practicable, the knowledge, skills and abilities which have been established as qualifications for the position. Applicants who pass the written examination will be ranked on the eligible list according to their relative scores and applicable statutory preferences (presidency, veterans).

To obtain an application, visit the Personnel Department at Quincy City Hall, or the Human Resource Division at One Ashburton Place in Boston, weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

For more information, call the Massachusetts Human Resources Division's 24-hour examination information hotline at 722-3777, ext. 246.

FLUSH WITH POSSIBILITIES

Most maintenance schedules recommend changing brake fluid every two years or 30,000 miles. Failure to do so can significantly compromise the effectiveness of the brakes. Why? Conventional brake fluid is hygroscopic, meaning that it absorbs water. Over time, the fluid will absorb moisture to the point of saturation, at which time unabsorbed moisture will begin to collect in the braking system and cause corrosive damage. Beyond that, the boiling point of saturated brake fluid falls below recommended levels and will start boiling sooner during hard braking or under repeated brake application. As a result, the brake pedal will feel spongy, and it will take longer to stop the vehicle. Flushing the brake system prevents this dangerous condition. Maintaining your car and its braking system is important in keeping you and your family safe. Bring it to the professionals at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and trust its care to our ASE Certified technicians. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Our friendly staff will gladly answer all your questions here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We're A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer. Open: Mon.-Fri. 8a.m.-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 8am-5pm.

HINT: In unusually humid climates, it is a good idea to flush the brake system every year.

Salvation Army Needs Bell-Ringers

The Quincy Salvation Army needs bell-ringers for the Christmas holiday season, both volunteers and workers.

"We have 18 kettle locations here in Quincy and less than half of them are manned most days," said Major Robert Klenk of the Quincy Temple Corps.

He said the shortage of bell-ringers is not only in Quincy but throughout the country and is attributed to the low unemployment rate.

Klenk notes that the Salvation Army has been active in the Quincy community since 1894.

"That's 104 years of continuous service of people helping people. This year, so far, over 10,000 persons have received services from the Salvation Army. From the Adult Day Health Programs to the Youth Intervention Program to our Emergency Assistance to the Preschool, the Army's doors are always open."

Anyone who would like to either volunteer or work for the Salvation Army this Christmas season is asked to call Klenk at 617-472-2345.

North Quincy, McNamara Rise To Top

Raiders 21-6 Victory Snaps Presidents Streak

By LIAM FITZGERALD
The streak is over.

After four consecutive losses by a touchdown or less, North Quincy High School's football team defeated rival Quincy High School, 21-6, last Thursday in the 66th Thanksgiving Day showdown at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"That wasn't a monkey on my back, it was a gorilla," joked North head coach Ken McPhee following the Red Raiders' first Thanksgiving Day victory since a 14-7 win in 1993. "It felt like it had been my entire career since we last beat them. It's been a long time, but that's all over now."

"I couldn't be more happy for the seniors, especially (co-captains) Frank McNamara, Chris Bregoli and Adam Tiro. It's a tribute to captains like them, who kept fighting and never quit. The kids turned it up a notch because they knew how much it meant, and got the job done."

With the victory, North finished at 2-8 and handed Quincy (0-10) its first winless season since the Presidents finished 0-9-1 in 1987. Quincy's last 0-10 record came back in 1985. Quincy now leads the series, 33-28-5.

And unlike the past few years, this game did not come down to the final play, much to the relief of McPhee and the entire North Quincy football program.

"That's what happened the last four years, some snake bite, but this year that didn't happen," said McPhee. "The kids felt the pressure (of the streak) and played beyond what their record shows. They were in a lot of games and never gave up. I couldn't be more proud. This is one we needed and we got it."

McNamara, who made countless big plays during his illustrious career, made what both head coaches felt was the game's decisive play late in the fourth quarter. Holding onto a 14-6 lead, the Red Raiders' defense forced Quincy into a punt situation (fourth down and 5 at Quincy's 44) with just 3:40 remaining.

Rather than punt, Quincy junior quarterback Dan Kelly (14 for 29, 206 yards, one TD, three INTs) opted to go for the first down, looking for an opening that would allow him to gain the necessary yardage. However, North forced Kelly to avoid the pressure and head across the field, where McNamara ran him down and made the tackle at Quincy's 25. Not only did the play turn the ball over to North, but it gave the Red Raiders all the momentum and excellent field position to close out the game.

"Frank is without question one of the finest football players I've ever coached," said McPhee. "I've said it all along, he's a throwback kid. You could stick a leather helmet on him and he'd fit right in. He's done a wonderful job."

He's the best."

Said Quincy head coach Peter Chella: "McNamara was immense. He played a tough game and was head and shoulders above everyone else on the field. He caught two TD's and led the way for them. That hit on Danny was very big, because it took us out of field position and gave them the ball deep in our territory."

PRESIDENTS' QUARTERBACK Dan Kelly (17) is flushed out of the pocket by North Quincy's Ryan Murray (49). Kelly threw for 209 yards, including one touchdown.

RED RAIDERS QUARTERBACK Chris Bregoli (14) hands off to Kevin Shaw (32). Bregoli had a good day in the air, passing for 123 yards and two touchdowns.

On the subsequent possession, North kept the ball on the ground as junior fullback Deptula broke a number of tackles for an 18-yard gain down to Quincy's 6. After two runs by senior tailback Shaw netted three yards, Bregoli tossed a three-yard touchdown to McNamara (seven receptions, 100 yards, two TD's), but the play was called back by an ineligible receiver down field penalty.

Taking matters into his own hands, Chris Bregoli (8 for 18, 123 yards, two TD's) kept the ball himself on the next play and nearly reached the end zone before being brought down at the 1. Turning to the Red Raiders' strong fullback, Bregoli handed off to Deptula and watched as the junior followed the blocks of sophomore center Vin Traetti, junior left guard Joe Donahue, junior left tackle Paul Skarzenski and sophomore fullback Dean Zoia into the end zone. Chris Bregoli added his third extra point for the final point of the game with 1:22 remaining.

Following a good return by sophomore Mark Robertson on the subsequent kick-off, Kelly threw a 10-yard pass to senior co-captain Nathan DoRosario and a 37-yarder to senior co-captain John Katsarikas. However, after a run by Kelly was stuffed for no gain at North's 4, time ran out for Quincy, setting off a North Quincy celebration.

In the game's opening minutes, neither offense could move the ball as Quincy punted twice and North turned the ball over on downs.

On North's second possession of the game, McNamara made a sliding catch for 12 yards on a third and 9 play, giving the Red Raiders a first down at midfield. Following an incomplete and a short run by Shaw, North was faced with another third and long play. This time, Bregoli dumped the ball off to Deptula, who rumbled 23 yards to Quincy's 23. After two short runs to end the quarter, Bregoli found a wide open McNamara, who caught the pass just outside the goal line and walked in untouched for a 22-yard touchdown. Bregoli's extra point, with younger brother Pat, a freshman, holding, gave North a 7-0 lead early in the second quarter.

Midway through the quarter, North ran into problems in its own end and was forced to punt. Robertson fielded the kick, but North senior Craig Bigham jarred it loose and junior teammate Mike Reidy pounced on it at Quincy's 40.

Just when it appeared the Red Raiders had all the momentum on their side, they turned the ball over two plays later on a Shaw fumble recovered by Quincy junior Mike Chenette at his own 33.

The turnovers continued as a pass by Kelly floated over senior co-captain Mike Lencki's head and was intercepted by Pat Bregoli and returned to North's 45. The subsequent drive resulted in an NQ punt, but the Raiders got the ball back on Quincy's next play when junior Steve Minukas intercepted a Kelly pass and took it to Quincy's 21. On the very next play, Chris Bregoli hooked up once more with the reliable McNamara, who made a diving catch in the end zone for a 21-yard touchdown reception. Chris Bregoli's extra point pushed the lead to 14-0 with only 1:31 remaining in the first half.

"You can't turn the ball over four times and expect to win," said Chella. "Danny did not have his best game out there. He was throwing off balance into coverage, trying to make plays instead of throwing it away when guys were covered. But he's all heart; he left it all out on the field. He'll come back next year and not make those mistakes. He'll be fine."

On its next possession, Quincy was the beneficiary of a personal foul penalty and a tremendous individual effort by Kelly. With 25 seconds left and a first down at his own 40, Kelly eluded the grasp of a handful of North defenders and unloaded a 30-yard pass to Katsarikas (six catches, 99 yards). The penalty was added to the end of the play, so Quincy was awarded a first down at North's 15. After an incomplete pass with five seconds to play, Kelly spotted junior Nick DiStasi (five catches, 61 yards) open in the end zone for a 15-yard touchdown pass with no time remaining. Kelly's extra point attempt sailed wide right, and North held a 14-6 halftime advantage.

Similar to the start of the game, the defenses dominated the third quarter as the teams traded punts and turnovers on downs. On the first play after North's second punt of the quarter, NQ junior Jody Bravo picked off a Kelly pass, but North's drive fizzled when Quincy junior Jeff Peterson sacked Bregoli for an 11-yard loss on third down.

The Presidents threatened as the fourth quarter began, sparked by a 24-yard catch by DoRosario at North's 24. After Katsarikas was stuffed for no gain by McNamara and Deptula, Kelly lost his footing and 10 yards in the process. The next play resulted in a four-yard loss and Quincy again kicked the ball away.

With the clock ticking down, Quincy's defense held North's offense in check and the Presidents began their next drive at their own 26 with 5:58 to play. On a third and 5 play at Quincy's 44, Kelly looked for junior Andy Tam, but Pat Bregoli reached in and broke up the pass, setting the stage for McNamara to put the finishing touches on North Quincy's Thanksgiving Day victory.

Pee Wee's A Roll Past Charlestown, 6-3

Skating back from a first period deficit, Quincy's Pee Wee A hockey players doubled over Charlestown to win a 6-3 victory in recent travel league stick action.

Ryan Feldoff began Quincy's run with a goal midway through the first period, assisted by Brendan Conley and Liam Powers.

Charleston quickly answered Quincy's victory bid with two quick goals to give them a 2-1 lead as the buzzer ended period one.

But late in the second period, fortunes changed as our hometown heroes unleashed the mad scoring force of Ryan Conley.

Conley lit the board with two hat tricks, assisted by Josh Giordani and Steve Kelly, and a third goal assisted by Matt Grazioso.

He returned the favor by assisting Grazioso on a goal that seemed to assure victory as Josh Giordani broke away to nail the win with a goal at the one minute mark.

Nick Manning held down the goal to assure Quincy's victory and Tim Duggan, Kyle Carmody, Matt Lavery, and Jake O'Donnell rose to the challenge on defense.

Patrick Makey and Kevin Richardson saw limited action as they gamely attempted to return from injuries suffered earlier in the season.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been said that courtesy is one of the most important factors of true love. Too often we tend to forget this. Too often we are careless toward those whom we love best and polite toward those for whom we care little or nothing...

True and abiding love is divine, but to keep it so we must observe its ritual. We dare not take those we love for granted. Love must be kept in repair.

The ancient Greeks had six different works to express love, four of them towards persons; the love of physical attraction, the love of friends; the love of children and parents; and finally, the highest form, spiritual love. This last is the word used by St. Paul in describing the ideal love for home and family relations... Yes, courtesy is love's habit...

Perhaps if one were allowed to add one small Beatitude as a footnote to the others, it might be this: Blessed are the courteous...

Once There Were Dahlias. Today, Tradition Meets Convenience.

In 1962, M. Joseph Sweeney acquired the Elcock Estate in West Quincy to better serve the residents in that growing area of the city. The circa 1863 residence was built long before the expressway.

Its previous owner, Mr. Elcock, had a green thumb and soon became known as the "Dahlia King" for his spectacular dahlias.

Today, the location is not only near the Southeast Expressway (I-93), but also the Furnace Brook Parkway. These two major arteries offer convenient access to West Quincy, Milton and Boston. Joe's son, Dennis, has recently had the location redecorated, continuing the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

Since 1917, the staff at Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions. And as the area has grown, they've become more accessible to you.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The financial picture looks bright, but in some way a friendship could cost you money. The weekend accents group activities and the enjoyment of social relationships.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's just not the right time to bring up a career matter. You have a right to feel optimistic, but mustn't reach for what is beyond your grasp.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A small embarrassment could occur this week, but this is overshadowed by the good news you will hear. A kindness is appreciated. Don't feel neglected.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You'll end up getting your way with a domestic concern, so there's no need to be tactless with others. Enjoy creative fare this week.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) How to have a good time without going broke in the process is the message for you now. Home-based activities are best this week.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A job opportunity looks promising but it's not the right time to get to work on it. Opt for recreation and pleasure pursuits. Enjoy romance over the weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You can enjoy the pleasures of a close involvement without having to disregard the wishes of a family member. Try to keep everyone happy.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Money can come in now, but it also can be quickly spent. It's not till late in the week that romance begins to go your way. Be patient.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's not the best time to experiment with health remedies. You needn't try the latest fad. Developments afar are potentially beneficial.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Though you're anxious to take advantage of a business opportunity, remember to also be mindful of the needs of close ties. Accent consideration.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good week for your social life, but not for mixing business with friendship. Be grateful for the benefits that others do have to offer.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You won't get the feedback you desire about original ideas this week. Spend more time on their development. Friendships are lucky for you now. Socialize this weekend.

Historic First Parish Needs Major Repairs

not faced with having to make that decision," he said. "The ceiling is not in danger of falling," he emphasized. "The trusses are overstressed, and we want the new trusses in place when the work begins on the roof."

Water damage has occurred as well, causing floor tiles in the basement to lift up and paint on the walls to peel. Water has even collected on the basement floor where the crypts of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine are located. Skomial said the crypts haven't been damaged though because they are granite.

"It's really a moisture problem," said Skomial. "Water is getting in from various leaks in the slate roof." The copper gutters and downspouts have worn thin and cannot carry water away from the granite edifice, so rainwater "falls alongside and goes into the ground and into the basement," he said.

When the work on the roof begins, all the old slate will be examined to determine which pieces can be recycled. Skomial said the original slate, which has a reddish purple tint, will be blended in with the new slate.

The church, formally known as the United First Parish Church, Unitarian, has applied to the state for financial help through its Massachusetts Preservation Project Fund. The fund, established in 1984, offers 50 percent matching grants to preserve historic cultural resources which are in public and non-profit ownership and use.

The church easily qualifies on several accounts. In addition to being the site where President John Adams and President John Quincy Adams are entombed, the land for the stone temple was donated by John Adams in 1822, and John Quincy Adams paid for its construction — $30,488.56 — save for the four 25-ton granite columns in front.

In addition, the church was designed by noted architect Alexander Parris who also designed Quincy Market in Boston. This design represented a transition between the Federal and Greek Revival styles, and was the first of its style in New England. The interior, though, reflected an earlier tradition with its graceful, two-story arched windows and its stunning coffered and domed plaster ceiling. The stone temple was dedicated Nov. 12, 1828. Sixty years later, a one-story parish hall was added. Twenty-eight years ago, the Church was placed on the National Register of Historic Landmarks.

Now, the church, working with the Massachusetts Historical Commission (MHC), is close to awarding contracts to shore up the trusses and replace the old slate roof. Skomial hopes the repairs can begin in January.

Presently, Skomial is negotiating with several subcontractors for scaffolding and shoring up the trusses with fabricated steel. Those contracts will be incorporated into the general contract which will be awarded after all the engineering designs are completed, he said.

"We're trying to get this work out there and get it started," said Skomial. "Another issue is the lead time needed for steel fabrication." He said it takes between eight and 12 weeks to get the steel fabricated.

To help finance the much-needed work, the MHC last year awarded the church a $100,000 matching grant, the maximum amount allowed in that round of funding. However, replacing the roof, the copper gutters and related work is projected to cost between $200,000 to $300,000. The church has applied for another grant for more funds, documenting the need for the additional work.

"... The structure has deteriorated to the point where it just has to have work."

Mayor James Sheets

In June the commission awarded a $38,000 emergency grant to the church to have a structural engineer assess how badly the roof supports were damaged. To make those repairs, structural engineers estimated the work would cost between $250,000 to $300,000.

"It's just a matter of days before we award a contract," said the Rev. Dr. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the 170-year-old church.

Raising funds for the repairs and restoration at the church has been a major concern of the congregation, which numbers about 179. Nevertheless, they are committed to raising the funds from the community and have pledged nearly all its assets to do the work, according to MHC correspondence.

Last month, a group of South Shore business people and political leaders along with church members gathered at the Carriage House at the Adams Mansion to discuss how they could form a non-profit corporation to help raise funds for the repairs.

The organization, to be known as the Presidents Heritage Fund, would support not only the Church of the Presidents but the Adams birthplaces and the Adams Mansion or the "Old House" as well.

"The real problem they have at the church is that this a 300-year-old congregation and it is still an active church. At the same time, in the sepulchre they have the two Presidents and their wives, so it's an important national historic site," said Mayor James Sheets.

"The church itself is a very beautiful church, an ornate church, and obviously, the congregation which is small doesn't have the funding to maintain such a structure. As a result, the structure has deteriorated to the point where it just has to have work."

"Normally, you could go to the federal government and ask for financial assistance, but there is a church-state issue here, and the federal government can't contribute," the mayor continued. "So the church has to go out and raise a substantial amount of money in order to really do the restoration and repair work that needs to be done. I've agreed to be honorary chairman in an effort to raise money not only from Quincy but from the South Shore and throughout the country."

The objective of the Presidents Heritage Fund is to ensure the preservation and maintenance of the Presidential sites, papers and artifacts in Massachusetts and to promote their use as an educational resource.

"We're very supportive of this idea," said the Rev. Dr. Bennett who was among those who attended the meeting.

"We've always operated with the premise we must care for the building," said Skomial. "But in the last few years, we've come to the realization we are the stewards but it belongs to everyone, and we've gone out to the larger community to find support.

"It seems there is a lot of public support. We're unique. Yes, we are the only church with two Presidents and their wives, but if you tour the Adams Mansion, you'll find out a lot of wonderful facts about that family and the contributions they made to our country," said Skomial.

Deware Funeral Home Hosting Memorial Holiday Tree Program

Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston, will host its fifth annual Memorial Holiday Tree program Wednesday, Dec. 16 through Dec. 23.

Friends and relatives are invited to remember a loved one by placing a holiday ribbon on the tree in the funeral home family room. The Memorial Holiday Tree can be utilized by anyone who wishes to remember a loved one, not only those whose families have been serviced by the Deware Funeral Home.

For each ribbon placed on the tree, Deware Funeral Home will make a donation to the Esther Sanger Center for Compassion. Ribbons will be provided by the funeral home.

Hours for ribbon participation are Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, noon to 4 p.m., and during evening visitation periods.

Parking is available adjacent to the building.

Children's Program At Union Congregational

Union Congregational Church, Beach St. and Rawson Rd., Wollaston, will host a Children's Out Reach Program called Captain Jack's Cocoa House Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

sonal property while Hanelore Simonds of Mashpee, an independent appraiser, handled the residential property.

"Generally speaking, property values have gone up because the market has gone up," said Fantuccio. "But it's not like the late 1980s, when property prices were skyrocketing."

"This is an improved market, and people are paying more."

The new assessments are based on what the full and fair market value of all property was as of Jan. 1, 1998, she added. So, if a home was built on raw land after Jan. 1, this year's bill will be based only on the land even if there is a home on it and people are living in it, she said.

The mayor is recommending that the councillors apply the same factor to the tax rate as last year which was 1.69. If the councillors agree, residential taxpayers will pay nearly 62 percent of the tax levy, while commercial, industrial and personal property will pick up the balance. The city must raise $89.7 million in real estate taxes to help fund this year's $158.2 million budget, which is $8.6 million higher than the previous year.

"By adopting this plan," the mayor wrote to the councillors, "the residential factor would be 79.8015 and the taxation of commercial, industrial and personal property at 169 percent. At 169 percent, the commercial, industrial and personal property would be taxed at less than the maximum of 175 percent," which is what the state will allow.

Fantuccio said that the city has taxed commercial and industrial and personal property at 169 percent since 1992. She added that the mayor did not factor in the increased new growth in calculating what the new tax levy would be.

Listings of the new proposed valuations for all real estate in the city are available for inspection in the Assessors' office at City Hall and at the Thomas Crane Public Library during regular business hours.

City Hall office hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; the library hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

'New Life' For Area Multi Projects Planned For Southern Artery

By MARILYN JACKSON

Multi-faceted plans for retail development, luxury apartments, restoration of the historic Southern Tide Mill, open space preservation and a replica of the slave ship Amistad are underway for the Southern Artery area.

The plans, which Mayor James Sheets says would give the area "new life and new meaning" call for:

- A 12,000-square-foot stand-alone CVS store.

- Up to 150 luxury apartments.

- A waterfront park and historical museum.

- A replica of the Amistad and appropriate displays which would tell the role John Quincy Adams played in freeing the slaves aboard the ship.

Plans for the Southern Tide Mill property were unveiled Tuesday when Sheets announced that the CVS Corporation plans to buy the five-acre site and donate three acres to a private, non-profit 501(c)(3) corporation that would preserve and maintain the mill and any other buildings constructed on the site.

The plans for luxury apartments for the Duane property, on the other side of Town River, were hinted at Monday night when a lawyer for the present owner, Twiss Realty, a subsidiary of Stop and Shop, disclosed to the City Council it had entered a purchase and sale agreement with Avalon Bay Communities for the 7.5-acre site.

All of these proposals, however, hinge on securing numerous local and state approvals before CVS and Avalon actually acquire the respective properties.

Bill McLaughlin, vice president of development for Avalon, said his firm, which built Avalon Summit on Quarry Street and Avalon at Faxon Park on Falls Boulevard, will file plans with the state Department of Environmental Protection within the next 10 days to remove the port designation on the property.

Once that is secured, he would seek rezoning from the City Council in order to build between 125 and 150 low-rise apartments on the land. Presently it is zoned for retail use.

City Council President Peter Kolson said he had not seen any plans but would be sure that any development next to the Southern Tide Mill property would be appropriate to the area.

The CVS building will be designed by BKA Associates of Brockton and to reflect the historical maritime tradition of the area.

"After nine years of effort to preserve Southern Tide Mill, not just for Quincy, but the state and the nation...this is very welcome news, particularly to those who have had a life-long interest in preserving the tide mill," said the mayor.

The park, which is only in its beginning planning stages, would provide waterfront recreation and access for the public to the Town River basin area, Sheets added in prepared

Helping Those In Need 48 Community Leaders To Man Downtown Salvation Army Kettle

Forty-eight community leaders are teaming up to ring the bell in downtown Quincy to help the Salvation Army help those in need this holiday season.

Mayor James Sheets, who has proclaimed December "Quincy Salvation Army Month," will be among the volunteers manning a "Celebrating Kettle" beginning tomorrow (Friday).

The kettle will be located in front of Ryder's Curtain & Drapery Store, 1489 Hancock St., tomorrow; Thursday, Dec. 17 and Friday, Dec. 18.

Money raised will go directly to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., to aid local families.

"It is reassuring to see the leaders of our community taking time out of their busy schedules to ring the bell for the Salvation Army at its Celebrity Kettle," said Major Robert Klenk, commanding officer of the Quincy Temple Corps.

Naked Fish Restaurant Neighborhood Meeting Tonight

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
The License Board Tuesday continued a hearing on the transfer of ownership from the Hollow to the Naked Fish Restaurant, until a neighborhood meeting is held tonight (Thursday) at City Hall.

Even after Joseph Crugnale, owner of the Naked Fish Restaurants, Inc. on 516 Adams St., explained to the board Tuesday as to why he named the former Hollow Restaurant such a name, the board still seemed unconvinced.

In addressing the issue of the name Crugnale said the food business is a "complicated competitive industry" In order to stand out, it has to be with something "uncommon".

Board member Fire Chief Thomas Gorman reminisced that Quincy was once known as the "Flounder Capital of the United States", where fisherman from all over the country would fish. So the name "Naked Fish" was understandable, he said.

Crugnale said he was at the Museum of Natural Science in New York and had seen a display of masquerades in Nigeria which were done in steel. One statue was carrying a naked fish and the "name just hit me."

He said when the logo is shown in color and the whole package, people will begin to accept the name.

He said "it works, everybody is talking about it." He added that the fish which starts off as "naked" will have a topping of eight or nine sauces.

As the creator of Bertucchi's Restaurants, Crugnale said he tried to make pizza 'uncommon' by using a brick oven and then adding many different toppings to the pizza such as prosciutto.

He said the Naked Fish Restaurant will use wood fired grills which will create an "incredible flavor".

Crugnale said that the prices he will charge for fish will be lower than other restaurant in Boston, plus customers can pick from 12 side dishes to accompany the fish.

The menu will include many appetizers from grilled garlic shrimp and fried calamari, to fish entrees including grilled lobster, Panini sandwiches wood grilled burgers, grilled meats, and many side dishes including grilled vegetables, fried onion strings, garlic mashed potatoes, and many salads from Caesar to grilled calamari citrus salad.

Atty. Robert Fleming told the board that the name "Naked Fish" captures everyone's attention". He showed plans to the board which will include complete renovation of the interior from "soup to nuts" with new cooking areas because of the wood grill. He said there would be different entrances and exits to the exterior of the eatery as well as new landscaping.

Fleming said the 7,400 square foot interior will seat 229 persons. There are 65 parking spaces on site.

Chairman Joseph Shea said his concerns were the serving of alcohol in a residential district.

However, Fleming said Crugnale is "sensitive to the issues of being near a residential district" and will cut back the hours. Hours will be from 11 a.m.

to 11 p.m. weekdays and 11 a.m. to midnight weekends.

Fleming also said Crugnale plans to have a full service restaurant with focus on food rather than alcohol.

Fleming said the Hollow has been at the site since 1934 with a continuous operation. and called Crugnale, also the creator of Steve's Ice Cream as a "great success story". He added Crugnale would be an "asset to the City of Quincy.

Fleming said Crugnale plans to replicate the concept of the Naked Fish to Waltham and Westboro.

Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association said the Hollow which has been closed since last May was an "empty building sending a negative message". She noted that the site is on the same route as many Historical sites and said it will be a "nice to have a place on the Historical route to eat."

The owner of an apartment complex in back of the restaurant, anticipating an increase in traffic, suggested a fence or screening constructed in the rear as a division of the property.

Gerry Fruggiero , who has been in the food industry for more than 25 years, will be the manager of the restaurant.

Crugnale said if all goes well with the neighborhood meeting, the renovations will begin at the end of this month and the new restaurant would probably be open in March.

The License Board will meet Dec. 15 to vote on the transfer.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Delayed a hearing regarding Stephen Barrett, owner of the former Point Pub on 536 Washington St. until Dec. 15.

•Granted a change of ownership at the North Quincy Shell station on 315 Hancock St. from Nacer Habda to Aftab Ahmed.

•Granted a change of ownership at Sunshine Fruit Company, 52 Franklin St. from Chris Carbone to Huy Nguyen with restrictions about parking and deliveries. Chairman Joseph Shea suggested placing the cement barriers back to deter parking on the sidewalk.

•Granted one day liquor licenses to Marie's Restaurant, President's Golf Course at 357 Squantum St. for use at Christmas Parties on Dec. 16 from 5 to 9 p.m. and Dec. 17 from 6 p.m. to midnight. Det. Lieutenant Robert M. Perchard, liquor inspector for the board will discuss a police detail with owner of Marie's Rene Lumaghini. Also notify the Norfolk County Commissioners about the pending parties.

Community Policing: Making People Feel Safer

By BERT GARR

Ward Two City Councillor Dan Raymondi feels that the most disturbing letters he gets are from people who settled in Quincy, but later question their decision because they feel unsafe.

A large part of the solution to making people feel safer, according to Raymondi and other community leaders, is the city's new Community Policing Division.

Raymondi and Lt. William Stenmon, the Division's Lieutenant, addressed the Community Police Officers recently before the officers hit the street for their usual 12-8 p.m. duty.

The program adheres to a philosophy that includes dealing with quality of life issues that police have not traditionally addressed, such as broken windows, broken cars, identifying children at risk, and graffiti, according to Stenmon.

"The aim is to have all officers within a couple minutes from the scene of a potential crime, and to stop any potentially questionable behavior before it becomes criminal behavior," said Stenmon.

Now nearly a month into the program, the officers have cards to hand out to members of their communities listing their names and a beeper number at which they can be reached. In the future, they hope to receive cell phones to further increase their availability to members of their communities.

They also keep daily journals stating any observations which may lead to future crime prevention.

According to Officer James Detramont, Community Police have already met with the seniors at 1000 Southern Artery, parishioners at St. Joseph's, and members of the Islamic Center.

They have also spent the last few weeks introducing themselves to members of their communities and making themselves a known presence and resource.

"Hopefully, this program will begin to show people that crime prevention is no longer just the responsibility of the police department -- it's a police and community issues," third generation Quincy Point resident Raymondi said.

He gave the history of Council's involvement in the program.

Raymondi explained that the Council first began to see the need for some sort of extra policing effort when over 200 residents showed up for a meeting specifically meant to deal with areas of the city thought to be "hotbeds" of questionable activity.

Though stepped-up police efforts eventually drove crime in those areas down, the Police Department and the Council still found cause for concern.

"There was a disturbing discrepancy -- crime was down and the City was safer, but people still felt unsafe."

Raymondi said that this fact drove members of public office and the Police Department to accelerate efforts to examine what could be done to prevent things getting to that sort of point again.

"We needed to find an effective way to be proactive and better stop future problems before they ever got a chance to begin."

That was when the idea of community policing, already successful in many other large Baystate communities, was first examined.

"We viewed it somewhat like a return to the days of the beat cop, when communities were smaller and

Mass. Cooperative Bank Wins Council Approval

The Massachusetts Cooperative Bank won City Council approval Monday night to open a branch office at the former Quincy Oil Company building on Quincy Avenue.

The Quincy branch will be the third office for the 90-year-old financial institution which has assets of about $73 million, said Paul C. Green, president and CEO of the bank.

Its headquarters is in Fields Corner in Dorchester; its branch office is in East Milton Square.

The proposed bank is located in a PUD (planned unit development) district, which requires City Council approval.

Attorney Dennis C. Harrington, representing the bank, said the two-story building would be expanded on the second floor but would keep the same footprint.

The first floor is larger than the second, said architect John Sheesley. Offices were built on the second floor in 1986. That space will be expanded to align with the first floor, bringing the total area of the building to 14,172 square feet.

The entire interior of the building will be renovated, installing a new elevator and new stairs, he added.

The bank will use only a portion of the first floor for its retail branch but will occupy the entire second floor in offices. The remaining retail space, about 3,000 to 4,000 square feet, will be leased.

Harrington assured abutters the tenant, who has not yet been selected, would be compatible to a banking operation. The bank would have a drive-in window on the left side of the building, he added.

Landscape architect Mary Smith said the existing hedge would be kept, and a solid wood fence would be installed in the back of the property. In addition, plans call for adding a sidewalk and planting evergreens on the property. She said she would try to save two old spruces.

The bank faces the intersection of Quincy Avenue and Water Street, one of the worst intersections in Quincy which presently is being redesigned by the Massachusetts Highway Department. The bank's plans will be coordinated with the highway work, Harrington said.

No Pro-Am Bike Race On Fridays

The Pro-Am Bicycle Race to benefit the American Heart Association, will not be held on a Friday in Quincy next year.

A request from Paul Salvucci of American Sports Services, Inc. denied in September by the License Board was placed on file Tuesday.

Citing traffic problems on a Friday night, chairman Joseph Shea said he would write to Salvucci notifying him of the board's decision. Plus the fact that businesses in the area would be hurt.

Shea said the last race was held in June much to the dismay of many downtown merchants whose business would peak at the same time as the race. With the roads closed off Shea said these were "overwhelming" reasons why the race cannot be held on a Friday night.

Shea said Salvucci can resubmit a request for the race to be held on a Saturday or a Sunday.

The Other Side At The Courthouse

When you think of a courthouse, you probably think of the somewhat seedy side of life. Like at Quincy District Court for example.

The daily parade in and out of there of society's walking defects and rejects: the petty thief, the con artist, the druggie, the wife beater, the child abuser, the deadbeat, the car thief, the armed robber and, now and then, the murderer. Etc., etc.

But there's another side to Quincy District Court. One the average person seldom sees or hears about.

It's the people who work there, and what they do to help others.

"It's like a family," says Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin. "Always there to help a worthy cause or someone in need."

It's a large family: the clerk's office, probation department and clinical staffs, court officers, security and maintenance personnel, judges, prosecutors, assistant district attorneys, public defenders, and other practicing attorneys.

"They see more than defendants coming into court," says Tobin. "They also see the victims and the hardships so many people suffer often through no fault of their own. They are always ready to make life a little better for someone."

Like last summer, for example, when the courthouse crew sponsored Tobin in the Marie Curry Walk to raise funds to fight breast cancer. It meant $1,100 for that worthy cause.

Right now, the courthouse group is working together to put the merry in Merry Christmas for 110 needy families.

This is being done by taking and filling 110 cards from the St. Vincent de Paul Christmas Giving Tree at St. John's Church. Each card represents a request from a needy family and their need.

Comes Christmas morning, the children and the adults in those families will have gifts under the tree.

The courthouse employees have been quietly doing this for several years. Fr. William McCarthy and Fred Saluti, Jr. who heads up the St. Vincent de Paul project at St. John's, asked Tobin if he could help with 10 Giving Tree cards.

"And it just mushroomed to 110 thanks to all the nice people here at the courthouse," says Tobin. "They are always there to help."

And tomorrow (Friday), they will be there again for another worthy cause.

Tobin and City Councillor Dan Raymondi will be among the community leaders manning The Salvation Army Celebrity Kettle tomorrow, and Dec. 17 and 18 in front of Ryder's Curtain and Drapery store, 1489 Hancock St., in downtown Quincy.

Tobin and Raymondi will be there tomorrow from 11 a.m. to noon as they were there last year.

And, last year, there was a steady stream of donors from the courthouse to the kettle during the Tobin-Raymondi stint.

During that hour, they filled the kettle—twice!

Toy Collection At City Hall

The City of Quincy, through the efforts of the Assessor's Office, is collecting toys for the Toys for Tots program.

To participate in the benefit drive, drop off new, unwrapped toys at City Hall daily between 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A box has been provided in the lobby.

Toys will be picked up today (Thursday).

"We hope to fill it even more tomorrow," says Tobin. "I know the courthouse family will be there. And we hope a lot of other nice folks will come by, too."

The Salvation Army really needs helping hands to help them help others in need.

PETE ZOIA'S No. 20, which was retired in special tribute to him at North Quincy High School has been unretired—temporarily.

Pete, also known as "Mr. North Quincy" wore the number as a back on North's first football team in 1933, 1934 and 1935 when he was the captain under the legendary Jack Donahue.

This season, the number came out of retirement so it could be worn by Pete's grandson, Dean Zoia, a sophomore back and guard on the team. He will wear it the next two seasons.

Quite a football family. Pete's son, Dean, holds the family record for a single run. Dean ripped off a 93-yard TD sprint against Quincy in 1980—edging by three yards the 90 yards Pete covered against Taunton in 1935.

Pete, now 81, is "feeling great" after suffering a stroke last April. He was able to once again take part in the pre-Thanksgiving Day football game ritual.

That takes place at Cavanaugh Field the day before the big game with Quincy. Coach Ken McPhee tosses a pass to Pete and he runs the length of the field with the team seniors who will be playing their last game behind him.

"It was more of a trot than a run this year," laughs Pete.

He and his wife, Elaine, who was a North cheerleader when Pete was cavorting on the field, are vacationing in Hollywood Beach, Fla.

"Tell everybody I'm doing fine," he says.

IT'S BACK TO college for School Committee-woman Jo-Ann Bragg. She's attending Northeastern University to earn a certificate in financial management.

And, two of her daughters are also college students: Michelle at Jacksonville Community College in Florida, and Lisa at Aquinas College, both learning toward teaching.

MILESTONE: Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott turned 29 the other day. Tracy Wilson, his pretty steady, presented him with two tickets to the Christmas at the Pops Concert at Symphony Hall. And you know who's going to use the second one.

OOPS! We reported here last week that the Paul Harold Committee was sponsoring a brunch Saturday, Dec. 13 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Viking Club, Quincy Ave., Braintree. The date is right but the day is Sunday—this Sunday—not Saturday. The $15 donation is the same. Sorry about that, Paul.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Maryland Gov. Visits City

By PAUL HAROLD

Maryland Gov. Theodore McKelvin, Jr., and his wife were surprise visitors to the city this week, stopping by while enroute to Plymouth from Boston. They toured the Adams crypts with City Historian William Edwards.

During his visit he discovered that Louisa Catherine Johnson, John Quincy Adams's wife (who was from Baltimore) was related to the first governor of Maryland.

McKelvin was in Boston to speak at the 60th annual meeting of the Mass. Republican Club at the Hotel Touraine. During his Quincy visit he predicted that the "solid South Shore" would support a Republican in the next Presidential election because the GOP favored state sovereignty as opposed to the over centralized government in Washington.

TOWN RIVER DEVELOPMENT PLAN UNVEILED

The Edwards Shields Associates of Quincy presented their Town River development plan to the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

The plan showed vast possibilities for industrial development along the Town River, following the proposed dredging work that would create a sheltered deep water port.

At the same meeting, Sam Wakeman, manager of the Fore River shipyard, was elected to fill the board vacancy caused by the death of Forrest Neal, Sr.

SPECULATION ON

BURGIN'S POLITICAL FUTURE

The political future of Mayor Thomas Burgin was the subject of city hall chatter this week when it was rumored that he had enough votes in the City Council to be elected city manager. City Solicitor Arthur Burgess put that rumor to rest when he noted that a member of the council could not serve as manager for a two-year period, following his leave from the council.

The next rumor to surface was speculation that Burgin would run either for Congress or lieutenant governor.

QUINCY-ISMS

A 34-year record was broken this week with unseasonably warm weather, reaching 60-65 degrees for three to four days in a row. . . Some 250 boys and girls attended an organizational meeting for a CYO at Sacred Heart. Rev. George Murray was spiritual leader. . . The Morrisette Post honored immediate Past Commander Louis Cassani and 15 other past commanders with the presentation of life memberships. The program was under the direction of Commander James (Pete) Ricciuti. . . Quincy Housing Authority held a public hearing on suggested street names for the Snug Harbor project. Victorian maritime names gained the widest support. . . Antonio Volpe was president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association. . . Howard Clothing opened in Quincy Center. It was part of a chain of 55 stores located in New England in the Midwest. . . Rev. Thomas Barbour, assistant minister at Bethany Church, was called to South Congregation in New Britain, Conn. as education head. . . A birthday party for Mrs. Edgar Pamplin was held at the home of her daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. John Whyte of Utica St. . . Dorothy Mullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mullen of West Quincy, married William Early. . . Hennessey's Ranch at 619 Washington St. was robbed of $231 and liquor, by a thief who apparently hid in the bar until after it closed. Also stolen was a "Bundles for Buddies" donation box. . . Israel Schwartz was re-elected president of Beth Israel Synagogue. . . Mrs. Geraldine Delmonico was installed as a new Girl Scout leader. . . Karl Koch, James Coughlin, Edward Ramsden and Charles McOee were on the entertainment committee for the Koch Club's annual Christmas party. . . A large delegation of business, political and church leaders attended the funeral for Edwin White of Reservoir Rd., founder and president of White Brothers Milk Company of North Quincy. Among those attending were Robert Foy Jr., head of Foy's Markets; Lawrence Lyons, Sr., former clerk of Quincy district court; John Flavin, former city solicitor; Everett Robbie, head of Quincy Coal and Oil; and James Muir, former superintendent of schools. . . The top five bowlers on St. Ann's Bowling team were Don Urquhart, Don MacDougall, Bill Dowling, Barney Brady and Al DiRamio. They bowled at the Beale St. alleys.

Praise For Quincy Hospital

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I'd like to report another "incident" at Quincy Hospital. One that occurs daily and is experienced by most patients, and one that goes unnoticed and unpraised. There is no sensationalism connected.

This three week hospitalization was no different than the six prior ones from registration to recovery, I was treated as a person, not just as a patient number. I was overwhelmed by a caring and competent staff. From surgeons to sweepers, I received smiles and random acts of kindness. The nursing staff, as well as nursing technicians, deserve the most praise.

These are dedicated professionals who do so much more than dispensing medications or checking vital signs. Their reassuring manner, words of encouragement, a smile, their understanding, a gentle touch were a daily occurrence and led to a rapid recovery for me. These qualities now continue with the VNA who continue treatment on a daily basis.

I have been in hospitals form North Carolina to Vermont and I would rate Quincy Hospital at the top. I wish to thank all personnel at this fine facility and to express my heart felt gratitude.

The Quincy community should be aware and grateful that a hospital of the finest calibre is in their own backyard.

Local 133 Supports Quarry Street Project

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As the business manager for the Laborers Local 133, I am writing this letter in support of the Highpoint residential project, a luxury apartment unit community to be developed on over 75 acres of vacant land on Quarry St. in Quincy by Congress Group Ventures.

As a representative of the South Shore labor community, I would like to praise Congress for their unwavering commitment to building this $200 million project in Quincy using all-union labor.

To bring this development to fruition, 2000 union construction jobs will be created over the next five to seven years with an estimated $1 million per year to be spent by this workforce on everyday essentials such as food and transportation. In addition, 30 to 40 full time jobs will be generated upon successful completion of the project. It is quite clear that this development will stimulate the South Shore economy on both a short term and long term basis. We cannot afford to let this project fall by the wayside.

Let us not forget that the Highpoint development will be privately financed, without any public funding, subsidies or reimbursement. It will also bring approximately $1.5 million in real estate tax revenue to the City of Quincy every year.

The citizens and representatives of Quincy must seriously consider the economic impact of a project of this magnitude. We cannot afford to turn our back on a project that benefits both the community and its residents. We must seize this employment and investment opportunity.

A 'Thank You' For Christmas Festival Coverage

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Quincy Festival Committee extends its deep appreciation to the editorial staff and photographers of The Quincy Sun for the extensive coverage given the various events during this year's holiday events.

The success of these events is made possible through many city agencies, sponsors, and the publicity given each event by the media.

This year's parade was the largest in its 46 year history. Already, plans are underway for next year and the millennium. How to top this year's spectacular production will be difficult to do.

There is great satisfaction seeing the excitement and joy these different events bring to the children of all ages. Everyone loves a parade and Quincy indeed has the largest and best Christmas parade.

Thanks to The Quincy Sun staff for its role in assisting to make the events the success that they have become.

$500 In Prizes At Wollaston Holiday Promotion

More than $500 in prizes will be awarded at the 13th annual Afternoon in Wollaston holiday promotion on Saturday.

A total of 19 Wollaston Business Association members have included coupons on Page 8 of this week's Quincy Sun which can be filled out and dropped at the appropriate businesses Saturday. A drawing for the winner will be held at each store at the end of the event.

Afternoon in Wollaston will feature special offers from Wollaston businesses designed to help shoppers save a few dollars for the holidays. What better way to kick off the season?

Event Co-Chairperson Lynne Houghton of Hunneman & Company Coldwell Banker said participating merchants will begin their special offers as soon as they open in the morning.

"Everyone is welcome to take a stroll through and peak at some of the new restaurants and stores we have in the area," she said. "They'll also enjoy all of the decorations."

Afternoon in Wollaston will end at 6 p.m. when participating businesses draw the prizes from the coupons.

Participating merchants and their prizes are:

Beale Street Fish Market, 35 Beale St., $15 gift certificate.

North Quincy Scholars Qualify For State Academic Competition

Thirteen North Quincy High School students recently competed against 21 other high schools from eastern Massachusetts in the large school division of the Massachusetts Academic Decathlon.

The North Quincy team consisted of seniors Michael Spencer and Viet Phan, juniors David Constantine, Rebecca Favorito, and Christian Oster, and sophomores Susanna Liu, Jamie Kettleson, Lori DeLucia, and Anthony Curro. In addition, freshman Eric Lui, sophomore Camelia Safarini, junior Diane Chan, and senior Cecilia Cheng provided support as alternate competitors.

North Quincy placed ninth among the large schools and has qualified for the Massachusetts Academic Decathlon final round to be held in early March. North Quincy won the following medals: a gold medal in art and a bronze medal in social studies by Jaime Kettleson, a silver medal in language and literature by David Constantine, and a silver medal in music by Michael Spencer.

The Academic Decathlon is an annual event held nationwide. It consists of 10 tests of academic skill. In the first round, students are required to take seven tests on prescribed topics in the areas of art, music, language, and literature, social studies, economics, mathematics, and a super quiz topic which this year was the human brain.

In the next round at the state finals, students will take seven more tests at these topics and will compete in the areas of essay, speech, and interview. The winning team from each state final will compete in the national final competition to be held next spring in Los Angeles.

At North Quincy High School, team membership is open to all interested students. By rule of the Academic Decathlon, the competitive roster must consist of three students with grade point averages of 3.70 or higher, three students with grade point averages of 3.00 to 3.69, and three students with grade point averages below 3.00. Membership requires a serious commitment of time and effort and a healthy dose of intellectual curiosity.

For each academic decathlon team member the study and preparation for the competition is in addition to all of their regular school work and extracurricular activity.

What was scheduled as a routine City Council hearing Monday to set the tax classifications for various types of property — residential, commercial, industrial and personal — turned into a lengthy discussion about revaluation.

"I have a problem," said Fox who lives at 809 Sea St. "My house went up 40 percent. My neighbors' went up 45 to 60 percent."

She said her home, a 75-year-old converted summer cottage, will have a tax increase of $582. "It's too much."

Fox claimed that other waterfront properties haven't increased in value, citing one home on Sea Avenue that is a two-story, eight-room house with more land than she has. "We're paying the same money."

"Quantum has gone sky high, but Avalon Beach went down," she said, noting that Houghs Neck seems to be affected more adversely each time the city is revalued.

said he had lived in his home for 25 years and raised his family there. "This is too much of a percentage increase. Twenty-five to 40 percent, compared to 3 percent?"

Last week, the assessors said the average percentage increase in valuation for a single-family home was 3.3 percent and that an average single family home had increased in value from $143,700 to $149,000.

"If someone has a question about his tax bill, he should file an abatement request as soon as he receives the bill," said assessor board chairperson Marion Fantucchio.

The deadline to file an abatement request is Feb. 1, she said. That request must be in the office, not in the mail, she emphasized.

Councillor-at-Large
Francis X. McCauley questioned why the assessors needed to hire outside consultants and urged them to do the citywide revaluation in house in 2001. The council had appropriated $181,500 for the consultants to appraise all the properties.

But, McCauley said, "it is in the best interest of the homeowner that we are taxing at this rate," said

McCauley. In 1984, the tax shift had been less and classification was at a factor of 1.3. "This is a job well done," he said.

If a taxpayer files for an abatement and is denied, he should request a hearing, Fantucchio said. "Sometimes there is insufficient information on the application," she said.

"If the assessors still disagree, the taxpayer can go to the state Appellate Tax Board for relief." That appeal must be filed three months from the date of denial, and all taxes must be paid without interest, she said.

She added that a free booklet about the role of the assessing department and about what types of exemptions the city offers is available at city hall.

"People have to understand that mistakes are made" during a revaluation, said Councilor-at-Large Timothy Cahill. "Appraisers come from outside and don't know the city. But taxpayers do have rights."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi introduced a home rule petition which would provide property tax relief to residents and renters who earn less than $20,000 a year. Those who earn over $40,000 annually would be ineligible.

Describing the measure as a "circuit breaker," he said Boston has proposed a similar measure. Thirty states have some sort of tax relief, and similar "circuit breaker" tax relief legislation has been proposed in New Jersey and the District of Columbia.

The matter was referred to the city solicitor, the ordinance committee and the assessors' office.

At the end of the debate, the tax classification was set at 1.69, as recommended by Mayor James Sheets.

That means that owners of commercial, industrial and personal property will pay 38.2 percent of the tax levy although the total value of $1.064 billion represents 22.6 percent of the city's total valuation of $4.699 billion.

With the tax shift, the residential taxpayer pays a total of 61.73 percent of the tax levy although it represents 77.35 percent of the total valuation.

The tax rates, as projected last week, remained the same: $15.24 for residential and $32.28 for commercial, industrial and personal property.

After 3 months, the CMRSE monthly service charge is $5.00 for consumers; $25.00 for business. Member FDIC/CD.

Project Hero Over The Top

A $500 DONATION by Stop & Shop Supermarket Company put the Project Hero $50,000 goal campaign over the top. The money, contributed by more than 400 individuals and businesses, will be used to purchase two thermal imaging units to enable Quincy firefighters to see through thick smoke and flames. The $5,000 check was presented by Stop & Shop CEO William Grize, left. Accepting it are Mayor James Sheets, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Daniel Flynn, Quincy businessman and chairman of the drive. The campaign was co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun.

MONTCLAIR SCHOOL KINDERGARTEN pupils of Mrs. Janice Erlier (shown here with them) and Mrs. Julie Connolly presented a $500 check for Project Hero. The youngsters raised money by helping out at home washing dishes, clearing tables, cleaning toy rooms, raking leaves, making beds, washing windows. The Montclair PTO matched the money raised by the pupils. The check was presented at the closing ceremonies of the campaign in front of Stop & Shop headquarters in Quincy Sq.

Hospital Memorial Bricks Help Fight Breast Cancer

You can honor the memory of a friend or family member who has lost her life to breast cancer and help fight the disease by placing a memorial brick under the Quincy Hospital Breast Cancer Memorial Tree, located near the main entrance to Quincy Hospital. The bricks cost $125.

Proceeds will support women's imaging services at Quincy Hospital. While approximately one in eight women in the United States will develop breast cancer during her lifetime, today women have the best chance ever of overcoming the disease through early detection. Quincy Hospital is working to ensure that women in the community have the resources to detect breast cancer early enough to make a difference.

For more information, or to place an order for a brick, call Jean Parker at the Quincy Hospital Health and Education Foundation, (617) 376-5495.

Community Policing: Making People Feel Safer

families knew their local patrolmen and vice versa."

With that in mind, the Police Department opened up bids to their officers to join the new division funded 75% through government funds.

"Everyone in this division is here because they passed a strict process and because they asked to be," said Stenmon.

Eventually nine officers were chosen for four sections of Quincy: Officers Christine Kaunelis, James Detramont, and Ralph Radzich were assigned to Quincy Point, Officers Tim Sorgi, Barry DeFranco, and Greg Mar were assigned to South Quincy, Officer Kent Yee was assigned to North Quincy, and Officers Terrence McDonnell and David Zupkofska were assigned to Germantown.

Captain Donald Riley was made the Commanding Officer of the Community Policing Division, Lt. Stenmon was made the Lieutenant in charge of the program, and Officer Bob Hanna was made the Community Policing Liaison between the officers and the Community Police.

The division's sergeants have yet to be assigned, due to the lack of contract settlement resolution.

"The more effectively we can increase the extent to which the community can work hand in hand with this department, than the better equipped we are to stop community problems before they begin," said Raymond.

He explained that members of the community know when there are issues, and the police are well equipped to deal with those issues.

The Council and the Police Department want to make sure that the police know about these same issues and stop them before they are packing another meeting room with concerned citizens.

"This is the first step towards making people feel as safe as we can actually make them," explained Raymond.

Houghs Neck Congregational

"Love Came into the World in the Beginning" will be the sermon topic at the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

The 10:30 a.m. service sermon is "The Problem with Religious is that We Don't Get Enough of It."

Sunday School classes for early childhood will be held at 8:30 a.m. and 10 a.m. for older children.

HIGHPOINT

Over the last year, we at Congress Group Ventures, the developer of the Highpoint residential community, have heard the concerns of the citizens of Quincy and its representatives regarding our plans for the development of our site on Quarry Street. In an effort to address these issues, we have submitted a new plan for the development. We believe that this new plan positively responds to many of your concerns.

The new plan significantly reduces the size and impact of the development.

New Plan

- 1,116 luxury apartments
- 125 senior residences
- 17 total buildings, a 39% reduction
- 51 acres of open space, a 22% increase
- Parking for 1,549 vehicles, a 37% reduction
- Building heights will range from 3 to 6 stories

Original Proposal

- 1,391 luxury apartments
- 250 senior residences
- 26 total buildings
- 40 acres of open space
- Parking for 2,430 vehicles
- Building heights ranged from 3 to 8 stories

In addition, the new plan reduces traffic from the development by 22% and water use by 30%.

You may review this new plan in greater detail at the Thomas Crane Library. Please visit our Website at www.highpointquincy.com.

Community benefits of the development include:

- The creation of approximately 1,400 construction jobs.
- Real estate tax revenue for the City of Quincy, expected to be over $1,400,000 per year, and excise taxes of more than $500,000 per year.
- Final and complete environmental remediation of the site as required by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection.
- Reduction of storm water drainage flow to surrounding neighborhoods and Furnace Brook.
- Improvement of water distribution lines and pressure to the Hospital Hill area.
- Traffic enhancement measures including improvements to Quarry Street along the property and the renovation of 9 intersections.
- The operation of a shuttle bus from Highpoint to Quincy Center.

Six Honored By QHS Recognition Program

Quincy High School has recognized three students, a teacher and an alumnus as part of its Recognition Awards Program

Those selected are honored for their outstanding commitment to excellence in a number of different endeavors.

Students of the Month are seniors Sean Donovan, Andrea Healy and Beth Perry. Teacher of the Month is Martha Turner of the Eva Program, and Alumnus of the Month is Quincy Atty. George Burke.

Donovan, a student in the School of Sciences, is a member of the Q-Team where he exemplifies school leadership. He represented Quincy High as a member of the school's first U.S. Robotics Design Team and in the Science Olympics. He is a member of the National Honor Society and the Quincy Catholic Youth Ministry Program.

Healy is a member of the National Honor Society and has received numerous achievement awards in the math, science and world language disciplines. She has participated in softball, track and field and tennis and performing arts programs. Recently, she was acknowledged by the National Merit Scholarship Program as a Commended Student for 1999, finishing among the top 5 percent of the 1 million students enrollment in the program.

Perry, a member of the School of Sciences, is currently ranked in the top 7 percent of the Class of 1999 and is a member of the National Honor Society and Foreign Language Honor Society. Also a Commended Student for 1999, she is a member of the soccer team and school band, has represented the school in the Q-Help program for community service and the Quincy Kids' Voting Program.

Turner has taught in the Quincy Public Schools for 28 years. At the high school, she has progressed from the Special Education Resource Room to a lead member of the Early Vocational Assistance Program Team. She is the founder of the school's PEACE Mediation Program which was instrumental in the school being named a SCORE Mediation School.

Burke annually awards three $1,000 scholarships to graduating Quincy High seniors who plan to attend the University of Massachusetts from which he graduated. This past year, he donated all of the equipment for the George Burke Fitness Center at Quincy High which he dedicated to the late Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, another alumnus of the high school.

Anna Noyes - Massage Therapist

Anna currently lives and works full time in Boston. She was a client at Eugene Thomas and liked it so much, she joined the staff.

Anna has been practicing massage in and around Boston for over 4 years since graduating from the Massage Institute of New England. At the Massage Institute she spent 14 months studying Sports, Swedish, Myofascial Release, Foot Reflexology, Aromatherapy, Sidelying, Deep Tissue and Lymph Drainage Massage.

Anna specializes in Deep Tissue Massage, which involves working on people's problem areas. She likes to get in and get results. "I've seen athletes improve their stride by getting a massage and the average person walk with less effort."

She also likes to do Foot Reflexology, which is the theory that each nerve ending in the feet and hands relates to a specific body part or organ. Working these nerve endings in turn will produce the desired effect in a specific area. Also, just relaxing your feet can do wonders for your state of mind. Supporting this theory, Anna says, "Ever notice that on a hot day, if you cool off your feet you feel so much better or when your feet hurt you feel terrible."

Public Meeting on Squantum Point Park Initial Development Plans

Everyone interested in the MDC's Squantum Point Park is invited to a public meeting:

Thursday, December 10, 1998 at 7:00pm
Marina Bay Company Cafeteria
500 Victory Road, Squantum, North Quincy

At the meeting, the landscape architect firm of Carol R. Johnson Associates, Inc., will discuss plans for the initial development of the MDC's Squantum Point Park. Initial park development will concentrate on park access and the abandoned runway area.

All public comments will be welcomed.

Previous Public Meetings

Two public meetings about Squantum Point Park were held earlier this year -- one on May 28 and one on June 23. At those meetings, conceptual plans for the park were discussed and public comments were received for inclusion in a master plan for the park.

Based on comments received at the meetings, the master plan focuses on preserving Squantum Point as a passive recreational park and sanctuary with the planting of additional trees and shrubs and with several pathways developed around the park. Stabilization of the shoreline, a boat ramp leading to the harbor and other facilities have also been included in the master plan. The initial development will provide the first step in park development.

MDC and the NEES Companies

Working with the MDC, Massachusetts Electric Company and New England Power Company, which are NEES companies, are sponsoring the design and participating in the initial development of the park as one of several benefits for the communities along the route of the proposed Dorchester to Quincy Underground Electric Cable project.

George Murphy Named President Neighborhood Housing Services

George Murphy, a life-long Houghs Neck resident, has been named president of the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services board.

He replaces Richard Peterson who held the position for 25 years.

Murphy has been active with QNHS since 1991. He lives with his wife and two children and has been a public middle school teacher for 25 years.

His involvement with QNHS has been instrumental in many of the rehab and development projects in Quincy.

GEORGE MURPHY
tal in many of the rehab and development projects in Quincy.

"George's familiarity with the neighborhood and its residents, long-time relationships with local government representatives and his general dedication to improving Quincy's neighborhoods help to make him a true resident leader," said Executive Director Normand Grenier.

Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services is a public-private partnership devoted to neighborhood revitalization by promoting, developing and maintaining affordable housing.

For more information about QNHS, call 770-2227.

QCAP First Time Homebuyer's Workshop Set

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., a MHFA- and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold another First Time Homebuyer's Workshop Saturday, Jan. 16 and 23.

The workshop will be held at the Roche Bros. Supermarket Community Room, 101 Falls Blvd., Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the different mortgage options available through the Mass. Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for your needs.

Advanced registration is required, and space is limited. The fee for this workshop is $36.

For more information and registration forms, call Deborah Mulla at (617) 479-8181 x172.

This workshop is sponsored by the City of Quincy and Department of Housing and Community Development.

For those thinking about a career in real estate, or those planning to buy or sell a home in the next year, the "Conway Country" School of Real Estate is offering a five week course on the fundamentals of real estate sales.

Those interested in becoming licensed real estate agents can take the 25 hours of coursework to meet the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' requirements prior to taking the salesperson's licensing exam.

Students of the "Conway Country" School of Real Estate also have access to professional career counseling to discuss joining the Conway sales team, although enrolling in the pre-licensing class does not obligate students to work for Conway.

Tuition is $180 and the 1999 classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9:30 p.m., starting Jan. 5. For more information, call Norman La Rocque, (781) 826-008.

The "Conway Country" School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway and Co., the largest independent real estate company in Massachusetts with more than 600 agents in 35 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Sean Donovan Nominated For Naval Academy Admission

Sean Donovan has been nominated for admission to the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, MD for the 1998-99 school year, announces Congressman Bill Delahunt. Donovan is one of 30 students from the South Shore and Cape Cod to be nominated for admission to the U.S. Service Academies which also include the U.S. Military Academy (West Point), U.S. Air Force Academy and Merchant Marine Academy.

Nominations complete the first state of the Service Academy application process. Names of the students have been forwarded, without preferential listing, to the respective academies where final admission and appointment decisions are made.

Quincy School Committee woman Jo-Ann Bragg served on Rep. Delahunt's Congressional Service Academy Nominee Selection Committee which interviewed and selected the nominees.

Quincy-Born Author Writes Of Wartime Hingham

Former Quincy resident Peg Blackmur Charlton has recently written and published "The War Years Remembered, Memories of Hingham in Wartime."

The book provides an overview of the homefront during World War II and includes bits of local history and anecdotes along with several photographs.

Quincy's Fore River Shipyard and its role in the war effort is mentioned in several places.

The author's parents, both Quincy natives, had lived on Edgemere Circle just as she did until the age of 2. The family homestead on Elm Street is now the Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home.

"The War Years Remembered" is available at the College Bookstore, 1359 Hancock St.

11 Inducted Into Quincy-North High Football Hall Of Fame

By LIONEL BUCKLEY
The Quincy-North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame has 11 new members—including an All American.

The 11 were inducted at recent ceremonies at the 15th annual at the Bryan VFW Post attended by more than 250.

They include five players from each high school and Lloyd Hill, former North Quincy coach and retired Quincy High School principal.

Hill was an American at Brown University, captain of the team, and a teammate of legendary Penn State Coach Joe Paterno.

The Quincy and North Quincy player inductees and their seasons:

QUINCY: Delmo DiBona (1938), Leo Papile (1941), Tony Volpe (1954), Steve Carrera (1968) and Steve Austin (1987).

NORTH QUINCY: Leo DiBona (1947), Ed Gilbody

(1954), Jim Baldwin (1957), Dan Mayer (1968) and Dave Mahoney (1970).

Hill was presented with a letter from Paterno which whom he has remained a close friend and which was framed by the committee.

Hill, Paterno and the late Carl Leone, who played football at Quincy and coached North Quincy, were at Brown together in the early 1950s.

Clock trophies were presented to President Dennis Kelly, and past Presidents Pete Zoia and Lionel (Shine) Buckley for their work for the Hall of Fame. Zoia, who is recovering from a stroke, was given a standing ovation.

Jim Colclough, former Patriots player, and a trophy recipient, was unable to attend.

North Coach Ken McPhee and Quincy Coach Peter Chella introduced the senior members of their teams who were guests at the dinner.

NORTH SENIORS: Captain Chris Bregoli, Captain Frank McNamara, Chris Carthas, Matt Melchin, Kevin Shaw, Craig Bigham, Paul Lentini, Ken Mah, Steve Powell and Adam Tiro.

Former Quincy High standout Ron Ivil was elected president of the Hall of Fame for next year. Bob Derbes, another former Quincy star, was re-elected treasurer.

QHS Wrestling Homecoming

Friends and family of Quincy High School wrestling are invited to a host of events Wednesday, Dec. 23.

The day starts at 4 p.m. as Quincy hosts Brockton, Framingham and Waltham in a quad-wrestling meet. Immediately following the match, an alumni "grudge" match will feature two prominent alumni of the program squaring off in the center circle.

The evening will calm-nate in a fundraiser at The Fours Restaurant in Quincy Center from 8 p.m. to midnight as support for the "Ally Sleiman 2000 Olympic Fund" is needed. Ally (Class of 1992) is a hopeful to join the U.S. Greco-Roman Olympic team which will compete in Sydney Australia in 2000.

Alumni and friends of wrestling are asked to buy a ticket for this event ($25) by calling Mr. and Mrs. Venturilli, Sr. at 479-7540 by Dec. 21.

The evening promises to be a fun event and will fund the travel necessary for Ally to train with the team as they travel around the world.

North Girls Take 10th In All-State Meet

The North Quincy Girls Cross Country team finished its whirlwind season with a 10th place finish at Allstate held recently at Gardner Golf Course under nearly ideal conditions.

North's 260 team points put them just shy of Taconic (258) and Whitman-Hanson (250) in the totals.

Star of the meet was freshman Natalie Caron who was a surprise third on the North squad behind veteran Sarah Houghton. She was the fifth fastest freshmen on the day.

North coach Geoff Hennessey was proud of his team's performance.

"All season we kept turning it up a notch each time these girls were challenged. Again this meet was their best team run of the year. Even better than the E.Mass meet.

"Everyone's back again next year (no seniors), and it (the meet) will be at Mount Northfield, a very hilly course, so we're already planning for next year.

"Our goal," Hennessey continued, "is just to do better than this year. I have to say, this was the most fun I've had coaching ever. The kids were a joy to work with, and my assistants, Jeremy Gott and Sherrin Quintiliani deserve a big chunk of the credit for getting the job done."

In the boys' race, Sophomore Brian Breslin placed 30th with a time of 15:09.

Individual girls' results: Lynda Wilson (37), 18:31; Sarah Houghton (65) 19:13; Natalie Caron (69), 19:17; Linda Nguyen (91) 19:54; Christine Marre (99) 20:11; Genevieve O'Brien (117) 20:57; Kellyrose O'Brien (116) 20:59.

North Quincy Girls Win Sectionals, Bow In Final

The North Quincy High School Girls Volleyball Team won the Division One Central Sectional Championship, but got stuffed in a hard-fought 3-1 loss against Barnstable in the Division One State Finals.

Led by Seniors Alexis Miranda (setter), Angela Scott (outside hitter), Alison Haddad (outside hitter), and Kim Huerth (outside hitter), the team concluded the season with a record of 21-6 (16-5 regular season).

The rest of the tournament squad was made up of Juniors Jessica Lorman, Jessica Barbeau, Tia Harris, Caitlyn Powers, Meghan Ginty, and Kate Jellison, Sophomores Amy Jellison, Heather Lynch, Lauren Campbell, Kelly Doherty, and Jen Ahern, and Freshman Kahli Dearani and Beth Houghton.

The Lady Red Raider's path to the Central Sectional Championship was highlighted by memorable victories over Newton North and Milford.

Their conquest over Newton North (3-0) saw the most exciting set-action of the season. North Quincy faced 14-11 deficits in all three games before pulling out two wins of 16-14, and one 20-18 hand-wrenching victory.

The victory over Milford (3-0) was particularly gratifying after losing to the same team in last year's Semi-Final Sectional Loss.

lessons. Registration fee, which includes transportation, is $97.50 for ski or snow boarding instruction. The ski area can provide rental equipment at an additional cost.

Registration will take place at Quincy Recreation Department, 1 Merrymount Parkway (formerly 100 Southern Artery), weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. as long as openings exist.

Bantam C's Capture District III Crown

Quincy Bantam C team took home the District III championship after a thrilling 1-0 victory over King Philip Walpole at Iorio Arena.

The win completes the state playoff series and qualifies Quincy for the state tournament in Milton, March 5-7. Solid goaltending by Matt Peters behind hard-hitting defensemen Mike Conley, Jim Kuhn, Brian Kenney and Lauren Struzik maintained a scoreless tie for most of the game.

Finally, with three minutes remaining, relentless pressure by Quincy culminated in the winning goal scored by Jon Morales. Colin Maxey and Bryan Cooper assisted.

Quincy won two earlier state playoff games. The first saw Quincy double up the Mohawks, 4-2. The Morales-Maxey-Cooper line supplied the firepower with three goals in the third period. Mike Brewster also scored, assisted by the always-hustling Tom Walsh. Solid defense at the blue line by Glen Liberatore and Greg Sommers helped keep the pressure on the Mohawks.

In the second game,

Quincy defeated Milton, 5-2. Jon Morales scored four goals and had one assist. Colin Maxey recorded a goal and two assists. Strong forechecking by Tim Coughlin, Mike Maguire and Mike Doyle kept Milton hemmed in their own end. Jon Driscoll was the backup goalie for all three play-down games.

After a slow start, the Bantam C's continue to dominate the GBL with aggressive play, solid defense and outstanding goaltending. They have come together as a team and continue to improve.

'Conley Combo' Sparks Lydon; Doherty & White Down Barry's

Lydon Russell, sparked by the "Conley Combo" defeated the Paul Harold Club 10-5 in recent Mite House action.

Tom Conley had a hat trick while Casey Conley (not related) connected for a goal and three assists to pace the victors. Other offensive leaders for Lydon Russell were Ted Wash (2 goals, 2 assists), Jim Patten (2 goals, 2 assists), Scott Vallatini (1 goal, 1 assist), Mike Grant (1 goal, 1 assist) and Glen Misho (1 assist).

Five different players scored for Paul Harold: Bryan Ash, Alex Murray, Doug Haskins, Bobby Fontana and Seamus McKenna. Ryan Shea dished out two assists. Also assisting were Mike Griffin, Chris Burke, Shawn Dowling, Nicole Haskins and Alex Murray.

In other action: Doherty & White downed Barry's Deli, 5-1. Kyle Craig and Dominic

MITES

Noskovic scored a pair of goals for D & W, while Mark Gildiboy added the final tally. Assists were recorded by Scott Richardson, Chris Devlin, Patty Shea, Sam Calley, Mason Mayberry and Mark Gildiboy.

Emily Rooney scored Barry's lone goal with an assist by Dan Nazzaro.

Kiley Real Estate, behind Bill Kiley's 4 goals, tied up Bruce Ayers Club, 8-8.

Victoria Virtue (2 goals), Dan Findley and James Flaherty (1 goal apiece) had the other goals for Kiley. In the assist column were Victoria Virtue (2), Mike Prioli (2), Joe Vialpando (2), Anthony Palisi, Justin Laura and Sal Totomasi (1 each).

Bruce Ayers Club had a balanced scoring attack with eight different players recording at least 2 points.

Mike Sullivan, Matt Bridgeman and Chris Brown had two goals each. Jamie Corbett and Derek Murphy had the other goals.

On the assist side, Pat Totten had 3, Matt Martin 2 and Ryan Murphy 2. Single assists went to Jamie Corbett, Chris Brown and Tim Cutler.

Doran & Horrigan doubled up Jay Cashman, 6-3 behind Greg Calahalan's 2 goals and Glenn Peterson's 3 points (1 goal, 2 assists). Glenn Peterson, Brandon Gilmore, Mike LaBel and Steve Barresi also scored for the winners. Assisting were Barresi, Paul Blaser and Mike LeBel.

For Jay Cashman, Kenny Patey knotted a hat trick. Kyle Tobin (2) and Jordan Aurimma had assists.

Donovan Drives Westminister; Foley Painting, B-P Win

Andrew Donovan's four points (hat trick and 1 assist) drove Westminister Dodge to a 10-7 win over Smith & Brink, P.C. in recent Squirt House action.

Supplying other offensive power for Westminister were Greg Jenkins and Evan Harrington with 2 goals apiece. Jeff Bailey, Brian Carney and Ted Finnegan had the other W-D scores. Assists went to Steve Graham, Donald Gardiner, Joe Fontana, Brian Carney, Dan Poggi and Ray Marchard.

For Smith & Brink, Ian McRae recorded five points with a hat trick and two assists. Other goal scorers were Nick Masone, Chris Garvey, Joe Norris and

SQUIRTS

Mike McKeon. Garvey also had two assists. Single assists went to Mike Glynn, Nick Masone, Corey Lumaghini, Kate Nee and Jim Fitzpatrick.

In other action, Pat Foley Painting brushed aside Keohane's, 9-3 behind Steve McDonagh's hat trick and Pat Devlin's 4 points (2 goals, 2 assists). Nash Winters had a goal and 2 assists. Other goal scorers for Pat Foley Painting were Charlie McGee, Tom Pasquantonio and Brian Gilligan. Also registering assists were Kevin Nee, Charlie McGee and Steve Bythrov.

For Keohane's, Joe Carita and Jim Carita each had a goal and an assist. Mike Giordani had the other goal.

Burgin Platner Insurance, sparked by Glen Gibbon's hat trick, set down the Quincy Sun, 7-1. Alex Smith (1 goal, 1 assist), Levi Silverman (1 goal), David Regan (1 goal) and John Kurpeski (1 goal) also keyed the offense. Joe Ferris, Justin Aurimma and Matt Tobin had assists for B-P.

Joe Garland scored the Sun's lone goal, assisted by Frank Sorrento.

Nutrition, Exercise Medical Watch Topic

A BEDTIME STORY

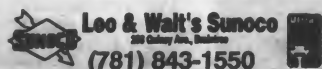

Drowsy drivers who think that drinking coffee, rolling down windows, or turning up the radio will keep them from falling asleep at the wheel should think again. According to the National Highway Safety Administration, there is no substitute for sleep. There are about 100,000 reported crashes annually due to sleepiness. The drivers most likely to be involved are between the ages of 16 and 29 (80% of cases), shift workers, drivers under the influence of alcohol or drugs, or those with sleep disorders. People generally experience the need for sleep twice each day - between 2 and 4 p.m. and between 1 and 4 a.m. Denying this need slows reaction time and reduces the ability to process information.

Sleepy? Pull over for a short nap. Our team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is concerned with your safety. We have earned a wonderful reputation for our many satisfied customers. We are your full service auto repair shop and take pride in our workmanship and the service we offer. Visit us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Hours: Mon. - Fri. 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We're 'A' Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer. We're your local source for propane for gas grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: Ninety-six percent of sleep-related car crashes involve passenger vehicles while only 3% involve cross-country commercial trucks.

Wood Commercial Painting Notches Two Victories

Ryan Conley's six points—3 goals and 3 assists—helped propel Wood Commercial Painting past Bernie's General Store 9-3 in recent Pee Wee House action.

Sharing the offensive spotlight were Brendan Craig and Brendan Conley, each of whom had four points (2 goals, 2 assists) apiece. Other goal scorers for the victors were Ben Metcalfe and Steve Maggio. Other assists went to Mike Arrufat and Ross Pasquantonio.

For Bernie's General Store, Bill Barter, Patrick Kelley and Justin Thorley each scored. Thorley and Keith Flaherty had assists.

Wood Commercial continued its winning ways with a 9-3 victory over Local 103 IBEW. Brendan Craig's hat trick keyed the offense. Other offense was generated by Ryan Conley

(2 goals), Alex Shaffer (2 goals), Stephen Maggio and Dan Davis (1 goal each). Brendan Conley and Shaffer added 2 assists apiece. Also assisting were Paul Grazioso, Andrew McAllister, Nicholas Leger and Mike Arrufat.

For Local 103, Dan Sullivan potted two goals and Pat Malone scored one. Assisting were Kyle Camody, Kevin French, Eddie Laura and Paul McLean.

In other action, Quincey Car Wash cleaned up Coffee Break Cafe, 8-2. Matt Grazioso sparked the offense with 4 goals. Paul Graham had 2 goals, James Spellman and Liam Powers one each. Jarrod Abbott (2 assists), Joe Cafano, Dan Niczajomski and Steve Ohlson (1 assist each) had the other points.

Matt Lavery's led Coffee Break Cafe with 2 goals. Assisting were Kristin DiMatteo, Terrence O'Connell and Brendan Linnane.

Colonial Federal Savings edged Mike Morrissey, 6-5, behind Steve McGrath's hat trick and assist. Pat Maxey, Josh Giordani and Brian Sorenson had Colonial's other scores. Also assisting were Chris Tufo (2), Kevin Sorenson (1), and Brian Shinnick.

Three points by Steve Kelly's (2 goals, 1 assist) and Matt MacNeil (2 assists, 1 goal) paced Morrissey's offense. Rich Stone, Pat Casper and Matt MacNeil also netted goals. Other assists went to Bill Cox, Tim Duggan, Pat Casper and Rich Stone.

Recreation Department Crowns 6-On-6 Soccer Tourney Winners

The Quincey Recreation Department sponsored its annual 6-on-6 Soccer Tournament for the city's 19 summer playgrounds.

The midget boys division was won by LaBrecque, sparked by the hard work of Steven Bythrow, Matt Giordani, Mike McKeon, Lamby Papalambros, Mike Reynoso, Patrick Colclough, William Colclough and Mike Giordani and coach Amy Gibbons.

Mass Fields and Atlantic combined for a team and finished in second place, led by Danny Richards, Austin Mendez, David Thompson, Owen Kenny, David Cordiro, Kenny Hu, Phil Kelly, Carl Berner and Brennan Casey. The team was coached by Recreation Leader Robby Bell.

In the junior boys division, LaBrecque went undefeated to win the city title. The squad included Rob Getchell, Josh Giordani, Pat Malone, Bill McKeon, Kevin Richardson and Brendan Craig. Coach of the team was Recreation Leader Kevin Ryan.

Forbes Hill came in second, coached by Recreation Leader Kate Gaughan. The team made up boys and girls included Lisa Satevich, Missy Miller, Pat Casper, Jackie Koch, Vincenzo Prisco and Jackie Luisio.

The senior boys division was captured by Forbes Hill, paced by the efforts of Wayne Deschamp, Domenic Papile, Scott Keefe, Kevin Gaughan, Paul Garvey, Brian Stock and Chris Wilson. Coaching the team was Kate Gaughan.

In second place was Montclair, coached by Jill Picardi. Team members (all girls) included Alison Lacey, Keri Rogers, Keri O'Connell, Lauren McGee, Erin Croyler and Tricia Lay.

Hunting Hall Memorial Plaques Support Quincey Hospital Auxiliary

To help support the Quincey Hospital Auxiliary, a memorial plaque in the Hunting Hall of Founders at the hospital is available to remember loved ones or honor a friend.

Names are inscribed on a plaque for $85 and each name plate becomes a permanent part of the auxiliary plaque.

The Hunting Hall of Founders recognizes contributions of the many individuals, businesses and organizations who have provided financial support to the Quincey Hospital over the years.

It is named for Nathaniel S. Hunting, M.D., a member of the hospital medical staff from its inception in 1890 who became the first chief of staff when the City of Quincey assumed responsibility for the hospital in 1919.

Proceeds from name plate contributions help support the Quincey Hospital Auxiliary, which raises funds for equipment and services benefiting patient care at Quincey Hospital.

To place an order for a name plate in memory of or to honor a family member or friend, call Natalie Fosati in the hospital gift shop at (617) 376-5509.

A Thought
For The Week

If someone were to pay you ten cents for every kind word that you have spoken about people, and collect five cents for every unkind word, would you be rich or poor?

It has been said that with kindness you can give back a person his self-respect, you can bring life to mothered dreams, you can bring heaven down to earth, and in so doing you become great, for only those with kindness are truly great.

Too often we forget kindness far more easily than we forget injuries. Too often we unconsciously regard a kindness as something that is our due, while we regard an injury as utterly undeserved, even when it is not.

We all need love and acceptance. A smile, or word of encouragement costs nothing. But it can enrich the life of the person you least suspect needs it.

Kind hearts are the garden,
Kind thoughts are the roots,
Kind words are the blossoms,
Kind deeds are the fruit. - John Ruskin

48 Community Leaders To Man Downtown Salvation Army Kettle

(Cont'd from page 1)

"The most important asset we have is people. We need people to man our kettles. Our biggest problem this season is finding them."

Because of the shortage of bell ringers, Kleck said the Quincy Temple Corps is running about 10 percent behind last year at this time.

"We just don't have enough standers to cover all of the locations we have permission to collect at," he said. "We have 18 locations here in Quincy and less than half of them are manned most days."

Kleck said it is not only a Quincy problem but one throughout the country and is attributed in large part to the good times and the low unemployment rate.

"In addition to that, the unseasonably warm weather has also hurt," he said. "People just aren't thinking about Christmas when it has been more like Spring."

He said he is grateful to the 48 community leaders and the other volunteers who are manning kettles this year.

The 48 community leaders will man the downtown kettle from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow, Dec. 17 and Dec. 18 in one hour shifts, two to a shift.

They are asking friends to come by and "help fill the kettle" to help the many in Quincy who are still in need.

The schedule: TOMORROW (FRIDAY)

9 A.M. - 10 A.M.: Fr. William McCarthy of St. John's Church after whom Fr. Bill's Place is named and Linda Stice, vice chairwoman of the Quincy School Committee and chairwoman of the Quincy Commission on the Family.

10 A.M. - 11 A.M.: Robert Guarnieri, president of Colonial Federal Savings Bank and Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000.

11 A.M. - 12 Noon: Arthur Tobin, clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court and former mayor, and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond.

12 Noon - 1 P.M.: James (Jay) Asher, president of WJDA and Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun, both members of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An offbeat career proposition is made to you this week. You'll come to a decision about a school or travel matter. Social life finds you in demand over the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You'll stand out from the crowd in some way and don't be surprised if some unusual types are attracted to you. A career matter is finally settled. A relaxing weekend awaits.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You may feel strongly drawn toward someone but may not be ready to reveal your attraction. Group activities and creative work pique your interest in general this week.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're somewhat independent and flirtatious this week. Some experiment with a new look. Be sure to complete tasks that need to be done around the house this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Compassionate guidance is the keynote in dealings with children who are being rebellious. Recreation is high on your list of things to do. Some receive a gift.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Work left over from the office fills some of your time this week, but the accent quickly switches to pleasure with exciting romance a distinct likelihood.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The accent is on partnership activities. Unexpected company may drop by. An impromptu party is a possibility. Some begin a decorating project.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You'll be making some changes at home base. Intuition guides your work efforts. Love at first sight is possible this weekend. By all means, go out!

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Visits or news from grandchildren are indicated. Romance and travel make for a pleasant combination. A work colleague may appeal to you romantically.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You'll bring a work project to completion early in the week. Partners are likely to keep you guessing, but any surprises will be pleasant ones. Romance is thrilling.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll make your mark socially this week. Singles meet with unexpected romantic introductions. Partnership activities are highlighted.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) For a while you're closeted with your own thoughts. But the week takes an upbeat turn with unexpected romantic developments occurring. Capitalize on this over the weekend.

Toy, Food Collection Underway At Beechwood

Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., is collecting toys and foods for families in need during the holiday season.

Beechwood seniors are collecting toys to assist the Koch Club in its annual holiday toy drive. Toys and games are needed for all age groups, especially for 10 and 11 year-old children.

Gifts should be wrapped and marked with the appropriate age group, and if it is for a boy or girl. All gifts are for Quincy families. Beechwood also collects food for local pantries. December collections will assist the food pantry at Protestant Social Services.

Bins are located in the Beechwood building lobby and the senior center.

The Koch Club will pick up toy donations by Dec. 15. For more information, call 471-5712. Food collections continue throughout the month.

remarks.

The National Park Service has also identified the mill as having high historic significance, added Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to the mayor. "In its 1995 study of Quincy's historic sites, the Park Service identified three nationally meaningful themes in Quincy — Presidents, ships and granite. The Souther Tide Mill incorporates all three.

"They were building ships there in 1641. John Quincy Adams was a part owner of the Souther Tide Mill during the 1820s. And in the late 1840s, the shipyard began building "stone sloops" to carry Quincy's quarried granite to Boston and elsewhere.

"If you look from Home Depot, it's a straight shot from the Granite Railway to the Tide Mill," Mader said. Quincy granite was used to build the Bunker Hill Monument and Quincy Market in Boston.

The area around the tide mill will be restored, continued the mayor. "In effect, it will be an island. There will be pathways.

"However, what we want to do is highlight a very important event involving John Quincy Adams and the Amistad ship which brought slaves from Sierra Leone in Africa to the United States," said Sheets.

He said he envisions the waterway at the tide mill being dredged and have a replica of the Amistad. "Our hope is we can use the recovered upland and put on displays that remind us of both the famous life of those slaves brought to the United States and also have displays about what our own John Quincy Adams had done.

Preserving the Souther

ANNOUNCING PLANS for Souther Tide Mill are Domenic Schiavone, a CVS project manager, real estate developer Jeffrey Coffman, Vandi Braima, a native of Sierra Leone who was a student of Mayor James Sheets at Quincy Junior College, and Mayor Sheets.

Tide Mill would serve as a springboard for telling the Amistad story. Sheets suggested showing the film and having an audio tour of what happened.

Sheets said that the Army Corps of Engineers is willing to spend $4 million to reclaim the area. However, the city must pay 25 percent of its cost. "And Sotiris Emmanouil — he loves to build ships — has agreed to build a replica when that time comes," said Sheets.

He said the city also is corresponding with people in Sierra Leone to find ways Quincy can make a direct connection with descendants of the Mendi tribesmen who were brought to America to become slaves.

On hand for the announcement was Sierra Leone native Vandi Braima, a friend of Sheets and a former Quincy Junior College student of the mayor.

"Until 1995 when I was about to bring my children here did I know that the Mendi tribe had a link to Quincy," said Braima, who traces his ancestry to the tribe. "It reminds me of how small the world is.

"John Quincy Adams took so many personal risks, political risks on behalf of my people. He was way beyond his time to defend these people. We are grateful."

"Today we are announcing one giant step," said Sheets. "If it were not for Jeff Coffman and officials of CVS willing to deed away three acres to preserve it so we can create our own piece of history and historical connection...the Souther Tide Mill would have been lost to the elements."

Real estate developer Jeffrey Coffman, representing CVS, said the company expects to begin seeking permits in February and could purchase the property by next summer. Coffman said his family roots go back to 1890 when his grandfather settled here. His father, Max, ran Shopperstown USA in Quincy in the 1940s and later started the Mammoth Farm chain, and his uncle, Frank and Sam, were attorneys in Quincy. Frank Coffman also served as a city councillor.

CVS's plans represent close to a $5 million investment in the community, added Domenic Schiavone, a real estate manager for CVS which has 319 stores in Massachusetts and five in Quincy. He said the CVS store across Southern Artery at the Stop and Shop complex would be closed.

When CVS acquires the property, it will deed the three acres to a non-profit organization. Sheets said there are about five private, non-profit 501 (3) c organizations in Quincy which have the financial strength and management skills to oversee the proposed park and museum.

The mayor and the city council, along with CVS, will approve the choice of the non-profit, he said.

Sheets estimated it would cost between $1 million and $2 million to restore the tide mill. In the meantime, the city has applied for a $50,000 grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission to stabilize the mill, which was built in 1854, and is badly deteriorating.

Give.

QHS Begins Self-Study For NEASC Evaluation

to be conducted by that agency in the year 2000.

Present also were Supt. Eugene Creedon and School Committee Vice-Chairwoman Linda Stice.

Daisy explained in detail the extensive preparatory work, which Quincy High School must complete before the NEASC visitation begins.

NEASC requires that every school under its memberships undergo a self-assessment and formal accreditation at least once every 10 years. Quincy High School's Steering Committee, headed by Dr. Linda B. Wilson of the Guidance Department and George M. Yezukevich, Assistant Principal, is coordinating the schedule of events to take place over the next two years and making the necessary preparations for the NEASC visit.

The emphasis of the evaluation is placed on student learning. Its focus will determine the extent to which Quincy High School's programs and service meet NEASC's Standards for Accreditation: The Mission and Expectations for Student Learning, Curriculum, Instruction, Assessment, Leadership, Organization, School Resources for Learning and Community Resources for Learning.

Quincy High School was last accredited in 1990. The new evaluation will take place in April, 2000.

Principal Robert E. Keuther, Jr. invites parents, community representatives and students to serve on the various self-study committees which will re-convene Jan. 12, at 1 p.m. Those willing to serve on any committee, are asked to call 984-8751.

Diane Myer Named Account Coordinator

Diane Myer of Quincy has been named account coordinator at Dickinson Direct, a full-service marketing communications company.

A former sales marketing associate for Compucyte Corporation, Cambridge, Myer planned, implemented and assisted with design of advertising campaigns, and with trade shows for high-tech medical companies. She is completing degree requirements with Emerson College, Boston, where she is enrolled in their marketing program. She has also studied graphic design at the University of Massachusetts in Lowell.

Dr. Stephen Clem Director

Stephen C. Clem, Ph.D., of Quincy has been appointed executive director of The Association of Independent Schools in New England.

The organization serves over 150 private schools throughout New England which accredits its elementary and secondary schools, provides professional development programs for the staffs of member schools, and is an advocate for independent education throughout New England.

Dr. Clem comes to the AISNE after a 12-year tenure with the National Association of Independent Schools in Washington, D.C. where he most recently held the position of vice president of educational leadership. Previously, he served as a classroom teacher and educational administrator.

He has designed and led professional development programs, is the creator of the Moral Life of Schools project, and is co-author of "Taking Measure: Perspectives on Curriculum and Change," a book addressing curriculum review.

Dr. Clem is a cum laude graduate of Yale College and received his M.A. and Ph.D. in French at Brown University.

A FILE OF debris at the shelled Point-Webster School is looked over by Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond, School Supt. It's Now Only A Shell But: Point-Webster On Schedule For '99 Opening

By MARILYN JACKSON

Right now, the inside of the Point-Webster School looks like a bombed-out shell.

Interior walls have been torn down, flooring has been ripped out and the asbestos has been removed.

But by next September, the $7 million renovation project will be completed, and Quincy will open its fifth middle school, said School Superintendent Eugene Creedon.

Middle school students from Quincy Point will return to Quincy Point, he said.

"Point Webster will add a new middle school to complement our four middle schools" and continue "our effort to reduce class size and overcrowding," added Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the school committee.

"This is very significant," the mayor said. The school also represents "a continuing part of the revitalization of Quincy Point as a community."

Creedon said he hopes to hire a new principal by the end of January so that the staffing for the school will be in place by the end of April. Other posts to be filled include full-time specialists for art, music, physical education, special education, ESL (English as a second language), a resource room teacher, a nurse and probably a three custodians, said the superintendent.

For the past 10 years, the sixth, seventh and eighth graders have been bussed to the Sterling Middle School in South Quincy.

"If we had maintained four middle schools, all four would have been consistently on the verge of being overcrowded," said Creedon.

"It's not that kids are in classes of 35," he said. "The average is 25. But as we try to keep that ratio, there is an obvious need for more classes. You won't find any classes not utilized fully," he continued. "But we are using spaces for special education, guidance and testing that are really inadequate."

Having a fifth middle school not only addresses the need for classroom space but presents an opportunity to look at other ways to use the school, he said.

"It will be big enough for 600 students, but the maximum number from Quincy Point will be about 300 students, he said. "We'll have room to help out the Atlantic and Central schools. Central is crowded now. And the transition bilingual program, now housed at Atlantic Middle School could be moved to Point-Webster," he said.

Creedon said 63 percent of the construction costs will be reimbursed by the state.

"When the state [officials] looked at Point-Webster, they said they would reimburse the city but insisted that there be a complete renovation — new

1,000 Name Petition Opposes Transfer Board Cancels License At Quincy Point Pub

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Licence Board Tuesday voted unanimously to cancel the common victualer and all alcoholic licence to Stephen Barrett, owner of the Chapter Saloon, 536 Washington St. formerly the Point Pub.

According to Assistant solicitor Kevin Madden, the reason for the cancellation is a failure of the licensee to conduct the licensed business. It has been closed during renovations for almost 18 months. He said the business had failed to "operate in a timely manner."

The vote was taken following a long hearing in which a petition with 1,000 names of parishioners from St. Joseph's Church was presented to the board, plus comments from Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor, concerning parking. Plus the fact that the site is near the school and church parking lot.

Before any discussion, Atty. Louis Cassis representing Barrett told the board that if they had properly granted the license, the restaurant

32 More Community Leaders To Man Salvation Army Kettle

Thirty-two more community leaders will ring the bell in downtown Quincy today (Thursday) and Friday to help the Salvation Army help those in need this holiday season.

They will be in front of Ryder's Curtain and Drapery Store, 1489 Hancock St. from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on hourly shifts, two to a shift both days.

Last Friday, 16 other community leaders manned the kettle at the same location, raising $1,045.

Money realized goes directly to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., to aid local needy families.

"We are most grateful to these and other volunteers because we need all the help we can get," said Major Robert Klenk of the Quincy Temple Corps.

He noted there is a dire shortage of bell-ringers this year here and elsewhere in the country, attributed in large part to the low unemployment rate and the unseasonably warmer weather.

But despite the low unemployment rate,

Klenk stressed that there are still many people still in need of help right here in Quincy.

He also said that some people might think that the Salvation Army recently received an $80 million gift to be spread around the country.

The $80 million was donated by McDonald's heiress Joan Kroc in San Diego.

"But that money will

ENC, DPW Work Together To Restore Sailor's Pond

Senior environmental science students from Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) recently performed a much needed assessment of Sailor's Pond in Quincy.

The pond is off Rice Rd., one block from ENC and is a favorite stop for pedestrians and migrating ducks. The students worked on the project in conjunction with Quincy's Department of Public Works (DPW).

The pond was in need of assessment due to the thick green algae which brought concern among community members. Students examined the pond's current condition as their laboratory requirement for the course "Problems in Environmental Science".

In addition to the actual examination, the class compiled the information into a report for the DPW with recommendations and possible remedies for the pond's environmental woes.

Along with the report, students are preparing a presentation for local community members and environmental science organizations. In this presentation, they will report their findings and offer recommendations for restoring Sailor's Pond to its original beauty.

The community meeting will be held on the ENC campus, Dec. 8 at 7 p.m. in Shrader Hall.

Jonathan Twining, instructor of environmental science and the project's coordinator, said "Community projects, whether on the ENC campus or abroad, allow our students to give something back to the local area. They also allow our students to put into practice the principals they have learned."

Senior Environmental Science Major Altira Nicklas sees this project as an exciting learning experience.

"Our goal is to educate the community so they know what's going on with the pond and what they can do with the environmental problems it has."

"Hopefully this will bring a new awareness to the community so they can be more sensitive to the pond and other environmental issues that face the area."

Nicklas sees this as a "great hands-on project" which will help enhance her skills for the future. She and her fellow students feel great satisfaction from giving back to the city of Quincy.

Partial funding for the project is being provided by the DPW which has agreed to pay for the equipment and supplies needed to assess the pond. Depending on the success of the venture, the DPW will consider several more cooperative projects for the science students of ENC in years to come.

Naked Fish Restaurant Gets License At Hollow Site

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday granted a common victualer-all alcoholic license to Joseph Crugnale, owner of the Naked Fish Restaurant, 516 Adams St., formerly The Hollow, pending a 90 day review for a March opening.

Last Thursday, a neighborhood meeting was held and sparsely attended according to Atty. Robert Fleming, representing Crugnale.

Fleming told the board that there were about eight persons in attendance at the City Hall Chambers and that concerns about the dumpster and a new fence were discussed.

He said the only opposition was to the name of the restaurant.

Chairman Joseph Shea

said Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott had sent a letter of approval for the restaurant.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said by the time the people left, and had seen how tastefully designed the logo was, their attitude about the name had changed.

He said he was "excited to have someone with such a "great track record" come into the community, and that he was looking forward to a "first class operation."

Crugnale was the originator of Bertucci's and Steve's Ice Cream.

Fleming said that interior and exterior renovations will begin immediately with the hopes of opening in March.

The restaurant will seat 229 persons and have parking spaces for 65 vehicles.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

*Allowed a change of ownership of the Quincy Deli, 15241528 Hancock St. from Francisco Rojas to Yu Tokko. Also a common victualer license.

*Allowed a change of ownership from Muncer

Agha to Lisa Nguyen of Quick Pick, 139 West Elm Ave. and a common victualer license. Frank Kearns, who has lived near the former Dacey Brothers store said he was in favor of the transfer "as long as it is kept clean."

*Granted a request for a general license for First Night on Dec. 31.

Is Neck Pain Bothering You?

Is it hard to look over your shoulder? Do you notice a grinding sound as you turn your head? Is there a constant throbbing in your neck? Sounds like you need a thorough chiropractic evaluation.

Most causes of neck pain involve more than just muscles. A chiropractor looks to see if the proper spinal curve is present; is the head balanced; are the shoulders level; are the nerve openings between each pair of spinal bones free and clear?

The chiropractic approach to neck pain is to locate and correct the underlying cause.

Morris Udall Was A Good Friend To Quincy

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy lost a good friend with the death of former Arizona Congressman Morris Udall.

Udall died Saturday at the U.S. Veterans Medical Center in Washington, D.C. at age 76 after along battle with Parkinson's disease.

He didn't win his 1976 campaign for president, but made a number of lasting friends in the City of Presidents.

Udall made four visits to Quincy during his campaign for president in 1975 and 1976 and came back two more times in 1977 to advance the transfer of the Adams Birthplaces from city ownership to the National Park system.

His campaign in Quincy included stops at The Quincy Sun, the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, 1000 Southern Artery, Chick Papile's Barber Shop in Quincy Point, a luncheon at Sherry's Restaurant, a delegate's meeting at this writer's house in Adams Shore, an endorsement on the front steps of the John Adams House in South

Quincy by Adams descendant Thomas Boylston Adams, and a headquarters opening at 4 Maple St. in Quincy Center.

The second floor headquarters office was only 20 feet by 12 feet, making it according to Udall the smallest presidential headquarters in the history of the country.

The headquarters opening featured a clam chowder luncheon and a photo of Udall and his wife "Tiger" with a dish of New England clam chowder made the front page of eight national papers, including those in New Orleans and San Francisco. The "million dollars" worth of publicity surrounding the office opening more than made up for its small size.

In his position as House chairman of the Interior and Energy Committee he doubled the size of the country's park system with the addition of the Alaskan wilderness lands and also changed the focus of the parks system from an almost exclusively western state's agency to one that highlighted the history of urban areas.

Working with Sen. Paul Tsongas, Udall helped create the first urban park in Lowell, and later focused on Quincy. In less than a year he provided for the transfer of the birthplaces. Parks officials had estimated that such a park extension would take 20 years.

In addition to his advocacy for the environment Udall was known for his leadership in rules reform in the Congress and also for his wit. The latest book he wrote was entitled, "Too Funny To Be President."

His dry, Will Rogers-style humor, was evinced one afternoon following a Quincy campaign swing. The then mayor Walter Hannon, a Republican, extended a courtesy to the Arizona Democrat, providing him a police escort back to the Sheraton Boston Hotel, including a

Ward 6 Warming Up

The Ward 6 city council race may be the best political show in town next year.

The council seat which Bruce Ayers will be leaving at the end of next year to give more time to his new duties as state representative could attract a crowded field.

Already looking it over for a possible run are Brian McNamee, Joseph Newton, Tracy Wilson and Sal Giarratani.

All four have had their political baptisms. Newton and McNamee as Ward 6 contenders and Wilson and Giarratani as school committee candidates.

Janet Coughlin, aide to Senator Michael Morrissey, has been mentioned as a candidate but says she is not going to run. She hasn't the time to campaign for the seat.

But now there is a new face—actually a familiar one—in the picture: Maryann Mahony.

She is a 33-year veteran of the political wars ranging from stuffing envelopes for James McIntyre to serving as campaign manager for Ayers the past eight years in his successful runs for the Ward 6 seat and state representative in the First Norfolk District.

In between she has worked in the campaigns of Arthur Tobin, Walter Hannon, James Sheets, Brian Donnelly, William Delahunt, Michael Morrissey, Michael Bellotti, Dan Raymondi, Dennis Harrington, Joseph Brett, Vincent Smyth, Tom Koch, Walter Hickey, Richard Sheridan.

And now, she is just about ready to step out front as a candidate herself.

"I am giving it very, very serious thought," she says. "In fact, I am 95 percent sure I will run."

Mahony, a grandmother and resident of Hummock Rd., also has been long active in the Democratic City Committee and served as co-chairman of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee with Joseph Lydon. She is co-chairman of the Quincy Excellence in Education Foundation that raises funds for the schools.

Now a customer services sales representative at Boston Gear Works, she managed the former Best Buy outlet on Quincy Shore Drive.

She is already putting together a campaign committee and has picked her campaign manager: Quincy Police Detective Ralph Ames.

It sounds more like she is 100 percent sure.

DON PEARSON, one of the finest of Quincy's finest, was guest of honor and made an honorary member of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association at its recent holiday social at Raffael's.

Pearson, a 31-year veteran of the police department, is planning to retire early next year. He has been a tradition and landmark in the downtown area, always alert and tuned into what's going on. Nothing gets by him. And with his size, no punks are willing to test him. He has been known to intercept a few of them coming into town by the T in Quincy Center and sending them back to Boston.

Seems everyone has a favorite story about him. I have one:

A few years ago on a Saturday morning we had smoke filtering into the downstairs production department.

Checking, we found it seeping in from under the rear door in back of the building. Opening the door, we caught a glimpse of a figure running away. He had built a fire against the door.

We called the police department and Don arrived in a few minutes. We gave him a meager description. "I think I know who it might be," Pearson said.

On Monday morning he came in to report: "Well, I found him. He won't bother you anymore. I gave him a little counseling."

He's going to be a tough act to follow in the downtown area.

MOMENTS YOU WOULD like to have captured with a TV camera:

Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Peter Kolson manning the Salvation Army "Celebrity Kettle" last Friday.

The pair spent their one-hour stint in front of Ryder's Curtain and Drapery store in downtown not only ringing the bell but singing Christmas carols and handing out lollipops to youngsters.

We knew Kolson had a good singing voice but his Honor was right in there with him and—in tune.

They sounded good enough to cut a CD together.

THERE'S A GOOD reason why one of the first prize posters in the Christmas Festival contest is now missing from the display in The Sun window.

The poster "My Christmas Hopes and Dreams Are To Get A Dog" won the top prize for Danielle DiSciaccia, 10, in the fourth and fifth grade category. She is a fifth grader at the Squantum School and the daughter of Charles and Julie DiSciaccia.

Danielle wanted to give her grandparents, William and Beverly Coons of Albuquerque, N.M. a "gift from the heart." So, she is having the poster framed for them.

AGNES TRILLCOTT, who has done so much with her "Swim With A Special Child" program, has a special thank-you for the City Hall employees she would like us to pass along:

"I would like to thank all the people in City Hall who made it their objective at their Christmas party to raise $1,000 for a 'cause.'"

"The 'Swim With A Special Child' was their cause this year. At a time when money is tight, it's nice to know that there are angels right here on earth. To all the workers at City Hall who donated to these 'Special Children,' thank you so very much and God Bless You."

Two Smoking Cessation Programs At Quincy Hospital

Bay State Community Services is offering two-week smoking cessation programs from 6 to 7 p.m. in the administrative conference room at Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St.

One program will be held Tuesday evenings beginning

Jan. 5. The other will be held Wednesday evenings starting Jan. 6.

Maria Connare, LMHC, CAC will lead the group through a series of five group smoking cessation counseling sessions that provide education on methods for ceasing tobacco use, supportive counseling during the early quitting period, information and advice on nicotine replacement therapy, and referral to individual smoking cessation counseling.

Contact Connare at (617) 472-6027 ext. 147 to register.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A RARE old view of the incline of the Granite Railway Company in West Quincy. The stone for the Bunker Hill monument came down the tracks overgrown on the left. The tracks to the right were converted for use by trucks around 1921 when the company also erected granite obelisks at the base of the incline to commemorate the site as the first railway in America.

Support Quincy's Waterfront Heritage Park

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Three hundred and sixty-five years ago, Edmund Quincy sailed from Old England to New England via Boston. Soon thereafter (1635) he moved to Quincy, where he was granted most of the current downtown area with his partner William Coddington. Our family remained in Quincy for many years, producing farmers, lawyers, glass manufacturers, politicians and shipbuilders. Among Edmund's descendants were Dorothy and Josiah Quincy (whose mansions are now run as Quincy tourist attractions) and John Quincy Adams and your city were named.

I would like to propose that interested Quincy citizens now consider planning a grand Quincy Waterfront Heritage Festival to occur in the Year 2000. For the site, I would propose the five acre Southern Tide Mills property (former Quincy Lumber Company site) which since the early 1980s and 1995 has been publicly programmed and designed for just that purpose—to be a new Waterfront Heritage Park for the people of the City of Quincy.

For the Year 2000, we could have an opening of the restored and ancient tide mills, a Waterfront Festival, complete with tall ships, and the building and launching of a new tall ship flagship for Quincy—which could remain—like the Mayflower II of Plymouth—to attract tourists and additional visitors year-round. A new water shuttle service could connect the park with the USS Salem and the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum, to double or triple the outreach of that museum. Better links could then be made with the Boston Harbor Islands, Library, Historical Society, Downtown, Adams Sites, etc. so that the whole palette of Quincy's major attractions could be made available to residents and visitors arriving by land and sea, and so that local citizens could have access to offshore attractions every summer.

If we are to implement these planning concepts to all (commissioner by Mayor James Sheets's administration in 1991 and 1995) we must now move very, very quickly. Next month begins the 12-month countdown to the Millennium Year 2000. Citizens interested in helping to make the year 2000 in Quincy something extraordinary to remember are encouraged to contact friends and representatives and voice support for Quincy's Waterfront Heritage Park. MANET -- Quincy's history-remains--and the year 2000 is now almost here.

Christmas Mail Down Because Of Assassination

By PAUL HAROLD

The official mourning period following President Kennedy's assassination ended this week, but postal officials speculated that the president's death had reduced holiday mail. Nationally, mail was down 2.5 percent.

Quincy post office Supt.

Nash and the Boston area. During peak days last year the Quincy post office was handling more than one million pieces of mail a day. With just a few days left before Christmas, the mail had yet to reach the one million piece level.

NASH TO HEAD DISTRICT COURTS

Judge Kenneth Nash, presiding justice at Quincy District Court, was nominated by Governor Endicott Peabody to the new post of Chief Justice for the district courts.

Nash, age 75, was first appointed a special justice by Governor Samuel McCall to the part-time Quincy court. When the Quincy court was made full-time, Gov. Joseph Ely named Nash presiding justice.

Prior to his judicial appointment, Nash served as Weymouth's state representative, state senator, and town counsel for 20 years.

He played major league baseball for the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Cardinals and was baseball coach at Tufts College for 20 years.

FIRST BASKETBALL CLINIC AT QHS

Quincy High School basketball coach Marty Finnegan announced that in conjunction with the annual alumni game, the school would sponsor its first basketball clinic.

The purpose of the clinic was the show parents and fans how the team operated offense and defense in a game. The receipts from the evening's events would help fund the "Q" Club's scholarships.

Among those expected to play on the alumni team were Tom DiTullio, Ken DiBona, Frank Driscoll and George Burke.

QUINCY-ISMS

An estimated 400 attended the funeral at St. Mary's for John "Jack" Joyce of California Ave. At age 80 he was the oldest member of the Quincy Elks. . . Rep. James McIntyre called this week's snow plowing a "disgrace." He said it was the worst in memory with side streets not even touched. . . An electrical fire shut down one of the Christmas display windows at Remick's. . . Quincy City Hospital Director Harlan Paine said the city was losing $50,000 a year because the welfare department was not fully re-imbursement the hospital for the 7,500 patient days. Welfare paid $39.09 a day with the actual costs at $36.03 a day. . . Members of the North Quincy High School Spanish classes were raising money for a trip to Mexico. Mabel Pratt was faculty advisor. . . Building Inspector Alrick Weidman stopped construction on the apartment house at 494 Willard St. until he met with the builder and the architect. . . George Bonsall, an officer at the Quincy Savings Bank, was honored for his service on the city's retirement board. . . Three outgoing councillors were honored at their last council meeting. Council President Charles Shea didn't run for re-election, but was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor. Carl Anderson was not re-elected, ending 20 years on the council, the longest record in the city's history. James McCormack didn't see re-election. He wanted to devote more time to his duties as state senator. . . Speaker John Thompson appointed Rep. Joseph Brett to the commission studying the state's participation in the 1964-65 New York World's Fair. . . William Kelly, president of the Quincy City Employees Group, called for a 10 percent pay raise. . . Councillors George Burke and Richard Barry announced the opening of their offices at 270 Hancock St. . . Chester Weeden and Mrs. Frederick Constanza resigned from the library board of trustees. . . The 30-foot fir tree at Wigglesworth Circle was donated by the Losordo brothers for the city's holiday display. It was planted by Henry Faxon 50 years ago and originally stood on the Faxon estate. . . George Thomas of Washington St., founder of the Syrian Baker, died this week.

QSO Holiday Concert Friday

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present a Free Holiday Concert Friday, Dec. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the atrium of President's Place, Quincy Square, 1250 Hancock St.

Under the direction of music director Yoichi

Udagawa, the orchestra will give a concert of popular and classical music appropriate for the season. The audience will have the opportunity to sing traditional carols accompanied by the orchestra, in a special arrangement by John Finnegan.

The holiday concert is the orchestra's gift to the people of Quincy and surrounding communities.

For further information, call 781-925-4319.

Quincy College, QCBPA Sponsoring Leadership Program

Quincy College and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association will co-sponsor a community development program designed to develop a committed, involved and diverse network of city leaders.

The 1999 Leadership

Program participants will gain the skills to lead their organizations and the city into the 21st century.

In a small group there is an opportunity to create a communications network between the present and future community leaders; to develop individual leadership skills and civic awareness on an ongoing basis. As the group becomes aware of the challenges in the community and the opportunities for growth, they will be better able to develop creative solutions.

The program, a seminar series, begins Feb. 25 and will continue until May 20. Seminars will be held from 7:30 to 9 a.m.

Participants completing the program will receive public recognition and a certificate of achievement.

Featured speakers include representatives from political, cultural, social service, communications,

According to one of last year's attendees, "The seminars did an outstanding job providing excellent speakers and creating a comfortable setting for active participation."

For more information or an application for consideration as an applicant, call Pam Rosenblatt at Quincy College, 984-1756.

Didn't Fare Well But:

Quincy Students Did Better Than In Some Cities

By MARILYN JACKSON

Quincy's students did not fare well on the first Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System Test which were administered to all fourth, eighth and tenth graders last year.

But, compared to other cities in Massachusetts like Chelsea, Fall River, New Bedford and Lawrence, Quincy did much better, said School Superintendent Eugene Creedon.

Quincy High School, which is a comprehensive high school and includes the students at the Center for Technological Education, had lower scores than the students at North Quincy High, he noted. Yet, Quincy High's scores were above regional-vocational schools, he said.

"It's not an appropriate test for those 40 to 50 youngsters in the 10th grade," said Creedon.

"I have a real problem with the state's methods," added Mayor James Sheets, chairman of the school committee.

"School policy and programs are the result of the policy set by the [state] Board of Education.

"It was the board that watered down the curriculum in the 1970s. [The members] took history out, reduced the numbers of math class requirements and removed some.

"It was the philosophy that everyone should graduate, no matter what their grade," the mayor said. "That set the standard, the low standard."

"Now the board gets education religion and realizes the standards are too low. The schools and teachers haven't failed; the Department of Education has failed," said Sheets.

Statewide, schools with a high percentage of low socio-economic homes or a high percentage of students with limited English proficiency did not do so well as other communities, said Creedon.

In Quincy 17 percent of the student population are special education needs students.

"This was a high stakes test, and the bar was set an extraordinary level that we are being asked to measure ourselves.

"These tests were not a traditional achievement test where nearly all the questions are multiple choice. More than 50 percent of the MCAS tests involved writing to demonstrate the ability to write and express their thoughts, so they are graded on spelling and punctuation as well as the correct answers.

"Even the math questions had open response," said Creedon, which means that even if students can compute correctly, they must also explain how they reached their answers.

As a district, 77 percent of the fourth graders' scores indicated needing improvement in English, while 29 percent of the eighth graders' and 41 percent of the 10th graders' scores showed a need for improvement. Failing English were 12 percent, 9 percent and 25 percent in the fourth, eighth and 10th grade, respectively.

In math, 52 percent of the fourth graders need improvement, while 28 percent of the eighth grade and 24 percent of the 10th grade need improvement. Failing math were 22 percent, 38 percent and 58 percent in the fourth, eighth and 10th grade, respectively.

In science, 48 percent of the fourth graders' scores indicated needing improvement in science, while 36 percent of the eighth graders' and 46 percent of the 10th graders' scores showed a need for improvement.

Failing science were 8 percent, 40 percent and 33 percent in the fourth, eighth and 10th grade, respectively.

Classification Saves Homeowners Money, Notes McCauley

Tax classification of properties, first instituted 15 years ago, has saved residential homeowners millions of dollars in property taxes, Councillor-at-Large Francis X. McCauley said.

Last week, the City Council unanimously approved Mayor James Sheets' plan of classification of real and personal property. Specifically, Sheets had recommended that commercial, industrial and personal property be valued at 169 percent of its full fair cash value while residential property be valued at approximately 80 percent of full fair cash value.

With those classification percentages set, the council approved a tax rate of $32.28 per $1,000 valuation for the commercial, industrial and personal properties and $15.24 per $1,000 valuation for residential property.

McCauley noted that the average single family homeowner will save $575 on his fiscal year 1999 tax bill because of classification.

The tax bills for fiscal year 1999 also will reflect the citywide revaluation. Assessor Chairperson Marion Fantucchio said the average percentage increase in valuation for a single-family home was 3.3 percent and that an average single family home had increased in value from $143,700 to $149,000.

If the tax rate were not split, all property owners would have had to pay a rate of $19.10 per $1,000 valuation, according to Fantucchio.

INFORMATION CENTER NOW OPEN

Assisted Living is coming to Weymouth.

Here's what it can mean to you and everyone in your family.

Make a list of all the things you or someone you know would like to have assistance with during the course of the day. Chances are, your list will correspond with the services and amenities available at Allerton House at Central Park, the Welch family's new assisted living community coming to Weymouth in March of 1999.

Our idea is to provide assistance in a friendly, caring community, so you and your family can enjoy peace of mind.

And there are lot's of things you'll appreciate about Allerton House... your private apartment home, social and fitness programs, gracious dining, transportation and housekeeping. Our caring professional staff, available 24 hours a day, offers personal care and wellness services promoting dignity, independence and well-being.

Priority Waiting List applications for Allerton House at Central Park are now being accepted. Call Louise at (781) 335-8666 to learn more about the reservation process, or to arrange a visit.

We'll also be happy to send you more information, including our free resource guide, A Welch Family Directory of Senior Services.

All He Wanted Was A Deck

All John Aldrich wanted to do was add a 6-foot by 12-foot deck to his condominium at 6 Brigantine Lane.

But because the Harborside Condominiums at Marina Bay are within a planned unit development district, he needed approvals from the planning board and the city council in addition to the required building permit.

Last Monday, after his third appearance before the City Council, Aldrich received a quick and unanimous approval for his addition.

"Mr. Aldrich has been extremely patient," said Councillor Bruce Ayers.

But the city councillors also concurred that the council, sitting as the special permit granting authority, needs to cut some of the red tape for such a project.

The matter was referred to Walter White and city solicitor Steve McGrath to draw up appropriate language to address the issue.

Board Cancels License At Quincy Point Pub

would be open by now.

He said, "You have no right for revocation, you're the people that kept it closed."

He also accused the board for taking an opposing stand because of Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond. who accused Barrett of "misrepresentation" when he first applied for a permit for renovations. Initially, he said it was supposed to be for $22,000 and an expansion of the kitchen area. Raymond said he has since spent up to $150,000, but failed to open the business or install a new kitchen..

Cassiss said Raymond was "totally wrong" in his assumptions and said the transfer of the license back 18 months ago did not require that Barrett install a new kitchen. Barrett said he would like to "down the line install a new kitchen." He added that no one ever warned Barrett that he had to open on a certain date.

After presenting the signed petition to the board, Raymond said "it is not in the public interest to have a liquor license in the area."

Building Inspector Walter White said the restrooms had not been handicapped accessible, and the occupancy permit had been revoked.

Cassiss accused the license board of treating "Barrett differently than any other person in the city," and said he could think of several places of business that have been closed and not had their license cancelled.

Barrett said his goal was to make a less desirable element better so that people who used to be customers would no longer come there."

He said he was told to upgrade the type of sheet rock plus rebuild the stairs and was told by Quincy 2000 to upgrade the store front.

After the renovation, Barrett, who owns other businesses, had decided to sell the establishment, but the deal fell through because of all the delays.

Cassiss, who said he would appeal said Barrett would have the same rights as anyone else in the city, and said if the license board continued with this sort of action, they may be subject to a "civil rights action."

After the vote, Cassiss asked the board to renew Barrett's license until his appeal can be heard with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. (ABCC)

Madden interjected by saying the subject is "unique" in that the board has cancelled a license in a business that is closed, rather than keep a place opened while an appeal is being heard.

Chairman Joseph Shea tried several times to end the discussion until an appeal is heard Jan. 6

REAL ESTATE

PETER MULLIN, CEO of Senior Living Residences, Inc., management company for Marina Place, shows Mayor James Sheets some of the amenities of a studio apartment at the soon to open independent and assisted living community at Marina Bay.

EXTERIOR VIEW of Marina Place, the new independent and assisted living community under construction in Marina Bay. The facility is scheduled to open in January.

Sheets Takes Hard Hat Tour Of Marina Place

Mayor James Sheets recently took a hard hat tour of Marina Place, the new independent and assisted living community under construction in Marina Bay and scheduled to open next month.

Joining the mayor were Councillor-at-Large Tim Cahill, Helen Murphy of the Mayor's office, Peter Mullin, CEO of Senior Living Residences, Inc., the management company for Marina Place; Steve Puliafico, executive vice president; and Italo Visco, vice president and director of development of The Newton Group, LLC, the developer of Marina Place. Also taking part were Marina Place Executive Director Patricia Pierce Garre, Marketing Director Marjorie Cameron, and Assistant Marketing Director Joan Wright.

Calling assisted living a "wonderful concept," Sheets said Marina Place's location is "superb and a sure bet." Offering 110 private rental apartments and a full range of services that enhance residents' independence, Marina Place will provide on-site staff around the clock and a 24-hour personal emergency response system. Residents can choose lifestyle plans that meet individual's specific needs.

The new building includes warm, inviting living spaces, many named after prominent Quincy personalities or places such as the Presidents Library, which shares an open fireplace with a grand living room; the Amelia Earhart Community Room, which will be open for community activities and events; and the Shipyard Pub.

The tour included a review of the Memory Impairment Care Program wing, housing 21 apartments and providing special services within a safe and secure environment for individuals with dementia-related conditions, including early Alzheimer's.

Marina Place offers residents a choice of its enhanced independence plan or an assisted living plan that provides up to one-hour daily of personal care assistance. Both plans include meals prepared by a professional chef and served by waitstaff in a dining room, weekly housekeeping and linen laundry service, a personalized wellness care plan as well as social, recreational and cultural activities and private van transportation to shopping, religious services and social activities.

Model apartments are open Saturday and Sunday between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Call 770-3264.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS climbs a stepladder to check the ceiling in a classroom at the gutted Point-Webster School. With him are School Committeeman Ron Mariano, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond and School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

WORKERS ARE BUSY renovating and restoring the Point-Webster School to be the city's fifth middle school.

(Quincy Sun Photos/Tom Gorman)

Point-Webster On Schedule For '99 Opening

(Cont'd From Page 1)

heating, air conditioning, wiring, lighting, handicap access, an elevator — from soup to nuts," said Creedon. "There'll be new furniture, science rooms, art rooms, computers, new floors, new ceilings and a new roof."

The third-floor auditorium will be restored to its original appearance although it will have a state-of-the-art lighting and sound system installed, he added, and the library or media center will be moved to the ground level.

Even with the $7 million price tag, Creedon said it was significantly less expensive to renovate the Point-Webster than to try to build a new middle school in Quincy Point.

First of all, the city did not have enough land without taking property by eminent domain, and the city leaders were not interested in that kind of battle, he said. "The state would have required 10 acres; we had a difficult time finding seven acres for the [new] Marshall School," he said.

"Structurally, the Point-Webster is a very fine building. We're doing what private developers did with the closed schools, the Gridley Bryant, the Willard and the Adams. They gutted them, then turned them into offices and housing.

"We're gutting the school and bringing it up to snuff." The Webster School was built in 1916 and served as an elementary school; the Point addition was built in the early 1930s and served as a middle school. About 10 years ago the facilities were combined for use as a larger elementary school, and the middle school students were moved to the Sterling.

Architects for the project are Cole and Goyette of Cambridge, which also designed the addition to the Beechwood Knoll School, the renovations and new gymnasium at the Parker School and the new Marshall School. The firm presently is working on the design for the new Quincy High School.

The general contractor at the Point-Webster is Boston Buildings and Bridge Construction Company of Milton.

The interior has been designed to provide 22 regular classrooms ranging between 750 and 850 square feet and seven smaller classrooms, between 300 and 500 square feet, which will be used for classes for ESL (English as a second language), special needs and Title I as well as a student publications center and a parent reception area.

On the ground floor will be a new media center, a remodeled cafeteria and kitchen, a new technology education center, which was the industrial arts shop, and an adjacent space for computer-aided-design classes. Also on this level will be a homemaking/clothes area, a music rehearsal area and another room for instrument instruction, plus a teachers' planning room and dining area.

The major change on the first floor is that the administration offices will be moved to the front of the building on Lancaster Street, and the former offices will be turned into classrooms. "This is for security purposes and for convenience for parents," said Creedon. On the second floor will be an expanded art room and another art room earmarked for special projects plus a science lecture room and science laboratory.

"These classrooms will be larger because the coat-rooms have been removed," said Creedon. "Also the rooms will have tremendously improved lighting, six to eight computer stations. They will be wired for voice, video and data and will have an enhanced phone system."

Classrooms will have new shelving, and some will have water in the room. All the classrooms and the auditorium will be air-conditioned which would be ideal for holding summer school and enrichment programs there. The gymnasium will not be air-conditioned, he said.

The 4,800-square-foot gymnasium will have new showers and dressing rooms for both boys and girls, new storage rooms and offices for the physical education instructors. Because it is in a wing, the gym also can be used for public meetings, said Creedon.

Under the school department's long-range plans, the next order of business is to complete the design for a new Quincy High School, to be sited on 18 acres of land abutting Faxon Park and lying behind the Bradlees store on Quincy Avenue.

"There will be no roads constructed through Faxon Park to the school," emphasized Creedon, "but there are a number of ballfields in the park the city has invested in, which the school will be able to use."

The draft proposal calls for building a 258,563-square-foot comprehensive high school which would incorporate the existing Quincy High School and Center for Technological Education and house up to 1,400 students.

Creedon said he expected the final design and all the specifications to be completed by January 2000 and that construction would begin by 2001. The timetable calls for construction to be completed by the year 2003 so that students can move in that September.

The old Quincy High School then would be closed for a year-long renovation project which would transform the facility into a middle school for the students in the Central Middle School district. The original vocational-technical school behind Quincy High School would be razed, and the present Center for Technological Education could be remodeled to accommodate the offices of the John F. Kennedy Health Center.

In addition, a portion of the school could be remodeled for a citywide early childhood education, said Creedon. "We would need to maintain the gym," he added.

At last week's meeting of the city council's education committee, Sherry Hackett, president of the Sterling Parent Teacher Organization, voiced concerns that much-needed work will not be completed for several years.

She said the classrooms do not have enough electrical outlets, the auditorium has missing or broken seats and the school is not handicapped accessible.

"Parents are proud of the school despite the conditions, but the time had come to look at it," she said.

Public Works Director David Colton, who is chairman of the mayor's school buildings needs task force, said the city has "a very aggressive program for all schools. Sterling is one of the oldest schools, but we cannot do everything at once."

Major improvements at the Sterling School are slated to be completed by the year 2006, after the present Quincy High School is renovated to serve as the Central Middle School.

Councillor Michael D'Amico, chairman of the education committee, announced that the Antonelli Trust Fund has donated $25,000 for upgrading all the electricity, including new stage lighting, at the Sterling Middle School, and for repainting the classrooms. D'Amico added that the mayor would be willing to commit funds for repairing the bathrooms at the school after the other work is done.

SUN SPORTS

Recreation Dept., Elks Free Throw Contest Starts Saturday

Quincy Recreation Department and Quincy Lodge of Elks will co-sponsor the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest.

The Quincy competition is the first step in the national contest for boys and girls ages 8-13. Contestants are assigned to three separate age categories in both boys and girls divisions.

Age groups are 8-9, 10-11, and 12-13. Contestants' age is determined by their age on April 1, 1999.

The first round of the Quincy contest will be offered at the following gymnasiums at 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 19: Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle, Bernazzani, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Clifford Marshall, Snug Harbor, Squantum and Wollaston.

The first round will also be conducted at the Parker gym on Wednesday, Dec. 23 at 3 p.m.

Each participant is awarded points for successful free throws. Boys and girls in the age 8-9 age group will shoot from four feet in front of the regulation line.

The program will be supervised in neighborhood gymnasiums by Quincy Recreation leaders assigned their regular recreation programs in that area.

The program is free.

Contestants may participate even if not previously enrolled in the recreation program. Participants may choose any of the various times or sites to compete, however they may only compete in one Quincy qualifier.

"We're please that the Quincy Lodge of Elks has once again provided this program for the benefit of our participants," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "Many Quincy residents in the past have enjoyed the benefits of this activity at the local, regional, and state level as well as the national championship. The Elks devote a great deal of attention to youth programs. Their commitment to our children helps make Quincy a better place to live."

Quincy Lodge Hoop Shoot chairman is Ed Miller, former North Quincy High School basketball player and coach. He is the athletic director at Marshfield High School.

For more information, call Quincy Recreation at 376-1394.

Ryan Feldhoff, Stephen Kelley To Compete In Quebec Tourney

Two Quincy residents, Ryan Feldhoff and Stephen Kelley will take to the ice for the Boston Jr. Bruins All-Star Team when they skate in Quebec to compete for the America's Cup against teams from the U.S., Canada, and other nations.

The purpose of the February trip is to provide good competitive hockey and a cultural exchange. The boys will be staying with French-Canadian families and will be treated to many historical and cultural sites in Quebec city.

The team has received financial sponsorship from the Boston Bruins, but additional monies are needed. All donations large or small are welcomed to help finance the $20,000 trip.

If interested in providing a donation, checks can be made payable to the Boston Jr. Bruins Pee-Wee All Stars and mailed to Ryan Feldhoff at 107 Cedar St. or Stephen Kelley at 47 Vershire St., both Quincy

RYAN FELDHOFF and STEPHEN KELLEY 02171.

Ryan and Stephen and their families would like to thank all those who have already been so generous in giving a donation.

Blend Of Veterans, Youth On North Girls' Track

The North Quincy High School girls' indoor track team will make some noise this year with an assortment of veteran athletes and a good crop of freshmen talent, says head coach Geoff Hennessy.

Hennessy, starting his 11th year, welcomed 30 candidates. The team boasts strength in the distance runs and should be a force in events from the 600 on up. Replacing state caliber athletes like Sarah Beston (Class B highjump champ in 1997) and Jasmine Gonzalez (two-time OCL 600 champ/New England qualifier) will be job number one, Hennessy said.

"The sprint/hurdle corps is thin but veteran Captain Kellie Johnston is strong in either the 50 or 300, and Kim Huerth, who lead the volleyball team to the state finals, will lead the charge in the hurdles and high jump. The throwing group will feel the loss of Kristy Deputa and Claire Quilty, the best 1-2 punch in the OCL for the past two years, but Ellen Tang and Lena Yuen are veteran throwers closing in on the 30-foot mark," Hennessy said.

"All seven of the state cross country runners will make their presence felt from the 600 on up including Wilson, Houghton, Nguyen, Caron, Marre and the O'Briens. Add good looking frosh Laura Wells and the distance corps is solid, with a possible bid to run the 4 x 600 at the state meet," he added.

Returning lettermen are Huerth, Johnston, Genevieve O'Brien (600), Linda Nguyen (distance), Sarah Houghton (distance), Lynda Wilson (distance), Colleen Lahar (300), Kelly-Rose O'Brien (300), Christine Marre (distance), Ellen Tang (throws), Lena Yuen (throws).

Other returning veterans are juniors Sarah Price, Liz Leuchte, Charlene Cote, Liz Hunt; and sophomores Ellen Blaney and Melissa McKenna.

Freshmen and promising newcomers are Natalie Caron, Samantha Chaisson, Kara Cheesman, Nicole Hickey, Beth Houghton, Lauren Magaldi, Vidya Mahadeo, Katherine Markhard, Laura Matos, Laura Wells, Jackie Zoia, Donna Thach and Priya Karki.

"We have a good crop of freshmen again," Hennessy said, "but some will not have the luxury of 'silent development.' They'll be varsity performers right off the bat. We're not much better than a .500 club considering the huge squads that Silver Lake, B/R and Falmouth have, we just don't have their kinds of numbers, but we'll be okay."

"We're planning to have a fun season, go up to Dartmouth, do the invitationals. Come the conference meet and the states you know we'll make some noise."

Hennessy predicts a fourth place finish for North Quincy, behind Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Falmouth. He believes Barnstable, Taunton, Plymouth South and Quincy will round out the standings.

North opened its season Dec. 14 versus Taunton and competes against Silver Lake at Taunton Dec. 23 followed by the Brown Invitational in Providence Dec. 28.

North Freshmen Boys' Basketball Opens Friday

Nineteen freshmen boys make up the 1998-99 freshmen boys basketball team at North Quincy High School.

"We don't have a lot of height," said new freshmen coach Scott Madden. "So I'm looking for us to run when we can and pressure the other team defensively all over the court."

The freshmen boys team is made up of centers Jon O'Connell, Adam O'Hara and Phong Quach; guards Matt Donovan, Mark Maher, Steve Pizzi, Dennis Thomson, Dan Duggan, Sean Ginty, Mike Haines, Dave Rochon, Bert Vivatyan, Leo Ahern, Charlie Vidoli; and forwards Jackie Liuzzo, Wayne Moynihan, Dennis Madkey, Eric Stanton and James Hawko. Many of the boys have been playing organized basketball for years, through either the President's League or Sacred Heart youth programs.

First year coach Madden joins coach Ted Stevenson's staff at North Quincy, fresh from a successful varsity career at Eastern Nazarene College. He replaces Doug MacFarlane, who has assumed the varsity girls coaching position at North.

Madden, a 1998 graduate, was a physical education major at ENC. He currently works in the Quincy Public Schools as a special needs teacher in the G.O.A.L.S. program.

The freshmen boys team opens Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Silver Lake.

Squirt A 'Falcon's Tie Hyde Park

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A "Falcons" battled Hyde Park to a 5-5 tie during an exciting game at the Waltham Hockey Arena.

The Falcons jump out to a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by Craig Calley assisted by Mike McKeon.

The team skated hard throughout the game with great efforts by Stevie Bythrow, Matt Tobin and Brendan Mulcahy.

In the third period, Pat Devin scored unassisted. Mike Giordani lifted one into the net assisted by his brother, Matt. Another unassisted goal occurred when Glen Gibbons put one past the Hyde Park goalie. The tandem of Mike and Matt Giordani struck again when Mike scored for the second time, again assisted by his brother Matt.

The "Blue liners" Paul Fasoli, Ray Marchand, Mike MacPherson, Dan Poggi and Chris Rooney worked on defense. Matt Connors and Frankie Sorrento did an outstanding job in goal.

St. Joseph's Shedevels Win, 40-31

St. Joseph Shedevels started the basketball season on a positive note, defeating St. Columbkilles of Brighton, 40-31.

The team was lead by captain Jaclyn Brogna who scored 12 points and was the force down low. Colleen Young and Nikki Groleau each contributed 10 points and set the pace for the offense.

St. Columbkilles attempted a comeback in the second half but Meagan Chagnon, the other co-captain, provided leadership on defense and 8 fast-break points. The team looks forward being a top contender in the South Shore Parochial School League.

Mass Fields, O'Rourke Recreation Hoop Winners

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its summer basketball playoffs.

The champion of the junior boys division was Mass Fields, which edged Palmer, 28-24. The winners were led by the jump shooting of Chris Sheehan, who scored nine points, and teammates Kyle and Daryl Costa combined for 15 points. Other contributors were Andrew Donovan, John Ridge and Ross Pasquantonio.

Palmer was paced by Anthony Kellam (12 points) and Kenny Johnson (10 points). Also playing well for Palmer were Matt and Pat Peyer, Mike Mahoney and Joey Carito.

In another tightly-contested game, O'Rourke defeated Mass Field, 48-47, to win the senior boys division title. O'Rourke was sparked by Craig Wood (16 points) and Chase Clark (14 points). Also turning in strong efforts were Adam Woo, Dave Riley, Frankie Parker, Rob Warren, Dan O'Donnell and Matt Mormino.

Brandon Sleeth led Mass Fields with 14 points and John O'Connell netted 12. Bill O'Toole, T.J. Bell, Casey Ridge, Kim Dennis, Lauren Kalil, Lauren Sleeth, Allie Lacey, Mark Maher and Brendan Bowes also played well for Mass Fields.

A LOOK AT THE NUMBERS

In an effort to save a little money by purchasing less expensive gas for engines designed for higher octane, car owners may be doing their cars a big disservice. An engine's octane requirement is largely determined by the mechanical compression ratio inside the cylinders. High-compression engines with compression ratios above 9.5:1 generally need premium gas with an octane rating between 90 and 94. The higher the octane (anti-knock rating) number, the less volatile the gas. And because there is more heat and pressure inside a high-compression engine, it requires high-octane gas (which burns less readily). Otherwise, the dangerous condition called "knock" occurs, by which hot, unburned gas ignites prematurely to put tremendous strain on pistons, connecting rods, and bearings.

Using the correct grade of gasoline can even make your engine last longer. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 250 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) is your local auto center that can handle most all of your automotive needs. We are a shop that treats you like a person and not a number. We never compromise the wonderful reputation we have earned from our many satisfied customers. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We wish you and your family a very happy holiday season, and a prosperous New Year.

HINT: Although many vehicles built during the past decade have knock sensors, which help avert engine damage by retarding the ignition timing when lower octane gas is used, the performance of the high-compression engine is compromised.

OBITUARIES

Louis Joseph Cantori, 89Member Of Carpenter's Union Local

A funeral service for Louis Joseph Cantori, 89, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 12 at the Wollaston Chapel of the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Mr. Cantori died Dec. 11 in Quincy after a long illness.

He was born in Kingston, but was a longtime Quincy resident.

Before retiring in 1965, he was a professional carpenter and a member of the Carpenters Union Local in Boston.

Mr. Cantori was a merchant marine in World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian Christine (Morrill) Cantori; a son, Louis J. Cantori of Maryland; a daughter, Carole Liquez of Somerville; a stepson, David Bazanson of Virginia; a sister, Anna Cantori of Haverill; six grandchildren and many great grandchildren.

Burial was at Village Cemetery, Weymouth.

Funeral arrangements were by Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Walter S. Kabachus, 72Retired Boston Firefighter, Navy Veteran

A funeral Mass for Walter S. Kabachus, 72, of Quincy, a retired Boston firefighter and a Navy veteran of World War II, was celebrated Monday at St. Agatha's Church, Milton.

Mr. Kabachus died Dec. 9 at home.

He was a firefighter for 34 years, retiring in 1981.

He participated with fellow firefighters in the suppression of the disastrous fire at the Hotel Vendome on June 17, 1972.

He was assigned to Ladder Company 13 in the South End in 1947 and later transferred to Ladder Company 31 on Long Island.

Mr. Kabachus was commended by the department in 1976 for helping avert a serious fire in Dorchester. According to the commendation, he was driving home from his night tour of duty in the early morning when he detected smoke coming from a house on Neponset Avenue and saw several elderly residents and small children emerging from the house. He sent one of them to nearby engine and ladder companies to report the fire while he made sure all residents had been evacuated. He proceeded to quench the fire with the small garden hose until the apparatus arrived.

He was a member of Local 718 of the Boston Firefighters Union, the Society of St. Florian, the Boston Firemen's Relief Fund and the Boston Firemen's Mutual Relief Fund.

Born in East Boston, he lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy. He attended Lawrence schools.

Mr. Kabachus is survived by his wife, Lillian (Pepsak) Kabachus; two sons, Steven J. Kabachus of Quincy and John C. Kabachus of Weymouth; a daughter, Karen A. Hohler of Concord, N.H.; a sister, Stella Buck of Florida; and five grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the John J. O'Connor & Son Funeral Home, Dorchester.

Donations may be made to the Boston Firemen's Relief Fund, c/o Boston Fire Headquarters, 115 Southampton St., Boston, MA 02118.

Margaret A. Tausevich, 85Salesperson And Clerk at Marion Shoes

A funeral Mass for Margaret A. (Smith) Tausevich, 85, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 12 at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Ms. Tausevich died Dec. 9 at Quincy Hospital.

She was a 1934 Quincy High School graduate who was born in Boston and lived in Quincy for 57 years.

Ms. Tausevich worked at Marion Shoe Store in Weymouth for 20 years.

She was an avid knitter who loved family above all else and who, some say, made the best apple pie on the South Shore.

Ms. Tausevich was the wife of the late Walter R. Tausevich. She is survived by three sons, Raymond T. Tausevich and Ronald G. Tausevich, both of Quincy, and Walter R. Tausevich, Jr. of Wareham; a daughter, Diane E. Lydon of Quincy; a brother, William Smith of Scituate; two sisters, Catherine Berthier of Taunton and Bette A. Savio of Raynham; 13 grandchildren, eight grandchildren, and many nieces and nephews.

She was the grandmother of the late Raymond T. Tausevich, Jr.

Burial was at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by Grimwood-Coletta Funeral Home, 603 Adams St.

Donations may be made to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, 295 Devonshire St., Boston 02110.

Domenico A. Giannandrea, 89Retired Construction Worker

A funeral Mass for Domenico A. Giannandrea, 89, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 12 at St. John the Baptist Church, 44 School St.

Mr. Giannandrea died Dec. 9 at his home after a long illness.

Born in Anversa, Abruzzi, Italy, he lived there until moving to Quincy 37 years ago.

He was a construction worker for the former DiCenzo Construction Co.

Mr. Giannandrea is survived by his wife, Italia (DeIgreco) Giannandrea; four sons, Quincy, Francesco and Guy Giannandrea, both of Quincy, and Rodolpho Giannandrea and Panfilo Giannandrea, both of Weymouth; 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the Quincy Visiting Nurses Association, 10 Granite St., Quincy 02169 or the Old Colony Hospice, 14 Page Terrace, Stoughton 02702.

Franco M. Puleo, 68Data Entry Processor

A funeral Mass for Franco M. (Alibrandi) Puleo, 68, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 16 at 11 a.m. at Sacred Heart Church, Hancock St., North Quincy.

Ms. Puleo died Dec. 12 at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Born in South Boston, she lived in Hyde Park before spending the last 46 years in Quincy.

Ms. Puleo was a data entry processor for State Street bank in Quincy for 17 years before she retired in 1993.

She was once an active lunch mother at Parker School in North Quincy and later did work at the Sacred Heart School in North Quincy.

Michael K. Hraibe, 57Taxi Driver

A funeral Mass for Michael K. Hraibe, 57, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 15 at the Our Lady of Cedars of Lebanon Church, 61 Rockwood St., Jamaica Plain.

Mr. Hraibe died Dec. 11 at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

Born and raised in Lebanon, he moved to Quincy five years ago.

Mr. Hraibe was a taxi driver. He is survived by his wife, Saada M. (Matta) Hraibe; four sons, Kamel and Guy Giannandrea, both of Quincy, and Rodolpho Giannandrea and Panfilo Giannandrea, both of Weymouth; 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the Quincy Visiting Nurses Association, 10 Granite St., Quincy 02169 or the Old Colony Hospice, 14 Page Terrace, Stoughton 02702.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, South Regional Center, 1115 West Chestnut St., Suite 301, Brockton 02401 or to the charity of one's choice.

Hraibe of Australia, Tony Hraibe and Henry Hraibe, both of Quincy; two daughters, Celina Hraibe and Salime Hraibe, both of Quincy; two sisters, Kawka Abouzeid and Takla Nasr both of Lebanon, and the grandchildren.

Burial was at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were by Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Donations may be made to the Our Lady of Cedars of Lebanon Church, Jamaica Plain.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Many wise people have written about one of the most precious of human facilities - Memory... Pleasant memories must be arranged in advance... Memory is the diary that we all must carry about with us... Memory was given to mortals so that they might have joys in December... A bad memory is not one that forgets, but one that remembers the wrong things...

We are ruled by our memories. It is also said that we can choose which of our memories are to rule us. These memories can be painful or they can bring joy...

Some people have long memories. They cherish graces for a whole life-time. They remember music and kind words spoken in anger, or thoughtless acts which hurt. Others, too, have long memories. But these memories are joyful and pleasant. The highlights of all the years are there... forever done in an hour of need. Support given when the burden of life seemed unbearable. Heart-warming reminiscences of friends known. Tender thoughts of family. A recalling of work well done...

Let us remember that memory is a God-given gift. The capacity to forget is also a gift when the things that need to be forgotten are bitter to the taste and incapable of being remedied. Let us make memories a blessing instead of a burden.

Our Facade Remains Circa 1800s. Inside, We're All Set for 2000.

When the Blackmur residence was purchased by Dennis S. Sweeney in 1929, Quincy had a new place to pay its respects. At the time, residents liked the intimate parlors and separate visiting areas.

They still do. But today, some families prefer a larger, more modern visiting area. Other issues, like handicapped and elderly access, have become important, too.

That's why we recently added 1,645 square feet to our Elm Street location. From the front of the building, you won't notice the change. But, inside it means a much larger room and a more accessible entrance.

All, without disturbing our historic roots.

Holiday Season Safety Tips

The holidays are a special time of the year, but they are also a time when busy people become careless and be especially vulnerable to theft and other crimes.

If you follow these few tips, you will make your holidays safe and happy.

OUT AND ABOUT

• Even though you are rushed and thinking about a thousand things, stay alert to your surroundings and people around you.

• Lock your car and close the windows, even if you are only gone for a few minutes.

• Lock all packages in the trunk of your car. Remember, out of sight, out of mind.

• Wait for public transportation or rides from friends in busy, well-lit areas.

• Teach your children to go to a store clerk and ask for help if they become separated in a shopping mall. Children should never go into a parking lot alone.

• Avoid carrying large amounts of cash. Pay for purchases with a check or a credit card when possible.

• Be extra careful with purses and wallets. Carry a purse under your arm. Keep a wallet in a front pocket with an elastic wrapped around it.

AT HOME:

• Be extra cautious about locking doors and windows when you leave the house, even if only for a few moments. Leave a radio or TV on so that the house appears occupied.

• Don't display gifts so that they can be seen from the outside through a window.

• If you go away, use automatic timers for your lights and have a neighbor pick up your mail and newspapers.

IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

Help keep the Holidays safe for everyone, share these tips with your neighbors:

• Get your Neighborhood Watch together and go caroling. Don't forget the elderly and others who might be especially lonely during the Holidays.

• If you don't have a Neighborhood Watch program, start one. Call 745-5719 for more information on how to start a Neighborhood Watch program.

On behalf of Chief Thomas Frane, and the entire Quincy Police Department, I wish all a very Happy, Safe and Sober Holiday season.

Putting Merry In Christmas For Needy Food, Gifts For Over 600 Families

By BERT GARR

More than 600 needy Quincy families with some 200 children and adult members will have merry in their Christmas this year thanks to seven local agencies and organizations.

Aiding the families are the Salvation Army, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Interfaith Social Services, Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, the Quincy Crisis Center, the Quincy Lodge of Elks, and the Koch Club.

The help includes:

- Food certificates from the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps for 195 families plus three toys for each child under 12 and a gift certificate for each teenager in the family.
- Food baskets from the Elks for 125 families.
- A whole week of groceries including Christmas turkeys from the Quincy Crisis Center for 170 families.

- An open dinner hosted by Father Bill's Place on Christmas day at Christ Episcopal Church, Elm St. for an estimated 300.
- Food toys and games for 50 families from the Koch Club.

Bettyanne Muir Lang, Pantry Shelf Coordinator for Interfaith Social Services Inc. (formerly the Protestant Social Services Bureau, Inc.) explains that her agency's approach to helping those in need emphasizes help with gifts for families.

She matches regular customers from Interfaith's year-round food pantry with generous individuals, families, churches, and businesses. The donors aid needy families by buying them gifts for the holidays.

Muir Lang explained that her agency does not purchase any of the gifts. They simply handle matching families who need help with those who are willing to contribute.

"Families list the children's general interest and their ages, and then the donors try to buy something

Health Center Up For Sale

By MARILYN JACKSON

The John F. Kennedy Health Center on Hancock Street officially is for sale.

The city's long-range plan is to relocate the health department at the Center for Technical Education in the year 2003, when the new comprehensive Quincy High School is completed.

Presently, the health department is housed in the so-called Messina Quincy Fair Building which also includes the Registry of Motor Vehicles, and the city pays $4,400 a month, or about $15 per square foot, to rent the space.

Two other city department which previously occupied the health center were relocated several months ago. The Council on Aging offices are now at Squantum Gardens, and the Veterans' Affairs office is located on High School Avenue in the old Spanish-American War Veterans building.

The City Council Monday unanimously voted to put the vacant property which includes a two-story, 18,914-square-foot building on a 25,346-square-foot lot on the market. The property presently is valued at $1,083,600.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton said the building, constructed in the 1940s and renovated during the 1950s, would cost $1.5 million to renovate.

The building needs a new roof, window repairs, a new heating system and new wiring. In addition, the building is not handicapped accessible and would require an elevator and ramps.

That sum does not include new furnishings, Colton added.

Colton said the city ex-

Emergency Work To Start On Church

Emergency repair work in the sanctuary of the United First Parish Church is scheduled to begin Monday when contractors from Brand Scaffolding first erect a labyrinth of staging around the interior of the sanctuary.

The two-phase project calls for shoring up the trusses with specially fabricated steel trusses which will be assembled at the church and, once completed, repairing the 100-year-old slate roof.

The engineers are concerned that a major snowstorm, a nor'easter, could cause the trusses to crack further, said the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the Church of the Presidents.

"An unusual snowload could put the building at risk for more damage," he said. "It's unlikely, but it's our responsibility to protect this historic treasure."

He said the scaffolding also was needed to help offset the additional load on the existing trusses and to provide for safety of the workmen as they hoist up the pieces of steel.

"I thought they were going to begin [installing the scaffolding] this week," said Bennett. But the scaffolding will be up before First Night, he said.

During the past several months two professional engineers examined the trusses which support the slate roof and observed signs of overstress on several trusses. One truss, in the center of the roof, has failed, and there are early signs of cracking near the bell tower, he said.

Originally, the church had planned only to replace the slate roof and the copper downspouts and gutters, but when the structural damage was discovered, their priorities shifted.

"We don't know how long the crack in the number 4 truss has existed," said Bennett, "but the church kept detailed records of its construction, and from the beginning, they knew the trusses were overstressed."

According to the 19th-century building designs, the roof began to sag slightly and blocks of wood

No Council Action On Clerk Residency

The City Council took no action Monday which would require city residency of future city clerks and the city council clerk of committees, although the rules committee favored the proposal.

The measure was proposed Dec. 7 by Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymond.

"There would be no end of trouble," said Councilor-at-Large Francis X. McCauley, who noted that three department heads who serve the city well live outside Quincy.

"People will start to check up on people, and people will be spying on each other," he said.

"This is just a can of worms," McCauley continued. "You start with two, then we'll be adding more [positions]. It will be a mess. It hasn't worked well in Boston," he said, recalling the incidents where two disabled city employees were fired because they no longer lived within the confines of Boston.

Raymond said the city's licensing board operates under a home rule petition to allow a specific member of that board to serve, although not a city resident. Raymond said that as a result, there is a court challenge to one of the board's decisions.

The rules committee will discuss the proposal again Jan. 11.

It was last December when State Police and Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke had obtained evidence which led them to suspect that the body of an alleged murder victim had been dumped in the Granite Rail Quarry. During exploratory dives, State Police observed a body, believed to be a woman's, but because the water was so deep, they could not dive safely.

The MDC secured an emergency permit to begin the $1 million drainage work last August and hired the engineering firm of GEL Consultants Inc. of Winchester to drain the quarry.

First, the engineers installed piezometers and extensometers in the cracks in the quarry wall.

Piezometers measure the water pressure in the joints behind the face of the quarry wall; extensometers measure the wall cracks to determine if the quarry wall would collapse.

The actual drainage work began Oct. 14. As of Dec.

16, more than 71 million gallons of water were pumped out of the quarry and flowed into a catch basin on Ricciuti Drive before being carried underneath the Southeast Expressway to Furnace Brook.

Sacco said the level of the water has been lowered about 115 feet, but there is still about 35 feet of water in the area where State Police divers seek to recover the body which is located near an overhanging rock which had the potential of collapsing if the water was pumped too quickly.

Before pumping began, the deepest part of the quarry was about 215 feet, he said. It's now about 100 feet. The quarry has a surface area of about two acres, said James Gallagher Jr., who was GEL's project manager during the first phase of the work.

"Fortunately," he said, "there was no failure and the crack measurement devices worked appropriately. The overhang has remained intact."

State Police had hoped the drainage work could have been completed sooner so that they could dive during warm weather and resume their recovery efforts, he said.

The drainage of the quarry is only the first phase of the project. The second phase, which will have public input in early March, will deal with how to reduce the danger and nuisance that exists at this quarry.

Options include, but are not limited to, capping the area, partially filling the quarry and completely filling the quarry, said Sacco. During the next three months, GEI Consultants will complete a feasibility study for the second phase of the project.

There is a lot of debris, mostly fallen trees, at the western end of the quarry, which is a safety issue, Gallagher said. The MDC is reviewing information from the consultant's geologist and geotechnical engineer to determine whether there is a need to increase security at the site.

Presently, a chain link fence rings the two-acre site.

The Bank of Canton's Quincy Banking Center recently presented cash prizes to lucky winners of its "Holiday Presents" contest.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldo Saluti of Braintree were winners of a $100 prize. Susan Grazer of Quincy won $50.

During the four-week holiday campaign, the Bank of Canton will give away $2,100 between both the Canton and Quincy branches. "It's one of the ways the bank says 'thank you' to the local community," said Bank President James Egan. "Between both branches, we've literally had thousands of entrants."

The contest is open to bank and non-bank customers. No purchase or transaction is necessary. Entry forms are available at both the Canton main branch and Quincy branch.

Bellotti Names New Special Sheriff

Sheriff-elect Michael Bellotti announces he will name Courtney Cahill, the chief prosecutor for Quincy District Court, as his new Special Sheriff on Jan. 6.

Cahill, an Assistant District Attorney for Norfolk County for the last five years, has specialized in domestic violence prosecution. Bellotti, who proposed several initiatives on domestic violence during his successful run for sheriff, said he believes that Cahill will use her experience to strengthen the domestic violence programs at the county sheriff's office.

"Courtney Cahill has dedicated the last five years of her life in court to defending the rights of victims of domestic violence," Bellotti said.

"I look forward to enhancing the domestic violence programs," Cahill said. "If we can stop the violence before we release the inmates, the victims will be in a much safer environment."

Cahill also said she would work to improve the community corrections program at the sheriff's office.

"This is a growing field and I hope to make our program a model for the state if not New England. I know that collaboration is one of Mike Bellotti's major initiatives and in that vein I plan to work closely with the courts, the probation department, the district attorney's office, and the local police departments on this issue."

Cahill said she was honored to have been named special sheriff by Bellotti, who she praised for his plan to bring accountability and innovation to the Sheriff's Office.

"I was greatly impressed by Mike Bellotti's vision for the office of sheriff and I am delighted to be able to be a part of his team," she said.

Cahill, 30, is a Weymouth resident and a native of Norwell. She graduated from Norwell High School in 1986. She studied political science at U/Mass, Amherst and graduated from there in 1990. Cahill received her law degree from New England School of Law in 1993. She joined the Norfolk County district attorney's office that same year.

"I will miss the district attorney's office because I thought it would be a position I would never want to leave," Cahill said. "But I look forward to the change and to working with the district attorney's office from another perspective of law enforcement."

Bellotti said Cahill will make an exceptional special sheriff.

"Courtney Cahill brings energy, enthusiasm and experience to the office of Special Sheriff," said Bellotti. "Her background as a prosecutor and her vision for the office, especially in the areas of domestic violence and community corrections, are a perfect combination to bring the office into the 21st century. She is a committed professional in the field of public safety and I look forward to working with her in the months and years to come."

Cahill is a member of the Board of Directors of the Family Continuity Program, a nonprofit organization that services, through state contracts, families in need.

She is also an avid equestrian who keeps two horses, Billie and Peanut, that she shows throughout the New England region.

Tax Bills Going In Mail Next Week

The 1999 fiscal year tax bills, reflecting the new property values, are expected to be mailed next week.

But, just so there's no confusion arising from last week's story about the merits of classification for homeowners, assessors board chairperson Marion Fantucchio emphasized that all properties are valued at their full and fair cash value, but they are taxed at different rates.

The City Council approved Mayor James Sheets' plan of classification which recommended a classification shift of 1.69 percent.

That means that although the residential property value equals 77.36 percent of the city's total value and the commercial, industrial and personal property value equals 22.64 percent of the city's total value, classification allows a shift in the percentage of the tax levy to be borne by the different classes.

Using a classification shift of 1.69 percent, the residential properties will pay 61.73 percent of the levy and the commercial and industrial properties and personal property will pay 38.27 percent of the levy.

This classification results in a tax rate of $15.24 per $1,000 valuation for residential properties and a tax rate of $32.28 for $1,000 for commercial and industrial properties and personal property, thereby saving the homeowner money in taxes.

If the tax rate were not split by classification, all property owners would have had to pay a rate of $19.10 per $1,000 valuation, said Fantucchio.

Nominations Coming In For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are coming in for The Quincy Sun's 14th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Robert "Bobby" Derbes was honored for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community. He was selected from 42 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

Nominations close Thursday, Dec. 31. After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page 4 of this week's issue of The Sun.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169
Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 31.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past award recipients and the year of selection are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch, Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes for four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Capelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and long-time aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Fr. Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and other needy people for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient. Again, deadline for nomination is Thursday, Dec. 31.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

pected to seek requests for proposals within the next 30 days. Before the building can be sold, it would have to be appraised, he added.

Mayor James Sheets said the city had considered upgrading the building and had estimated the costs would be about $800,000 to $900,000. But the actual bids were nearly double, he said.

At that point, he decided it would be too costly for the city to renovate the building for the benefits it would realize.

Sheets said the building has limited parking, so any business which moves into the building must not have a high demand for parking spaces.

In addition to moving the health department into the Center for Technical Education, Colton, who also serves as chairman of the mayor's school buildings needs task force, said the inspection services department would be moved into the CTE building which will be refurbished. He suggested that the overcrowded data processing department, presently located in the city hall basement, could be moved to the Center for Technical Education.

Using the center for municipal offices would eliminate overcrowding at 55 Sea St. and accommodate all of the city's office needs well into the future, said Colton.

"We shouldn't sell off a municipal building, but we need a good reason to keep this," commented Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin.

"I've tried to think of how to use the building; I hate to see us paying rent," Durkin said, noting that several single-family homes in the city are used for office space.

"I believe there will be a reasonable amount of interest in [the health center building] due to its proximity to Quincy Center and the T and how tight the rental market is in Quincy," added Michael Rie, economic development coordinator for Quincy 2000.

Jack Nigro Receives Christmas Festival Award

Quincy Police Officer Jack Nigro, of Houghs Neck, was recently presented with the Quincy

Christmas Festival Committee Chairman's Special Award.

The award was presented to Nigro by Chairman George White "in appreciation of his tireless efforts and dedication" in planning and promoting the Festival Committee activities. Nigro and his wife, Peggy, former member of the Quincy School Committee, have been members of the Festival Committee for the past several years.

Nigro was presented a special plaque-clock.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Sausage and Rapi Combo

It was one of those nights when I didn't know what I would make for dinner.

While I was at work, my husband had cooked his favorite broccoli rapi so I knew we'd be having that.

I began by cooking some sausages and before you know it, it turned out to be a delicious combination.

Sausage, Rapi Combo
 5 sausages
 2 cups rapi
 1 can chicken broth
 1 sweet potato (uncooked, sliced 1/4 inch of so thick)
 1 large potato (uncooked, sliced the same way)) smidgen of flour
 salt and pepper to taste

garlic and olive oil
 Sauté the rapi in the olive oil and garlic and a little water for about 10 minutes. Set aside.

Cook the sausages and cut them in bite size pieces. Combine the rapi and the sausage and add the potatoes and the broth. Cover and cook on slow heat until potatoes are done. I used turkey sausage, but any kind will do. And plain broccoli can be substituted for the rapi.

(Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook with many recipes in The Quincy Sun.)

They may be purchased at the Fruit Basket (next to Star Market), Previte's Market, Summer St., Nanci's Barber Shop, Elm St., Braintree, and Curry's Hardware, Copeland St.)

Blues Festival Donates $5,000 To Marie Curry Fund

Joe Hajjar, owner of the Yard Rock Cafe in Quincy Point and producer of the Quincy Blues Festival, recently contributed $5,000 from the proceeds of the festival to the Marie A. Curry Breast Cancer Fund at Quincy Hospital.

"We are very pleased to contribute to such a worthy cause," Hajjar said.

The festival, which takes place on the last Sunday in June annually, offers area companies an opportunity to participate. Lead by State Street Bank as presenting sponsor, 10 companies helped make the sixth annual show the best yet. Full sponsors were Greater Boston Convention and Visitors Bureau and Stop and Shop. Co-sponsors were US Trust, Eastern Bank, The Patriot Ledger, Bank-Boston, Signature Signs, Citizens Bank, and the Yard Rock.

The festival sought a beneficiary partner for the proceeds of the all-day, no-alcohol, family event. Quincy Hospital's Marie Curry Breast Cancer Fund offers increased education and awareness of breast cancer and provides free mammograms to women in the community who may not be able to afford it.

Until this year, the festival was a break-even event with the goal of giving Quincy a high quality music show in a family environment.

"Joe Hajjar has worked hard to attract the best blues bands in New England while keeping the ticket prices affordable for the entire family to come and enjoy," said Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets. "Over 4,500 hundred people attended the festival. Each year the crowds increased as has the scope of the show."

Three years ago an Art Show was added under the leadership of John Black of Presidential Camera in Quincy Center. The food and beverage offerings have grown into an 'international food bazaar' featuring some of the tastiest choices in Quincy.

"The bands come because many of them got their start at The Yard Rock and this is the best blues festival of the year. We can't wait for next year," said Hajjar, who is busy planning the seventh annual festival next year.

NEW OBESITY GUIDELINES

In a long awaited statement, the first Federal guidelines on the identification, evaluation, and treatment of overweight and obesity are being released to the public. The new guidelines were developed by a panel of two dozen experts in this field. By these new standards, overweight is defined as a BMI (Body Mass Index, a term describing weight relative to height) of 25-29.9, and obesity as a BMI in excess of 30. For example, a BMI of 30 is roughly equivalent to 30 extra pounds on a 6-foot tall individual weighing 221 pounds, or 186 pounds on a person 5' 6" tall. This panel recommends that physicians determine BMI in all patients and reassess after two years. You probably don't need a physician to tell you to know you need to lose some weight. However, you may well need a physician's help to determine just how much weight loss is medically necessary for your height and frame. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we listen to your concerns. We are affiliated with Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. Please call us at 617-472-2550; office hours by appointment.

P.S. According to the above-mentioned guidelines, 97 million Americans are overweight or obese.

Highpoint A Beneficial Development

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
As you know, Congress Group has bought 75 acres on Quarry Street and is planning to build a luxury residential community, Highpoint, that will include apartments and senior housing.

This is a very important and beneficial development for the City of Quincy and its residents. Congress Group Ventures has committed to building this $200 million project in Quincy and are using local architects, engineers and builders who will do a first rate job.

Besides the hundreds of construction jobs that will result from the development, we will also benefit from the over $1.5 million paid to the city every year in real estate taxes. The developer will also be making parks on the property for neighbors to use.

This land will not be left empty. Quincy is lucky that someone wants to spend the money necessary to put high quality housing on the site instead of subsidized housing. It is much easier for a developer to build low income housing than expensive apartments. Quincy should protect the housing values of the Quarry Street residents and make sure the site is cleaned up and built with a first class apartment complex. The Highpoint development will be much nicer than the mess that is on the property now and certainly better than a low income housing project.

37 Councillors: 288 Years Service

Together, the 37 have served about 288 years in the City Council.

And it is hoped all 37 of them will make the second City Council reunion Thursday, Jan. 21 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Councillor Frank McCauley, former mayor and Quincy's political historian, figures the 37--28 former councillors and the present nine--have a combined service of 288 years, give or take a year or two.

He says the reunion committee of which he is a member, has been able to contact 36 of the councillors but is still trying to locate James McCormack who served as Ward 3 Councillor in the 1960's and went on to become state senator, defeating Republican incumbent Thomas Burgin in what then was one of the biggest local political upsets.

McCormack attended the last council reunion in October, 1994 and at that time was living in Riva, Md. "We sent a letter out to him but it came back," says McCauley. "If anyone knows of his whereabouts we would appreciate hearing from him."

Let's take a look at those former councillors. Five of them--Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, James Sheets and McCauley went on to become mayor. Tobin is now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court.

William Delahunt, a Ward 5 councillor, became Norfolk County district attorney and is now a Congressman, Quincy's first since John Quincy Adams.

George Burke was a state representative and district attorney. Warren Powers is now a district court judge.

George McDonald became a Norfolk County commissioner. Steve McGrath is now city solicitor.

You might say the two "old timers" of the council are Alfred Helfrich and Tom Gilmartin.

Helfrich at age 93 is the oldest of the 37 and the lone surviving Plan E city councillor. He served from 1950 to 1955 when Plan A was voted back in.

Gilmartin goes back the furthest in point of service. He was Ward 6 councillor from 1946 to 1949. Now in his 80's, he still maintains a keen interest in Quincy's politics, especially predicting election results.

The other former living members: Dennis Harrington, Leo Kelly, Albert Barilaro, Edward Graham, Michael Cheney, Ted McClelland, John Koegele, Thomas Nutley, John Lydon, Charles Phelan, Ted DeCristofaro, Thomas Fabrizio, Richard Koch, Jr., Larry Chretien, Joanne Condon-Walsh, Charles McIntyre.

And, of course, today's councillors are: President Peter Kolson, Dan Raymondi, Patrick McDermott, Michael D'Amico, Steve Durkin, Bruce Ayers, Tim Cahill, who is Norfolk County treasurer; Paul Harold

Free Legal Clinic Jan. 5 At Quincy District Court

The Norfolk County Bar Association will sponsor a free legal clinic Tuesday, Jan. 5 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy District Court, 1 Dennis Ryan Parkway.

Attorneys will be available for a private one-on-one confidential consultation to discuss any legal issues or concerns.

The clinic works on a first come, first serve basis. No appointment is necessary.

All consultations are confidential and free of charge.

For more information, call Adrienne Clarke, executive director of the Norfolk County Bar Association, at 617-471-9693.

and McCauley.

The committee, in addition to McCauley, comprises City Clerk Joseph Shea, Kolson, Condon-Walsh and Kelly.

Should be a night to remember. And, if all 37 show up, an historic photo op.

KERRY DRISCOLL, Mayor James Sheets' efficient and popular personal secretary, was married recently to Bruce Knapp, a general contractor and former Quincy resident.

Kerry didn't have to go far for the wedding ceremony. It was performed in the mayor's office by Mary Phelan, an office secretary, justice of the peace, and close friend.

Kerry's father, Joseph, a retired Milton police department lieutenant, and a nephew, Matt Bivins, gave the bride away.

Al Hanson of Quincy, Bruce's longtime friend, was best man and Danny Bivins, Kerry's younger nephew, was junior best man, and niece Kelli Bivins, maid of honor.

Mayor Sheets gave the blessing at the reception at the Neighborhood Club.

After a wedding trip to New Hampshire, the couple are living in Weymouth and Kerry is back at her desk being her efficient self.

WELL, Brian Buckley, executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging, has his celebrity Christmas card string still intact.

Posing with him for this year's card was actor Ted Danson who is probably still best remembered as Sam Malone on "Cheers."

Buckley met

Danson at WBZ-TV in October where Danson was doing a promo.

"He's very friendly and personable," says Buckley. No, he doesn't know if Danson stopped off at "Cheers" while he was in town.

Past posers include Jimmy Carter, Ray Charles, Shaquille O'Neal, Bobby Hull, Johnny Cash, Bobby Orr, Rodney Dangerfield, Bob Hope, Burt Reynolds, Jack Nicklaus, Reggie Jackson, Rafeery Johnson, Monty Hall, George Wendt, Bob Derrick, Carroll O'Connor, Nick Nolte, Jerry (The Beaver) Mathers, Miss America of 1990 (Marjorie Vincent), and Robert Shapiro, O.J. Simpson's lawyer.

Only two have turned Buckley down: the late Gene Autry and legendary Penn State football coach Joe Paterno.

REMEMBER THE RECENT column about Asst. Harbormaster Ike Kravetz and the song he wrote entitled, "Love To Live In Quincy?"

Well, he apparently loves Quincy Hospital, too.

In that column we also mentioned Ike was going into Quincy Hospital for surgery. He sends along this note:

"The article was great. It got to the hospital before I did and it made me a minor celebrity.

"My stay was for five days. And I can honestly tell you, you won't get better care or treatment any place. You don't need to go to Boston.

"I hope to be off to Florida for a little fishing as soon as the Dr. gives the o.k.

"Happy holidays!

MERRY CHRISTMAS from QUINCY, MASS.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States.
85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

THIS NOSTALGIC POSTCARD from the collection of Tom Galvin seems to be becoming a tradition with Sun readers. It appeared the last two years and we have received requests to repeat it this year. The postcard dates back to around 1930. The huge Christmas tree in front of the then Granite Trust Co., now BankBoston in Quincy Sq. was a popular Christmas scene for a number of years.

READERS FORUM

Thanks Police Dept. For Senior Seminars

Editor, The Quincy Sun,
I want to thank the Quincy Police Department for presenting a Senior Police Seminar over four nights to the residents of Granite Place, 125 Granite St., Quincy.

The seminar included speakers from the Attorney General's office, District Attorney's office, Quincy Fire Department, Fallon Ambulance, and included having the mounted police and police dog trainer bringing their horse and dog so that the residents could find out what the mounted police and police dog duties are in the city. Stories of their exploits were very interesting to the residents.

It is clearly evident that the Quincy Police Department cares about the elderly in this city to allow Sergeant Dan Minton to continually offer outreach programs to our elderly.

QUINCY MAYOR-LESS IN 1952

When the City Council convened for the new year, there might not be enough votes to elect a mayor for the city for the year 1952. Four votes were needed and as of this week, every councillor, except Carl Anderson, was expected to vote for himself.

Carl Anderson committed his vote to Councillor David Crowley.

City Hall observers thought there were only four in the running, Frank Orcutt, David McIntosh, Amelio Della Chiesa and Crowley Anderson was a self-declared non-candidate, with councillors Edna Austin and Alfred Helfrich judged as not in the running.

While there were no "deals," it was thought that the votes would line between councillors who supported Plan E and those supporting Plan A.

CELTICS AT QHS BASKETBALL CLINIC

The third annual Celtics basketball clinic was held at Quincy High School gym with Celtics playing a 25-minute scrimmage with the schools varsity team.

Coach Red Auerbach narrated the clinic that demonstrated the game's fundamentals and fine points, along with some clowning around by the Celtics star players.

Playing for the Celtics were Captain Horace "Bones" McKinney, Bob Cousy, "Easy" Ed Macauley, Chuck Cooper and John Mahken. QHS varsity players were Dick Barry, Stan Berman, Al Taglieri, Dick Krasignor, and George Gabriel, with substitutes Ray Keeffe, Fred Prezioso, Bob Bowyer, Jim Hebert, Charley Djerf and Dave Norris.

Emergency Work To Start On Church

were placed between the roof and the trusses to jack up the rafters and straighten the roof, Bennett said.

Noted architect Alexander Parris designed the "Old Stone Temple." "He was a fine architect, but he didn't have the engineering knowledge that exists today," said Bennett.

The engineering design is called a scissors truss, which is an appropriate design, but the trusses span a much larger distance than usual at a fairly shallow pitch, said Bennett.

The trusses themselves are made of Eastern White Pine, which is not as strong as some wood, but with the high content of pitch, it fairly well preserved, he added.

Bennett said there will be rows of staging on each side of the pews, with four towers every 10 feet or so. The scaffolding is a special patented system, he said.

A deck will be laid 17 feet above the flooring, and from there, posts will be inserted through six-inch holes in the ceiling to support the trusses.

"We'll choose the locations very carefully so we won't damage the architectural aspects of the ceiling," said Bennett.

The ceiling is a magnificent architectural dome, held in place by wooden poles which are nailed to the trusses.

Fabricating and erecting the new steel trusses will cost approximately $250,000, said Bennett. Replacing the roof, the copper flashing, gutters and downspouts will cost another $250,000, he said.

To date, the church is spending $70,000 for the temporary emergency shoring and another $20,000 for related engineering work. Once the scaffolding is installed, the church must pay a rental fee of $8,000 a month while it is in place, Bennett added.

It's all going to cost a lot of money. The Massachusetts Historical Commission has awarded two grants, one for $100,000 and an emergency grant of $35,000, to do some of the repair work. The church has applied for another $100,000 grant under the commission's Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund to help finance the work.

"We're praying. We have faith and hope we will receive this grant," said Bennett. The commission will distribute the next round of funding in mid-January.

In addition, Bennett said the church has signed a contract with Reidy and Company to help sponsor a series of events during 1999 to raise $250,000 for the repair work. He said plans for the first fund-raiser would be announced sometime in January.

"We know we have a challenge ahead of us," said Bennett, "and we will be appealing not only to the Quincy community but to the Greater Boston community to help raise the balance of the money needed."

Mayor James A. Sheets, Honorary Chairman - Michael T. Cheney, Chairperson

State Rep.-Elect Files 53 Pieces Of Legislation Ayers's Bill Calls For Continuing Education For School Teachers

State Representative-Elect Bruce Ayers has filed 53 bills, including one that would require teachers to participate in continuing education every two years.

In his first official act since election to the state legislature, Ayers said the bills are "merely a down payment" on the time and energy he will invest representing Quincy and North Randolph during the next two years.

BRUCE AYERS

Ayers will represent the First Norfolk District, replacing Michael Bellotti who will become Norfolk County sheriff in January.

Ayers said his legislative agenda is formulated to address personal concerns he was advised about since last February when he began campaigning.

"Perhaps the most important issue people kept raising was the status of our public schools," he said. "In light of the recent comprehensive assessment test results, it is clear that there are no easy answers, but I promise to remain very active on this issue during the entire session."

In addressing public education, Ayers has filed a bill requiring teachers to participate in 16 hours of continuing education every two years so that comprehensive, cutting edge learning techniques are implemented in public schools.

"Compelling teachers to spend one work day each year themselves in the classroom is not a lot to ask and will help to ensure that our students are exposed in the latest technology and teaching methods," Ayers said. "The competitiveness and preparedness of our schools is a number one concern of parents and I feel this is a reasonable approach to achieve higher teaching standards."

Another top concern, according to Ayers, is improving environmental quality and access. As a result, he has filed legislation to create a low-interest revolving loan fund for cities and towns to use in the repair/construction of seawalls and boat ramps. He also filed a proposal to rework the tax on gasoline so that more is committed to marine uses like dredging and beach resanding.

Ayers said he plans to work with Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico with respect to the Furnace Brook flood control project -- a problem that has plagued West Quincy for more than 30 years.

Other bills filed by Ayers include measures to protect the elderly and disabled from fraud, restrictions on telemarketing abuse, increasing the penalties for resisting or making false reports to a police officer, terminating sentence deductions for sex offenders and establishing a fire fighter equipment grant program. Other legislation would lower auto insurance premiums by terminating benefits to operators of uninsured vehicles and by allowing insurance companies to establish rebate programs for those customers with a safe driving record and no accidents during the policy term.

For the past seven years, Ayers has represented Marina Bay, North Quincy and Squantum on the City Council. He credits this service for making him a community-focused public official. Ayers said he believes that grass-roots involvement is critical to good government and will therefore continue to work with community centers and neighborhood organizations to formulate ideas and better approaches to solving problems.

"Tip O'Neill was right when he said that all politics is local," Ayers said. "Being a city councillor has taught me the value of being involved in each neighborhood and is something I will expand upon as state representative."

Ayers will finish out his term as Ward 6 councillor next year.

Ayers is planning a series of community meetings after the new year to review his legislative agenda with residents, assist in resolving any problems residents have with state government or services and to solicit additional ideas for legislation or government reform.

Hearing Rescheduled On New Industrial Zone

A public hearing to create a new industrial zone in the city has been scheduled at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 1.

The hearing, scheduled Dec. 7, was canceled because it was not held within the 65 days of its being advertised.

City Clerk Joseph Shea suggested that the zoning measure be resubmitted Monday night so the clock could begin running from that date and the council would have time to advertise and hold its hearing within the specified time frame.

Shea said the proposal would be readvertised early next year.

Several months ago Ward 3 Councillor Patrick W. McDermott proposed creating an industrial C zone in response to a zoning change enacted last December which increased the height limit in the industrial B zone to eight stories.

That height limit is suitable for development at Crown colony or at the shipyard, planning director Richard Meade said.

The proposed industrial C zone would have a four-story height limitation.

Matteo Panarelli of 21

Taylor St. said the industrial C zone was unnecessary. "This favors new developers," he said. "The industrial A zone allows future development but has less effect on the neighbors.

"I have seen the impact of development...we need to protect the quality of the neighborhoods," he said.

Panarelli asked whether neighbors would have any recourse if there is a development proposal in industrial C. Meade assured him that any proposal for 15,000 square feet must have site plan review and a public hearing.

Marina Place To Host Informational Meeting

Marina Place, a new independent and assisted living community opening in late January in Marina Bay, Squantum, will host an informational meeting Wednesday, Jan. 6 at 10 a.m. in the community center of Squantum Gardens, Saratoga St., North Quincy.

The public is invited to learn more about the 110-unit community and the services it will offer to seniors. Refreshments will be served.

To register for the meeting or receive more information, call (617) 770-3264 or 376-1243.

Marina Place offers a broad range of service-enriched independent and assisted living options, choice of personal services, and amenities. Located at Four Seaport Dr., Marina Bay, the community provides a scenic seaside setting with waterviews of the Boston skyline, outdoor patios, gardens and walkways, with easy access to nearby restaurants, shops and the Southeast Expressway.

A memory impairment care program is offered to individuals with early Alzheimer's and other dementia-related conditions in a safe, stimulating, and secure environment. Respite care is also available.

To receive more information about Marina Place or to arrange a personal tour, call (617) 770-3264.

Over 600 Families Aided For Christmas

appropriate. It can be anything from sports to craft materials to learning tools to clothing," said Muir Lang. "Some people even go so far as to get gifts for the parents."

Roughly half of the approximately 85 families helped are adopted by businesses such as South Shore Savings Bank. The other half are adopted by churches such as St. Ann's Church, individual families, and residents.

She says that releasing news of the "adoption" drive to The Quincy Sun and The Patriot Ledger seems to have resulted in nearly all of the agency's needs being met this year.

"We can't thank the organizations and people of Quincy enough," Muir Lang said.

Another group of helping Quincy citizens are the parishioners of St. John's Church. Through the Church's St. Vincent De Paul Giving Tree, their organization will match generous donors with roughly 750 needy families and individuals who look for help from other charitable agencies throughout town, including My Brother's Keeper, Friends of the Unborn, Father Bill's Place, and the people in need in their own parish.

Father William McCarthy, who is involved in the St. Vincent De Paul Society which runs the giving tree, explains that the tree runs in a process similar to that of the giving of the Interfaith Social Services.

"We distribute cards to parishioners and organizations which list the age of the individuals for whom they should buy toys or clothes," says Father McCarthy.

The gifts are matched and distributed strictly through the help of St. Vincent De Paul volunteers.

"We cannot thank them enough," he said.

He added that the courthouse has been particularly helpful in aiding those in need on the tree.

"We've had about 100 or 125 people and families picked up by the courthouse alone," he said.

"We cannot thank people enough," said Father McCarthy.

Father Bill's Place, a shelter named for Father McCarthy and run by the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition also considers itself thankful for the support it has received within the Quincy community.

A year-round shelter whose mission is to offer temporary housing, job counseling and abuse counseling to adults in need, Fr. Bill's holds an annual Christmas Eve dinner open only to the regular 80-100 guests. They distribute donated winterwear and toiletries at the dinner.

On Christmas Day, from 2-3 p.m., Fr. Bill's Place opens to the public and holds a community turkey dinner at Christ Episcopal Church, and also distributes dinners to shut-ins.

Executive Director of Father Bill's Place, David Phillips explains that all members of the Quincy community are invited to take part in the dinner or help serve.

"People don't always think of single adults needing help when they think of who needs assistance on Christmas," said Phillips, "but a lot of these people are dealing with issues of detachment. We strive to create an atmosphere where everybody, regardless of reason, can be made to feel welcome."

Phillips added that Father Bill's also helps single parents regain contact with their children.

"We have people walk in this door every hour looking to lend a hand," said Phillips.

"The people of Quincy are very willing to help us, and I can't tell you how pleased that makes us."

A world renowned charitable agency, the Salvation Army has taken on one of the largest workloads of all the agencies assisting people this season, offering help to over 900 seniors and families.

Major Robert Klenk, commanding officer of the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple. Cops, said his agency has also already distributed 700 small gifts including sugar-free candy to the elderly, as well as organizing carol sings at senior facilities.

They also distributed food certificates from $15 to $35 per family depending on the size of the family.

In total, the Salvation Army will assist nearly 200 families this year, which is approximately the same number as last year.

However, Klenk mentioned that his organization would like to meet the needs of even more families in the future, but first needs to see an increase in donations.

Oddly, his problems arise from a robust economy.

"Traditionally, the Salvation Army has had trouble in times of nationwide prosperity. People don't see as many poor, so they don't think don't think that people need as much help as they do," said Klenk.

The agency is currently $10,000 behind last year in donations to its bell ringers, assuring that it will likely miss this year's donation goal of $125,000 by as much as $20,000.

"We're pleased at the response we've gotten and we've certainly been able to assist plenty of residents," said Klenk, "but people need to remember that plenty of Quincy citizens still need our help."

Perhaps some of those Quincy families in need have found additional help from the Koch Club, a social club with a history of 40 years of holiday giving in the city.

The club, begun by Richard Koch, Sr. in 1948, father of current president Thomas Koch, will distribute toys, food, and games to approximately 50 families this holiday.

Koch thanked the South Shore YMCA, the Catholic Women's Club, and Boston Scientific for donating many of the toys and games.

He also said that many of the contributions have been made in memory of Thomas Healy, a local builder.

"Our agency is unique in the fact that it is entirely volunteer, so we have no administrative staff to pay," say Koch.

"People know that everything they donate will go straight to the families."

He mentioned, Robert Woods, John Colligan, Chris Healy and attorney David Mahoney as being particularly helpful in organizing the drive.

"All of our recipients are Quincy families," said Koch. "I'm pleased to be a part of this year's effort and I'm extremely impressed by the town's generosity and support."

"This town has made possible the fact that we've been able to meet all of our commitments this year," he added.

Another organization with a long history of helping those in need throughout Quincy and its surrounding towns is the Quincy Crisis Center, a division of the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, which will distribute week-long in-stallments of food for over 170 families this season.

The seeds for the agency were planted back in the late 1970's and early 1980's when Esther Sanger, a Quincy resident, would park her R.V. in front of city hall and independently distribute food to all those who needed it.

"People refused to believe that there was a homeless and hungry problem in the suburbs, Quincy included," explained David Wooster, the Crisis Center's program director. "Esther was responsible for helping a lot of people realize this problem."

When the R.V. was burned due to arson, Sanger realized the need for a permanent home to feed the hungry within Quincy, and the Crisis Center was built, along with the Mary Martha Learning Center in Hingham, which is a shelter for women and children.

The Crisis Center now feeds approximately 80 different people five days a week.

"We have no screening process for those who need help," Wooster says. "Esther believed that if someone asks for help, then they need it."

"As many as 75% of the people that we assist at Christmas time are year-round customers," added Wooster.

Though Wooster has seen an increase in requests this year, he has found it no tougher to get the food that is hand delivered to recipient's homes by four people.

Enough food is delivered to last the families an entire week, including a full turkey dinner with trimmings.

Toys are also distributed to those families with children.

The agency had over 500 volunteers last year and expects about the same to help out this year.

They also coordinate with other agencies and donate their leftovers if any should arrive.

"The great thing about the agencies giving during this season," says Wooster, "is that we're willing to help each other, just as we're helping the families."

Other organizations helping out includes the Quincy Lodge of Elks which has distributed food baskets to 125 needy families, according to Charles New, the Elk's Exalted Ruler and Terry Cullen, the Elk's chairman of the food basket committee.

The spirit of helping in Quincy may be best summed up by Wooster, a former Crisis Center volunteer who began his professional work there only recently.

"I'm amazed daily by how positive and generous people are in their giving to those who need help," he said.

$1.5 Million For Road Work

The state has allocated nearly $1.5 million in Chapter 90 funds for road work in Quincy, and the City Council Monday appropriated those funds.

About $650,000 has been earmarked for a new central fueling facility at the Public Works facility at 55 Sea St., said Public Works Commissioner David Colon.

A sum of $550,000 has been set aside for repaving neighborhood streets, while another $300,000 was appropriated for improving the North Quincy business district.

The business district will have new roads, brick accents on the sidewalks, trees and colonial lamp posts, added Mayor James Sheets.

The work is scheduled to be finished by spring or early summer.

Emergency Response Training To Start Jan. 8

Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) training for 20 teams, 40 students and adults, will start in Quincy Jan. 8.

This program was initiated by the Los Angeles Fire Department to train civilians in the event of natural, man-caused, technological, and catastrophic disasters. Some 25,000 people in Los Angeles have already received training.

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency will provide instructors for the CERT program.

The Massachusetts Service Alliance awarded a $25,000 After School Community Learning Grant to the City of Quincy's Emergency Management Agency to train students and to assist them in providing community service.

Anthony Siciliano, Deputy Director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency researched the CERT program and said he realized how valuable this type of training would be in the event of emergencies and disasters.

Siciliano sent one of his Junior Mangers for the Emergency Management Agency to the Emergency Management Institute in Emmitsburg, MD. for the Train the Trainer course in Community Emergency Response Team (CERT).

McGrath started with the Quincy Emergency Management Agency as a volunteer at the age of 9 and is now 22 years old. He will join approximately 12 others from the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency as Train the Trainer Instructors.

Siciliano said he hopes that all local Emergency Management Agencies in the state will take the opportunity to find out more about the CERT program in their communities.

"The people in Los Angeles know that some day the earth will start to move there and it is better to be prepared than sorry," Siciliano said.

SACRED HEART SCHOOL in North Quincy helped the Project Hero campaign hit its $50,000 goal with a contribution of $400. On hand for the check presentation were, from left, Mrs. Marie Gibbons, Sacred Heart junior high teacher; Fire Chief Thomas Gorman; Jeffrey Bossart, seventh grader at Sacred Heart School and vice president of the Student Council; Kerin O'Toole, Sacred Heart School eighth grader and president of the Student Council; and Mayor James Sheets. The students raised the money through miscellaneous fundraisers. They were inspired to help the Project Hero cause after Boston firefighters demonstrated the thermal imaging helmets at the school.

QHA Receives $45,000 To Help Families

The Quincy Housing Authority has been awarded a $45,000 grant to hire a coordinator to oversee a program to help families become self-sufficient.

The grant is part of $1.3 million in funds awarded through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, U.S. Sen. John Kerry announced last week.

Housing Authority Director Jack Mather said he hoped to have a coordinator on board by the beginning of the year and expected to advertise the post next week.

Mather said the program will affect 180 families who live in federal housing in Germantown and about 800 other families who live in Section 8 housing throughout the city.

The coordinator will work with individuals to develop five-year plans to move from being unemployed or underemployed to employment.

Part of their earned income will be held in escrow, and as it begins to grow, they will be able to accumulate enough money for a downpayment on a home, said Mather.

He said Brockton began a similar program two years ago and 90 families are participating there. "When I left Brockton, there were some families who had saved between $4,000 and $6,000," he said.

He said this federal self-sufficiency supports the state's welfare program.

The escrow fund is made up of a certain percentage of their rent, Mather explained. He cited two examples.

If a person who was on welfare lost his benefits and has no income and then subsequently receives some education and gets a job, he would be able to put $200 a month into escrow because his rent was based on his earnings when he signed up with the program and he had no income.

If a person is working and is paying $200 a month in rent and then completes some courses which would generate more income at his job and, therefore, require higher rent, the difference in his earned income could be placed in an escrow account.

"This is an upwardly mobile program and has been very successful in Brockton," he said. "This program is a means of helping people earn their way off public assistance."

Over 14,000 Trees Recycled

Christmas Tree Mulching Program In 9th Year

The Quincy Evergreen Program will once again accept Christmas trees in need of mulching.

Trees may be dropped off at Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Center, 1 Merrymount Parkway.

The program, which is in its ninth year, is sponsored by Jay Cashman Inc. of Boston, formerly of 77 Federal Ave., Quincy. Mayor James Sheets' office also assists with the effort.

Program Chairman Leo Kelly said the program collected and mulched about 1,300 trees last year, bringing the total number since it started to over 14,000.

"It's been an extremely successful program," said Kelly. "I'd like to thank Mayor Sheets and Jay Cashman for their help because we couldn't do it without them.

He added that it is important that people participate in the program, which prevents clutter in landfills through the recycling of tree and contributes to the environment by way of the evergreen plants people receive.

Everyone who brings a tree will receive a coupon for a 10-inch live evergreen plant which will be available in April. Used gift wrapping paper may also be exchanged for an evergreen coupon.

Kelly noted that he knows of a number of program participants who planted the evergreens and have watched them developed over the years into full-grown trees.

"People see me and they say 'Leo, my tree's doing great'" he said.

Trees and wrapping paper may be brought to the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Center Monday through Friday, Dec. 28 to Jan. 8 and Saturdays, Dec. 26, Jan. 2, and Jan. 9.

The program is open to Quincy residents only.

For more information, call 376-1251.

Kevin Stefano Completes Training

Marine Pfc. Kuen F. Stefano, son of Steven M. Haley of 40 Quincy St., Quincy, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C. and was metoriously promoted to his present rank.

Stefano successfully completed 12 weeks of training.

He is a 1998 graduate of Bule Hills Regional Vocational Tech, Canton.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL recently participated in a Smokeout, a campaign to encourage students and others to stop or never start smoking. Cheryl Hillier, a senior, updates the pledge board while Shannon Davis, a sophomore and Dennis Larson, senior, are ready to distribute anti-smoking educational materials.

Student Readers Set Record During Atherton Hough Read-A-Thon

In conjunction with National's Children's Book Week, students and staff at Atherton Hough School recently held their third annual D.E.A.R. (Drop Everything and Read) Week.

The week's activities included guest readers, dress as your favorite book character day, a read-a-thon and a "Drop Everything and Read" day.

Guest readers included Mayor James Sheets, members of the Quincy and North Quincy High School volleyball teams, North Quincy High soccer teams and coaches as well as state, city and school committee officials and Quincy Public Schools administrators.

During the read-a-thon, student readers set a school record for continuous reading of 27 hours and 25 minutes. Neighbors and friends from Houghs Neck volunteered their time as readers and the PTA supported the week's festivities.

Staff and students at Atherton Hough School enjoyed a week of reading for both fun and learning. Next year's events are already being planned.

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

In other business, the City Council Monday night took the following action:

- Rezonned slightly more than two acres of land behind the Faxon Woods Retirement Community from Planned Unit Development to open space. The land is at the end of Falls Boulevard and at the rear of Circuit Road and Spaulding Street and was always intended to be rezoned, said attorney Dennis Harrington.
- Formally approved the plans for the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank to expand and reuse the former QuinOil site at 70 Quincy Ave.

Contractors will be limited to working between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturdays, at Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond's request. Harrington noted the city's regulations allow construction work to start at 7 a.m.

- Appropriated $7,000 for the school department's foster care and kinship care transitional program. School Superintendent Eugene Creodon said the state reimburses the city for this program, and the $7,500 represents a 10 percent cut from the state's allocation.

Creodon said the city has participated in this program for two years. The state reimbursed the city $3,338 in 1997 and $24,140 in 1998.

For this fiscal year, Creodon said he expects a state reimbursement of $46,044. The funds are used to train foster parents and pay for behavioral consultants and intervention programs.

- Appropriated $27,000 from free cash to fund the salary of an administrative clerk in the City Council office.
- Appropriated $8,000 from free cash to fund the "Kids Voting Program" mock elections.

- Accepted with appreciation a gift of $25 from Laila Maalouf of Whitney Road to be applied to the emergency management account.

Stop Vandalism Now

VANDALISM = DESTRUCTION

- Breaking windows in building or cars
- Painting or writing on walls, streets, or traffic signs
- Knocking over trash cans or mailboxes
- Breaking equipment in schools or playgrounds
- Slashing car tires or breaking antennas
- Writing in or tearing out pages in library books or textbooks

VANDALISM ISN'T A JOKE

- People feel frightened, angry, and sad when something of theirs is destroyed for no reason
- Schools pay millions of dollars each year to clean up graffiti, repair buildings, or replace vandalized equipment

this means less money for new books, art supplies, computers, sports equipment, and other student activities

- Vandalism claims other victims. Parents can't take children to a park with broken, dangerous swings, and slides. A child is injured because steals a stop sign. A person can't reach 9-1-1 to call police, fire or paramedics because the public phone is broken

TAKE ACTION! YOU CAN PREVENT VANDALISM

- Don't destroy or mark someone else's property or public places
- Clean graffiti off walls in schools, libraries, and other public areas. Make it a community or club project.
- Help clean up your school campus, a park, or a vacant lot
- Plant trees, bushes, and flowers. Paint murals and hang posters in areas plagued by graffiti
- Immediately report any vandalism that you see to the police or to a concerned adult

5 Local Realtors Elected MAR Directors

Joyce I. Baker, Richard Coughlin, GRI, Mary E. Dawson, GRI, Richard Lannon, and Joanne Condon Walsh have been elected directors of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) for 1999.

As state directors, they will represent the membership of the South Shore Association on all issues brought before the MAR

Board of Directors at its three meetings. In addition, they will attend regional caucuses held periodically throughout the year and are responsible for keeping the local Realtor membership informed on public policy issues, financial matters, and organizational activities conducted by the state association.

Organized in 1924, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors is a voluntary trade organization with more than 15,000 members. The term Realtor is registered as the exclusive designation of members of the National Association of Realtors who subscribe to a strict code of ethics.

Fran Lawlor Joins CityView Real Estate

Fran Lawlor has joined CityView Real Estate as a new associate of the firm.

Lawlor, a long-time Quincy resident, lives with her husband, Ken, and their six children on Davis St. in Wollaston.

CityView is a member of two MLS Services and employs 12 agents.

Paul Talkowski Named President Of Flynn & Co.

Paul Talkowski has been appointed president of the Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., based in Quincy.

Daniel J. Flynn III, former president and founder of the 10-year-old firm, is now the chief executive officer.

Talkowski, who has been with the company since 1992 and the former president of Excel Marketing, will manage the daily operations of each of the firm's four divisions and supervise over 20 employees. Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc. specializes in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate, auctions, and property management.

Talkowski, a resident of North Pembroke, holds a bachelor's degree in marketing from Stonehill College. He is also a Massachusetts's licensed auctioneer and real estate broker.

"I am extremely excited about the position and the opportunities it affords me," said Talkowski. "We are a real estate marketing firm and my extensive background in marketing and years of experience in the field will assist me in bringing the firm to the next level."

PAUL TALKOWSKI

Talkowski said his goal is to improve the service to the firm's client base by establishing intuitive marketing strategies to each and every property the firm sells through integrated campaigns including advertising, direct mail, internet marketing, public relations and telemarketing.

As CEO, Flynn will be responsible for new business development as well as explore avenues for future expansion including potential real estate development.

"By appointing Paul president of my firm, I now have even more opportunity to serve my clients," Flynn said. "My strength has always been developing business and customer service. With this new change in the firm's structure, I am afforded more time to do what I do best -- real estate. I have all the confidence in the world in Paul and am excited about the prospects for the future of my firm."

- A native of Rockland, Talkowski and his wife, Susan, have two daughters, Angela and Kathleen.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True...

Fifth graders in Quincy public and parochial schools were invited again this year to submit articles for this special holiday section.

The theme: "If I could have one wish come true for Christmas, it would be..."

The Sun is happy to share their young thoughts with you. Publishing these articles has become a tradition all of us at The Sun look forward to, and we hope that you do too.

We want to thank Janet DiTullio, Director of Curriculum, for again coordinating the public school's participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We are also grateful to Sister Ann Marie Ghiloni, Sister Catherine Lee, and Lisa Mirasola, principals of Sacred Heart, St. Ann, and St. Joseph's schools for their participation and cooperation.

To all who took part we extend warmest season's greetings and wishes for a happy, healthy New Year.

Thank you all, most sincerely.

It would be to have my whole family together for Christmas so I can see my aunt from London because I never get to see her on my birthday or on Christmas and I miss her a lot.

Amanda Sousa
Montclair

It would be to have a million dollars. I would get another million dollars when it ran out and then it would keep coming and never stop running out. I would spend it on a mansion with everything I need.

Lawrence Zhao
Montclair

It would be for Santa to bring me a hamster because I like them and I want a pet. My hamster would live in my room and be a good friend.

Amya O'Brian
Montclair

It would be to have a computer because it would be helpful around the house and I could do my reports and play games. I want an iMac.

Kelly Borden
Montclair

It would be that I got billions and billions of dollars and I could buy anything I want. I would buy my own house with a pool and a computer and the internet.

Henry Thach
Montclair

It would be for everyone to have at least one gift so everyone could celebrate the season and I want everyone to have a place to live. I also want everyone to be giving this season.

Samantha Powell
Montclair

It would be to have a cleaner Chinatown because it has lots of guns and other pieces of trash on the ground. If it was cleaner, the air wouldn't smell so bad, and then it would be a nicer place to be.

Victor Li
Montclair

It would be to have everybody in my family together for the holidays. I really miss him and I'd like to talk to him. I hope my brother and dad can talk to him.

Donald Gardiner
Montclair

It would be for everyone to have a happy holiday where no one would fight in their homes because of the holidays.

Caitlyn Miller
Montclair

It would be to get a Game Boy Color. I would get all the games and I would play it all day long. My favorite game would be Pokemon. That game is fun!

Ben Tubo
Montclair

It would be to be with my family. Everybody in my family would be together and happy within their soul. There would be no interruptions, and warm feelings would fill my heart.

Michelle Lee
Parker

It would be a time machine, so I could know what a dinosaur looked like. I could go and see the future, whether it is good or bad.

Billy Zhong
Parker

It would be that my mom would come to the United States. If she comes, this will be the best thing that could happen to me in my life.

Kenny Hu
Parker

It would be to have the best Christmas with my family. I hope most of all there will be peace, love and goodwill toward men this great loving and wonderful season of the year.

Patrick Sullivan
Parker

It would be that my whole family would be healthy, because my uncle is dying and my great-grandmother is growing old.

Holly Mai
Parker

It would be that every family would be together. During this time of the year, my parents are working and I hardly get to spend any time with them.

Janey Yu
Parker

It would be for my dad to get a better job, and he would have more money for our family. I would like to give Mom, Dad and little brother a great Christmas and a good present of caring and sharing.

Donny Hayes
Parker

It would be for the whole world to have love. I wish for this because if we didn't love each other, we would have hatred.

Alice Ku
Parker

It would be to meet the Spice Girls. I admire the Spice Girls very much.

Aoife Murphy
Parker

It would be for my mom to stay home for Christmas because she has to work. I would love to see my mom watching my sister and me opening presents.

Vincent Pleva
Parker

It would be for my whole family to come and open presents and have dinner together, even my grandparents in Florida. I wish my aunt and uncle from California would come, because I never ever see them.

Scott Richards
Parker

It would be to get all the homeless people to their own homes so they can celebrate Christmas with their families. We could give them a little money to buy clothes and enough food to keep them alive. No one should live on the street.

Jeff Bailey
Atherton-Hough

It would be to celebrate Christmas with my entire family, because all the other years my cousin and his parents would be in Columbia celebrating Christmas. I would miss him on that day, because he is my best cousin.

Daniel Arredondo
Atherton-Hough

It would be that homeless people would have a home, so that they will have a warm place for Christmas. Sometimes it gets so cold that some homeless people die. If they had a warm home, this would not happen.

Michael Murray
Atherton-Hough

It would be for all of my family to get together for Christmas. I love seeing everyone's happy faces and having fun. I also love hearing my great grandmother's stories because of the way she uses her tone of voice. Most of all, I love seeing my grandparents because most of the year they live in Florida. I want to see my cousins', aunts', and uncles' faces when they open their presents.

Kristen Maher
Atherton-Hough

It would be to give all the homeless some good food and a house for the holiday. I feel badly for those who don't have homes, and it makes me appreciate how lucky I am to have a nice home and family to spend the holidays with this year.

Bryan Gilligan
Atherton-Hough

It would be for everyone to be rich, live in a mansion and have limos, be happy, and have all they want and need, including a hot tub and swimming pool. I hope for people to live in peace and harmony and have good health.

Katie Anderson
Atherton-Hough

It would be that the trash would disappear and never come back again. I don't want the earth to be polluted. Many people would like this to happen because the earth would be cleaner and look better without all this trash.

Joseph Donovan
Atherton-Hough

It would be for my whole family to go on a trip to New York and California. First we would have a food drive for all the people who don't have any food and then we would go to Disneyland. I hope people don't stop wishing because nothing is impossible and anything can happen. Just keep on dreaming and wishing!

Samantha Shih
Atherton-Hough

It would be to meet the real Santa Claus. I hope everyone has a merry Christmas.

Lauren Austin
Sacred Heart

It would be for me to spend more time with my mom and dad.

Monica Szezo
Sacred Heart

It would be to have grace on earth to show God that we care for what he made in the world.

Kristen Gallagher
Sacred Heart

It would be to have my cousin come home because I miss her.

Kyle Costa
Sacred Heart

It would be that everyone could have a merry Christmas with love, care, and peace to all.

Christine Tang
Sacred Heart

It would be for all the hungry men, women, and children to have enough food for the holidays and whole year around.

Vinzi Chan
Sacred Heart

It would be to have my uncle come home for Christmas. He is a professional hockey player. My uncle lives in Chicago, but he travels everywhere. A couple of weeks ago he got hit in the mouth with a puck and lost ten of his teeth. I really want to see him at Christmas.

Erin Noonan
Sacred Heart

It would be that nobody in the world would be hungry or homeless. I wish all people could live in peace with God.

Catherine Bulka
Sacred Heart

It would be that my whole family had a great Christmas.

Taryn Passamanti
Sacred Heart

It would be that everyone would be happy.

Rebecca Rowland
Sacred Heart

It would be that the homeless people had a shelter.

Rebecca Layden
Sacred Heart

It would be that my family have a merry Christmas.

Jonathan Eaton
Sacred Heart

It would be for people to be nice and kind.

Paula Kirby
Sacred Heart

It would be that my father could stay home with us.

Nina Liang
Sacred Heart

It would be to go and help the hungry and the homeless. I'd like to help them get washed and dressed. And there could be peace on earth. Then everyone would have a nice Christmas.

Colleen Cleary
Sacred Heart

It would be to have shelter for children who have no homes or apartments.

Kevin Nee
Wollaston School

It would be Nintendo 64, because I'm great on it at my friends house.

Daniel Poggi
Wollaston School

It would be helping the homeless. I have everything I need so that's why I'm wishing to help the homeless.

Frank Ng
Wollaston School

It would be a hamster. It would keep me company when none of my friends were home.

Laura Norton
Wollaston School

It would be for all the homeless and poor people to have shelter, food and warm clothing.

Mike Saville
Wollaston School

It would be 10 million dollars. I would not be greedy, I would be very nice.

Allison Griffith
Wollaston School

It would be to become a movie star and help out the people that need food and things for Christmas.

Dianne O'Connell
Wollaston School

It would be for 80- degree weather all year round.

Keryn Foley
Wollaston School

It would be that my grandparents can come to Christmas Eve along with my aunt Kerry and cousin Liam.

Thomas Cabral
Wollaston School

It would be to give to food charities. That is what Christmas is all about.

Joe Ceurevels
Wollaston School

PACK 32 DEN #1 Cub Scouts Bears from St. Mary's West Quincy Parish recently made 100 napkin holders for Fr. Bill's Pace to have for the holidays. The boys donated baked goods and napkins to fill the holders. They will return at Christmas to fill them again and bring more homemade goodies. Cub Scouts presenting the holders to Fr. Bill McCarthy (rear) are, from left, Anthony DiBona, Stephen Coletti, Joe Lynch, Shawn Kelly, Benjamin Leahy and Christopher March.

It would be to have snow. I love building snowmen and snowslides.

Emily Bowes
Wollaston School

It would be that the homeless had a warm house and love. Christmas is about giving and sharing, not being selfish.

Patrick Devlin
Wollaston School

It would be for everybody to have a Merry Christmas because not a lot of people have a good Christmas.

Michael Barrett
Wollaston School

It would be for Nintendo 64. If it's there on Christmas morning that's the first thing I'll hook-up so I hope it's there.

Frankie Sorrento
Wollaston School

It would be that all the grocery stores in Quincy give 1,000 cans of food to the homeless people.

Halle Acton
Wollaston School

It would be that poor people would get presents and warm homes for Christmas.

Karina Soto

It would be to go to Europe and study because deep down I want to be smarter like my cousin.

Margaret Mulrooney
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for me to stop getting sick.

Ryan Eckholm
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that people would be respectful to other people.

Nick Rexho
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that my grandparents could live longer because my grandparents take care of me. My grandma makes my dinner, does the laundry, and mops the floor.

Leanna Lam
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that me and my family live long, healthy lives.

Jade Pina
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that Santa Clause would come to my house.

It would be to make my Dad better because he is sick and I'd like to see him more.

Elizabeth Mcmanus
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a white Christmas and to share it with my family.

Krystal Woolf
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have peace on earth and good will to all men. Why? So we can have no more wars.

Aileen Mac Pherson
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have tickets to all the Celtics Games.

Matthew Ploof
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to make my mother feel better.

Erin Scannell
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for me to have a good career when I grow up.

Felipe Steffing
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for all men, women, and children to have a merry Christmas with a Christmas tree with presents under the tree.

Shannon Gaddis
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be fun for my aunt to come from Pakistan. She never came here before. She was going to come next week but now has to come in January. I want her to come so she can see the snow. I hope she likes America. The next time she comes, I hope she brings her kids, I would be fun playing with them.

Ali Chaudhry
Marshall

It would be for the homeless have somewhere to live instead of a box. It would be nice for them to get food and a warm place to live.

Ryan Hunt
Marshall

It would be for my Grandma to come back. She died of cancer. My dad said she would have loved me.

Ben Hamlin
Marshall

It would be for it to snow very heavy this year. Last year, there was hardly any snow. I can sled, it was fun last year because some school was cancelled.

Randy Ridlon
Marshall

It would be to have a blizzard because it would have no school. I could play nintendo all winter long.

Robert Bryson
Marshall

It would be that all homeless people in the world have a home to share with their families. On Christmas Day they would be in a beautiful big house opening presents with their children in front of a fireplace.

Joe Ferris
Marshall

It would be for the whole world to stop fighting and having wars. Everybody is really the same and the only real differences are our languages and skin colors. If everybody got along, there would be peace.

Mark O'Neil
Marshall

It would be for no more violence. There are too many people dying because of it. If we can get more police officers, maybe there would not be so much violence.

Patrick Doherty
Marshall

It would be that I had one billion dollars to spend on Playstation games, pizza, and a nig t.v. I would buy a McDonald's and eat whenever I wanted. I would buy lots of food.

Charles Findaca
Marshall

It would be make the world a better place for everyone by stopping the violence, the drugs and pollution.

Keryn Dewolf

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

It would be to get another Michael Jordan and Larry Bird rookie card. I would like for the poor to have a home for the winter.

MIKEY KHEMRA
Merrymount

It would be to get ninety million dollars. Then I can get my family anything they would want. I would get my mom a 16 carat gold diamond ring, my dad a 99, GMC Sierra, my sister, a horse, and my brother a basketball trainer.

STEPHEN GRAHAM
Merrymount

It would be to get a Larry Bird rookie card because I love Larry Bird.

DAN GRAHAM
Merrymount

It would be that there was world peace and that anyone could go to school and have an education. I really hope that in the future there will be no more child labor.

SARAH CHUNG
Merrymount

It would be for all the homeless people to get a place to live and have a nice dinner. In the morning they would have a Christmas tree with presents piled under it.

JENNIFER BERFIELD
Merrymount

It would be that the homeless have a home for the holidays because they don't have a family or money to celebrate Christmas. They also don't have many clothes.

AMANDA ADAMS
Merrymount

It would be peace in the world. I would like to see no more fights, no drugs and weapons. Just be kind and be friendly to one another.

CAIG MOORE
Merrymount

It would be to have peace on earth and have everyone be treated equally, even the needy. I think everyone is the same. I want the needy to have homes, food and things they need to survive the winter.

AMANDA KAYIALES
Merrymount

It would be that everyone gets along and that everyone has a peaceful holiday. If there is a lot of crime and violence, it won't be a nice Christmas.

ANDREW SCANNELL
Merrymount

It would be for people to stop drinking because drunk drivers cause death to themselves and others like friends and family. Also, drunk people often ruin property. Drunk people get into a lot of fights too.

JACQUELYN MULLEN
Squantum

It would be that Saddam Hussein could be controlled by the U.S. so we won't get in World War III.

DYLAN THORNTON
Squantum

It would be to save the rain forest because lots of animals that live there are dying. The rain forest provides a great deal of oxygen. When you cut down the rain forest, you are cutting down lots of plants, plants that might be able to cure cancer.

EMILY ALBERTI
Squantum

It would be for people to stop smoking, because it causes them to die. When people blow a puff of smoke from their mouth, they pollute the air. If teenagers smoke cigarettes, it will cause them health problems.

ANGELA KYIN
Squantum

It would be a ski and snowbound trip with my family and I have never been on one before.

MATTHEW MCGUGH
Squantum

It would be for a new computer, because I want to play games and go in to the internet. My old computer shuts off by itself whenever someone's in the middle of a game.

AMY LI
Squantum

It would be to get a conversion van for my family. We travel a lot, and want one because we have a family of five and its way too squishy in the car.

IRENE BELL
Squantum

It would be to get a family pet. The pet would be a dog and I don't care what kind it is, just any kind of a dog.

CHRISTINE FOLEY
Squantum

It would be to get a Viper, because I like them. And when I get older, I could drive it. Another reason is because it looks nice.

JAMES MORRISSEY
Squantum

It would be for a Hummer, because I would like to ride in the snow and make big tracks. It would be cool to go over any terrain and feel the bumps in the road, and exciting to go as fast as I could through marshes.

ROBERT CONNELL
Squantum

It would be to get a computer to play games on it, and because I'd get to play games, search around on the Internet and find subjects I want to know more about.

JACKY HO
Squantum

It would be for people to stop fanning over poor animals because animals are so innocent and they die in a bad way. They could become extinct and they are so little. People who run animals over are sick. People are mean to do that!

CLARESE DEIBEL
Squantum

It would be to get rid of or to imprison Saddam Hussein, so we can think about other things like the Bill Clinton and Monica Lewinsky trial.

CALLANAN
Squantum

It would be to get a puppy, because whenever I am alone, the puppy would be my company and could guard my house. It would be fun to spend time with my puppy.

BYO TIFFANY YU
Squantum

It would be that my family could go to the X-games, because I am an aggressive in-line skater. I want to see Cesar, Mora, my favorite Vert skater, on a half pipe doing some of his bet grinds and jumps and see Randy Spizer in the street course doing all kinds of tricks like a 5-40 or a cross rocket fish brain.

THOMAS CALLANAN
Squantum

It would be to get aggressive roller blades. It is pretty cool to know how to aggressively roller blade. If I didn't have them, I would be missing a lot of fun.

EVAN HARRINGTON
Squantum

It would be to have my parents home more. They are always at work or at meetings.

STEPHANIE BUSHAM
Squantum

It would be for everyone to have a nice Christmas and I want everyone to be nice to each other, not to argue. Everyone should help put up a Christmas tree. No one should be mean and everyone should share and be helpful.

ADA CHEN
Squantum

It would be for all people on Earth to have a very merry Christmas because the world has its problems and some people haven't had a very good year. A day of peace with no wars or hungry people would be wonderful.

CARISSA SHULTZ
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that my whole family will enjoy Christmas because last year my black gerbil escaped and I had to chase it all over the room. This year, I got rid of the gerbil so I hope this Christmas will be better. I just hope that my one-year-old brother doesn't knock down the tree because I know he's capable of it!

ASHLEY MACKENZIE
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to have my whole family home for Christmas because Christmas wouldn't be the same without family.

TOME POWER
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that all homeless in the world get picked up off the streets, fed, and get presents so they can have a nice Christmas too. I feel bad for the homeless people of the world.

JEN REIDY
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that all the homeless and hungry would find a home for the holidays. These people need love.

PAUL DOULAN
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that every day would be Christmas because it's such a happy and joyous day when everyone shares gifts and good times with each other. Also on Christmas friends and family gather together and have a big holiday meal.

JOELLE SCHEFFER
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to be owner of the Denver Broncos Team because they are my favorite football team and I'd get to see all the games and all the players. I'd be in Denver, Colorado which is a mile high.

MICHAEL DOBERTY
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for everyone in the world to have one wish so everyone could get what they wanted.

LAURA HUTCHINSON
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to win ten million dollars from the lottery and buy my mom a new house. Then I would go to homeless shelters and buy people some meat, bread, and vegetables so they could have a nice, sit-down dinner. Then I would buy art supplies and computers for all the school classrooms.

JUSTIN ZAHREDDINE
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that my dog, Copper, who ran away would come home. She has insipidus diabetes and has to take medication twice a day and she can't live without her pills. I'm really worried about her.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

It would be that all people of the world had a home - a place where you can wake up in the morning and feel safe, and a place where people will welcome you with open arms.

Catherine MacDonald
Atherton-Hough

It would be for everyone in the world to have a place to go for Christmas and be happy. I really hope that will happen because not everyone in the world has a place to go.

James Dunn
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have a healthy family because I like to spend time with my family at home and not at the hospital. I like to have a family that doesn't smoke so no one in the family gets cancer.

Lauren Milone
Atherton-Hough

It would be to give money to poor people. Then they would be able to have a better holiday.

Eddie Downey
Atherton-Hough

It would be to go on a cruise with my family and friends. I would go on the cruise for two weeks, but I'd be back on Christmas to open up my Christmas presents and be with all my family.

Matthew Giordani

It would be to be in Candyland with my family and friends where there would be no school at all!

Elyse O'Connell
Montclair

It would be for everybody to get what they wished on Christmas: good health, lots of wealth, and toys for little boys. Poor people ask for a house. Let's hope it doesn't come with a mouse. Adoption is the wish for some and I hope those parents will come.

Diane Vey
Montclair

It would be for my cat Maurice not to knock over the Christmas tree. It's his first year with me and he's a flying outball. I don't like to decorate the tree so I'm not going to do it twice. I could use him as an ornament or as the star at the top of the tree to keep him from knocking down the tree.

Mike Ainsley
Montclair

It would be that all homeless people had food. The homeless would have everything they need. I wish that everyone would donate things to them to make them happier through the winter. People should donate some money, clothes, toys, or food. We should think of others and not be selfish.

Cynthia Cheng
Montclair

It would be for a whole bundle of money. I'd give it to the poor so they can have the right medical care, shelter, and warm clothes, because I would hate to see them freeze this winter.

Jeffrey Florentine

Presidents Drop 2 After Opening Night Win

By CHARLES ROSS
The Quincy High School boys basketball team hit the season running, playing a total of 3 games in 6 days, winning one and dropping two.

The Presidents opened the season at home with a 73-67 victory over the Knights of Catholic Memorial in a non-league game. Junior guard Dan Kelley led the way for Quincy with 35 points in the game. Junior forward Sean Fitzpatrick was strong on the boards grabbing 16 rebounds.

Last Friday, the Presidents opened the Old Colony League schedule at home suffering a 67-58 loss to even their record at 1-1. Leading the Presidents was 5' 10" senior guard Jim Munchbach with 20 points. Dan Kelley poured in 17.

Monday night, the Presidents took an early 5-2 lead over Barnstable, but were unable to hold on as the Red Raiders led 31-23 at the half and eventually won the game 67-54. Sophomore Adam Jurewicz, a 6' 1" forward led the Presidents attack with 13 points.

had to go to his bench early in the game as some key players got into early foul trouble. Quincy had trouble all night with the Barnstable trap and made numerous turnovers that gave the Raiders some easy baskets.

Quincy got a scare in the second half as Jim Munchbach was injured during the game taking an elbow to the head and was taken to the locker room for treatment. Following the game, EMT's took the senior guard to Quincy Hospital for treatment.

Coach Franceschini rode along to the hospital with his injured player who had scored 11 points in the game.

Quincy High School Assistant Basketball Coach Mike Draicchio said the team got into, "early foul trouble and got behind early as Dan Kelley had an off night only scoring 1 point." Coach Draicchio added, "it's hard to stay close when your go to guy (Kelley) is not playing his usual game."

PRESIDENTS' ADAM JUREWICZ pops in two of his game-high 13 points.

The loss dropped Quincy to 1-2 overall and 0-2 in the Old Colony League. Next up for the Presidents will be meeting with Rockland as part of the Ram Classic Tournament in Marshfield.

That game will start at 5:30 p.m. this Sunday.

Young Raiders Eye Rebound Against Taunton

The North Quincy High School boys basketball team dropped its first two games of the season as Coach Ted Stevenson works with a young squad that includes a freshman and a sophomore as part of the starting five.

On Dec. 15, the Red Raiders dropped the season opener at home to Charlestown 67-47. Last Friday night in the Old Colony League opener for North, they lost a 53-45 decision to Silver Lake. The team looked to rebound against Taunton Wednesday.

Coach Stevenson is looking for the leadership of his seniors to help bring the squad into maturity as the season goes along. Forward Frank McNamara and guard Chris Gregoli are the starting seniors. Also expected to provide leadership for the Raiders are seniors Eric Rackaukas, a center, and guard Tan Lam.

The freshman who has cracked the starting lineup is Phil McGillicuddy; a guard who has averaged 10 points a game so far. Coach Stevenson is pleased with the play of sophomore Mike Keddy who transferred from Archbishop Williams. In the Silver Lake game Keddy scored 7 points and hauled down 6 rebounds.

North will also feature junior Jody Bravo, sophomore Matt Yohe and Justin Drysdale who at 6'8" will see some action in the middle.

Coach Stevenson said expects the early part of the season will be a learning experience. "We have a tough schedule this year with a lot of non-league powerhouses, but we hope as the team gets its minutes in together that we will improve as the season goes along."

North Quincy will host a Holiday Tourney on next Monday (Dec. 28) and Wednesday (Dec. 30) with the Red Raiders playing O'Bryant High School of Boston at 7 p.m. next Monday. Boston Latin and Stoughton will be in the tourney. The consolation and final games will be played next Wednesday.

Red Raider Notes: Former North Quincy standout

Brian Ross has moved into the starting lineup as a freshman at Boston College. So far has been averaging 6 points and 8 rebounds a game for the Eagles. Raider coach Ted Stevenson spoke with Tim O'Shea, an assistant coach to BC headman Al Skinner recently. He said that the staff is very happy with Ross and his effort has put him in the starting five. Coach O'Shea told Stevenson, "we know we're going to have a good four-year player in Brian Ross here at BC".

North Quincy Freshmen Split

North Quincy freshmen boys' basketball team split its first two games of the season: a win over Hingham and loss to Silver Lake.

First-year freshmen coach Scott Madden must have thought it was old home week. Madden, who attended Silver Lake High School, opened his inaugural season against his alma mater and saw his Little League baseball coach guiding his second opponent.

Solid outside shooting and a potent fast break gave host Silver Lake a lead it would never lose Friday. In the first half, the freshmen Raiders couldn't get back on defense fast enough to slow down the Lakers, who built a 20-9 lead in the first seven minutes of the game. Silver Lake led by as much as 17 points, before a late North run cut the lead to 35-22 at half-time.

Seven quick fast break points in the first minute and a half gave Silver Lake a 20-point lead in the second half. The lead eventually peaked at 22, 44-22. Aggressive defense, capped by a David Rochon steal and lay-up cut the lead to 9 with 5:06 remaining. Wayne Moynihan had two steals and four points during the run. Rochon's spinning 8-footer in the lane cut the lead to six, 58-52, but NQ could pull no closer.

Silver Lake opened its season with a win, 62-53. Jon O'Connell had 18 points in the losing effort. Rochon and Adam O'Hara contributed 12 and 6 points, respectively. Steve Pizzi's defense and ball handling helped fuel the second half Saturday, North Quincy overcame a slow start against Hingham, to build a 25-21 lead at half-time. Mike Haines hit a 3-pointer to cap a 9-2 run which opened the second half for the Raiders.

Two hoops each by Wayne Moynihan and David Rochon pushed the lead to 41-29 at the 9:00 mark. Quincy native, Chris Ham's lay-up pulled Hingham to within 5 with 1:24 remaining. Jackie Liuzzo was 3 for 4 from the free-throw line in the final minute to seal the 56-48 win. Jon O'Connell led the scoring for North with 13 points. Liuzzo finished with 11 with Wayne Moynihan added 9 to go with 3 steals.

Amateur Boxing Sunday At Bryan Post

Tunnel Rat Productions of O'Malley's Gym in Quincy will stage Junior Olympic and amateur boxing Sunday, Dec. 27 at the George F. Bryan V.F.W. Post, Broad St., Quincy.

The fights begin at 6:30 p.m. Many Junior Olympic and Golden Gloves champions will appear. Quincy residents Ryan Kielczewski, John Daggert, Morgan Sheehy, Timmy Connors and the Traietti Brothers--Chris and Vinny--are scheduled. Several other O'Malley fighters will appear as well.

The fight night is a tribute to Bill Geary, a 77-year-old retired MDC police officer and Hall of Fame boxer. Geary has been a dedicated friend and strong supporter of O'Malley Boxing.

Pee Wee 'B's' Win Two

Pee Wee "B's" notched two victories, defeating Needham 7-1 and South Boston, 6-2.

Against Needham, Quincy jumped out to a first period lead with four goals. Dan Sullivan scored the first goal on an assist from Billy Cox. Brendan Craig ripped in another goal, with an assist from Joey McMannus. Matt Jaskins flipped in Quincy's next goal, assisted by Paul Graham. Billy Cox caught Needham on a line change and broke in for an unassisted score.

McMannus notched his first hat trick with assists from Steve McGrath and Brendan Craig. All the scoring took place in the first and second periods.

The Pee Wee Bandits struck again, this time a 6-2 win over South Boston at Hyde Park. Brendan Craig scored first on a nifty set-up in front of the net by Steve McGrath. Sixteen seconds later, Keith Flaherty blasted a shot from the blue line for another Quincy goal. Assisting were Bill Cox and Richard Stone.

Joey McMannus popped the puck home on the door step from a pass from Brendan Craig. The last two goals were scored by Steve McGrath and Bill Barker. A key stat: South Boston was whistled for 15 minutes in penalties, giving Quincy's prime scoring opportunities.

Quincy Icemen Defeat New Bedford, Taunton

The Quincy High School hockey team is off to a good start this season following their FleetCenter appearance in the sectional finals last year.

Opening wins against New Bedford, 5-0, and Taunton, 7-2, coupled with a 5-5 tie against Barnstable bodes well for this relatively varsity inexperienced team.

The scoring was balanced between lines made up of (red) Joe Vallatini, Sean Haidul, Sean Le-Febvre, (black) Scott Matts, Bill McKeon, Brian Nolan; yellow line Sean Slattery, Rich Tatem, Mike Sullivan; and white line Paul Campbell, Chris Lumaghini and Brian Scott.

The defensive corps of Jake Fleml, Stephen Ford, Jim Sullivan, Didier Althier, Kevin Patten, Sean Richardson was strong in all three contests.

The goaltending tandem of Jeff Langille and Ryan Krueger is as good as there is in Eastern Mass. hockey, according to head coach Bob Sylvia.

Coach Sylvia is assisted by George Peachey, Ted Walsh, Mike Furey, Joe Keegan, Jamie Shtatz, Jeff Hynes and Craig Cooper.

Sylvia said he feels that each of these outstanding people bring a unique experience to the Quincy hockey program.

Sylvia promises an exciting year for all QHS hockey fans.

Relay Gives North Girls Track Win Over Taunton

North Quincy Girls Indoor Track opened its Old Colony League schedule with a hard-earned win over a surprising Taunton team coming down to the final event, the 4 x 400 relay.

North's quartet of Lynda Wilson, Sarah Houghton, Genevieve O'Brien and Kellyrose O'Brien was simply too much for the Tigers to handle as they nearly lapped the Taunton relay. Other winners were Linda Nguyen 2-mile; Natalie Caron, 1000; and Ellen Tang, shotput.

The Tigers held a 34-7 advantage in the sprints and highjump, but North's strength in distance events and shot were the difference with a 43-6 bulge. Double winners were Lynda Wilson and Kellyrose O'Brien.

In a recent freshman meet at Brown University, Katherine Markhard was the star of the day clearing 4' 8" to win the highjump. Other winners were Natalie Caron 800m (also second in mile), and Laura Matos, shotput. Seconds were taken by Kara Cheesman dash, Nicole Dickey shot, and Samantha Chaisson highjump.

North took on defending OCL champ Silver Lake Wednesday at Taunton, and then participates in the Brown Interscholastics in Providence next Monday. The meet involves teams from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey.

North Quincy Boys' Swim Team Working Hard

The North Quincy High School boys' swim team's season has started with two close defeats at the hands of Attleboro and Cohasset.

Seniors include Devin O'Brien who swims well in any freestyle event as well as the backstroke and butterfly; John Mercurio who swims a great freestyle and Brendan Griffin who is capable of swimming any event.

The team's sophomores include Pat McGovern, the team's only diver at the present time, and Mike Maganaro, a distance swimmer. Freshman Dave Birmingham has already dropped nine seconds from his 100 freestyle time.

The boys will continue to work hard and improve personal times, said coach Yvonne Boness.

"Our team has a lot of heart. The boys work hard at practice and do not give up. Even though they are small in numbers, they give it their best effort," Boness said.

Registration For Ice Skating Classes Begins Monday

Quincy Recreation Department will conduct registration for its instruction ice skating program for boys and girls ages 6-14 beginning Monday, Dec. 28.

Registration will take place at the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway, Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Enrollment is limited and will be taken on a first come, first serve basis.

The program will be conducted at Quincy Youth Arena Wednesday afternoons starting Jan. 6. Instruction will be under the supervision of Anne Eagles, a U.S. Figure Skating professional, and will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the USFSA.

Instruction is beginners to advanced with two separate classes. Class one is held at 3:10 p.m.; second class begins at 4:05 p.m. Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and are conducted for nine weeks.

Cost is $49 which includes instruction and ice time.

For more information, call Quincy Recreation at 376-1394.

Pee Wee 'A's' Advance

The Pee Wee A's started the long road to a berth in the state tournament with a decisive 7-2 victory over Needham.

The game was never really in doubt as a fired-up Quincy team took the lead from the opening shift as Kevin Richardson wrapped around the back of the goal to slam the puck home. Needham was kept on the defensive as defenders Steve Kelley and Kyle Carmody pinched in at the blue line. These efforts were rewarded when Josh Giordani took a pass from Liam Powers and found the back of the net. Jake O'Donnell then assisted Patrick Maxey who slapped one in from the blue line to give Quincy a 3-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Second period play was fast and furious as goalie Nick Manning came up big between the pipes and, with help from hard hitting defenders Tim Duggan and Andrew Patten warded off several Needham attacks. Hard charging breakthroughs and tenacious back checking by Ryan Feldhoff and Brendan Conley set the pace for the rest of the game.

Matt Germain scored "top shelf" after taking a Matt Lavery pass and muscling his way through the defenders. Quincy's hustle and determination paid dividends as Ryan Conley twice scored from in front of the net on assists from Matt Germain and Matt Grazioso. Matt Grazioso scored a goal when Ryan Conley caught him breaking into the middle. The team is scheduled to meet Wellesley next in this single elimination format.

OBITUARIES

Esther I. Beach, 83

Former Christian Science Monitor Worker

A private funeral service was held for Esther Irene (Kelley) Beach, 83, of Quincy, a retired employee of the Christian Science Monitor in the circulation department, who died Dec. 15.

Mrs. Beach worked for the Christian Science Monitor for 17 years.

Born in Falmouth, she lived in Squantum for eight years before moving to Quincy. She also lived in the River Bay Club and the Eventide rest home.

She was a 1934 graduate of Quincy High School.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

With Christmas once again upon us, let us pause and remember the simple joys of days gone by. Though times have changed, the true spirit of the holiday remains forever constant. May the enduring happiness and brotherhood that marks this wondrous season be yours always.

In the true spirit of the Christmas season, let us pray that joy, beauty, hope and, above all, abiding faith be with us, one and all. May the blessings of peace surround us - the peace to build and grow, to live in harmony and sympathy with our fellow man. Let us pray that strength and abundant courage be given to all whose mission is to work for a world of reason and understanding - so that the good that lies in every man's heart may day to day be magnified...

We at the Deware Family Funeral Homes, at this very special time of the year, would like to extend to all our friends and readers our warmest wishes for a Happy Holiday and a most joyous New Year.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

(Cont'd From Page 31)

It would be to be with my family all day because my mother's day off is Saturday and Sunday and my father's day off is Monday.

Jason Wong
Merrymount

It would be have every person have a place to stay for the holiday dinner with family.

Sarah Marshall
Merrymount

It would be for everyone to have medicine to cure their illnesses so that they wouldn't die from cancer and other serious illnesses.

Dan Lombard
Merrymount

It would be for my whole family to get together and everyone would be nice to each other. We would give presents to each other.

Alex McCarthy
Merrymount

It would be to help doctors get better medicine to help fight cancer and help save lives.

Sean Murphy
Merrymount

It would be to bring food and presents to the needy families because a lot of these children don't have money to buy food, and I would bring food to the Quincy Crisis Center and other charities like that one.

Megan Campbell
Merrymount

It would be to let Quincy have snow and winter weather, not weather we would have in summer. I want to play in snow, not swim in a pool.

Elizabeth McEachern
Merrymount

It would be to give shelter and presents and food to the homeless and for everyone to be with their families.

Joey Cafano
Merrymount

It would be for everyone to have some place to go for this holiday and a family to be with and everyone would have peace on earth and a great holiday season.

Kelly O'Connell
Merrymount

It would be for peace so there's no violence anywhere on Earth and everybody would be treated fairly if they're black, white, brown or any color.

James Mullaney
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to go around the world so I could see all the countries and cities and every continent in the world. Going around the world would be fun because you could see the oceans, mountains, rivers, islands, and interesting land forms.

Michael Reilly
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to have a dog. I had one when I was four, but it went to the bathroom all over the house and we had to get rid of it.

Kristin Pinnix
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to have new roller blades. The ones I have now are too small and I've been waiting since last year for new ones.

Willy Moy
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that my family and I would have a long, peaceful, and healthy life. I hope that I live to be 100 years old and my family would too. I hope there would be no big arguments especially between me and my brother.

Virginia Hsia
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that the world's nuclear weapons would be destroyed including the U.S. because we have the most. The idea that the world could be destroyed with the touch of a button scares me. A lot of presidents and other leaders have not been trustworthy. Why trust them with nuclear arms?

Jessica Mullally
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that all unlucky kids in the world, even the ones who don't get presents, would get plenty of food, presents, and care this Christmas. Without toys, kids might lose their imaginations.

John F. Murray
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that there would be tons of snow in September because there would be no possibility of school and I could play in the snow.

Daryl Vo
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get a ne Diao stunt bike because someone threw my bike in the air and it got twisted.

Bryan Mak
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get a dog. My mom had five dogs, a pig, snakes, and a duck so I guess loving animals runs in the family!

Shannon Dacey
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for a big house with a nice sofa, a chair, a bed, a t.v., nice silverware, a nice kitchen, a living room, and a nice family. I picked that one wish because I don't want to be staying in an apartment, sharing a bedroom with a sister, and staying with five other people. I think that it is crowded in the house that I am living in now and there would be more space in that nice, big house.

Vannhi Nguyen
Suag Harbor

It would be to have new ice hockey skates because the one I have now pinch too tight.

Chris Garvey
Montclair

It would be a live Pikachu because it's from the t.v. show Pokemon. Almost everyone likes the show and Pikachu can shoot electricity out of its cheeks.

Andrew Wang
Montclair

It would be a computer that lets you explore the internet and pulls you inside the computer so you can go off and explore the internet's imaginary worlds for real.

Victor Tan
Montclair

It would be for my mom to come home from the hospital because I love my mom a lot and I really wish to see her. She is my pride and joy. She is the person that takes care of me and when she comes home, I'll take care of her.

Krystal Leach
Montclair

It would be to get a sports watch because the have the a stopwatch, the date, glow in the dark light, and an alarm. Everyone I know has one and I could use it to time anything, even my mom's lectures. They also look good.

Gary Mei
Montclair

It would be for more wishes so I don't need to use my money. I would use about fifty wishes on my family and save the rest for other holidays.

David Chan
Montclair

It would be to get a computer that I could use to play cd's, games, do homework, and to print out papers.

Henry Wong
Montclair

It would be to have a million dollars to give money to the church in my community so they could give money to the poor and get them a place to sleep on this holiday. I would also try to cure the sick and suffering so they can spend time with their family. I'd give the rest of the money to my family.

HOCUS-FOCUS

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Inscinty plagues you early in the week, dampening your holiday spirits. However, it soon passes. When things calm down, make plans for an early-in-the-year vacation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A pressing business project remains on your mind, but since it's the holidays, don't press matters. Higher-ups appreciate your efforts. A delightful holiday surprise awaits you over the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Don't let this special time get to you and make you stressed out. Instead, enjoy this festive time with friends and family. Children especially are a delight.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Judgment in business matters is a bit off. Read between the lines for the real truth. Self-employed people could have a setback, but the future is brighter.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You are a quick study and excellent judge of character. As a result, someone close seeks your advice. Later in the week, enjoy having company over for the holidays.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) While you feel you're not on track on a business matter, don't underestimate your creativity. You have an exceptional mind. In romance, singles could be close to making a commitment.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Don't be so preoccupied with making big money fast. Deals that sound too good to be true are just that. Later in the week, you're right in the spirit of the holiday season.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Don't be shocked if a surprising financial or business opportunity comes your way. The stars are aligned for financial success. However, this will have to wait until after the holidays.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be wary of a close friend: While you value your relationship, your friend's motive and game plan might shock you. It might be time to distance yourself.

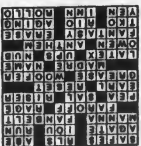

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Travel is not recommended. Stick close to the home front and concentrate on holiday harmony and renewed romance. Benefits come through open channels of communication.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't be disappointed if a loved one doesn't get you what you want for Christmas. If honest, you have to acknowledge it's a bit frivolous and expensive. However, you do enjoy yourself this week.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Home events remain uppermost in your mind this holiday season. However, there's no need to worry. The shopping's done and the house is ready for that special company.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

(Cont'd From Page 34)

It would be for a lot of money so I could give every kid Nintendo 64 and make them all happy. Every day of the year would be like Christmas Day.

Michael Russell
Marshall

It would be that I had magic that could help all the poor people be rich and put an end to wars and battles, and street people and kid-nappers. If I had that magic, the world would be a sating and loving place.

Lisa Trau
Marshall

It would be to have super long hair and be in the record books for having the longest hair. The longest recorded hair is ten feet, three inches. That means I have seven feet, two inches to go!

Julia Cook
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to make sure all the homeless would be in safe, warm, comfortable beds. If my wish came true, "homeless" would become a word of the past.

Molly Mansfield
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get a new pair of ice skates because I love ice skating and maybe I want to be a famous ice skater one day like Tara Lipinsky.

Amanda Joyce
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for homeless, jobless, and poor people to have a home to stay in, some food to eat, and some money to buy things for the holidays. Since I have a home, food and money, those less fortunate than I should have the same things others have.

Glen Gibbons
Atherton-Hough

It would be that I could unite the families with no home, food, or money. I would raise money for them and have a food drive. The whole community could help build a big apartment for them and they wouldn't have to pay rent until they had a job. They could have free check-ups and the children could have free schooling and day care.

Courtney Forti
Atherton-Hough

It would be that no one dies because when people die the whole family gets very sad. If everyone could watch their children grow up, the world would be a happier place.

Glen Harvey
Marshall

It would be that I could have magic like Brir, Daja, Sandry, and Tris in the Circle Of Magic series by Tamara Pierce. I'd use magic to stop my mom's allergies, and "magic" myself the tiniest terrier in the world. I would give my family each a Christmas present, especially my sister Lily because she always comforts me when I feel bad and she's really nice.

Lisa Luo
Montclair

It would be for everyone on Earth to be happy and have fun on Christmas Day so they can laugh with their friends.

Michael Giordani
Atherton-Hough

It would be to get a Saint Bernard Puppy. The one bad thing about St. Bernard puppies is that they drool alot. My parents said we might be able to get a puppy now that we moved to Quincy and have a bigger house.

Stephen Barry
Atherton-Hough

It would be to end all wars on this earth. Instead of a world where people kill each other, there could be a world where kindness is the most important value. We need to end our anger and hate for the Holidays and the rest of our lives.

Chris Iredale
Atherton-Hough

It would be that people stop killing other people. Parents are afraid to let their kids out at night and kids are afraid to be home alone. If people don't stop killing, there will be less and less people in the world. We need to learn to respect others.

Derek Riihimaki
Marshall

It would be no more drugs. I say this because we should be able to live in a place where people do not come up to us and ask "Do you want some?" I do not want drugs because they are stupid, disgusting and they can kill you.

Erica Aikens
Marshall

It would be to help people all around the world and give everybody homes, food, and jobs. I want people to be happy and in good health.

Celina Weinberg
Marshall

It would be that I got a rake so I could help people clean up the leaves. It would make my neighborhood a prettier place and, with my help, raking the leaves could get done quicker.

Alex Smith
Marshall

It would be to give all the poor people clothing, food and homes and then people would not have to live on the streets and beg. I think the homeless people would be grateful if my wish came true.

Sara Wadod
Marshall

It would be that I would get rid of my diabetes and I would never come back. If a cure is found for diabetes, I hope it will get a little better. I also hope that all other diseases get cured too.

Ashley Varieur
Merrymount

It would be that every person would have happy holidays and I would give presents to the people who can't afford any. I would bring them food and I think it would be nice to help someone in need. No matter what people celebrate, everyone should have happy holidays.

Kimberly LeBel
Merrymount

It would be that all rich people give some money to poor people. If this happened, the world would be a better place. I think people would live longer and live better lives if this happened.

Tony Moran
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have no more homeless people on Earth and no more people dying from starvation. I think people who have enough money to build skyscrapers and airplanes could pay some money for homes and food for people who don't have them.

Gary Morris
Atherton-Hough

It would be for everyone in the world to have food and be happy. Everyone should be with their family.

Kevin Donovan
Merrymount

It would be to be rich. I could buy everybody that is poor a new house. I could buy poor kids toys. I could buy them a big dinner and clothes too. If I couldn't have that, I'd would that everyone was just happy.

Tom Huang
Montclair

It would be that I lead an army of ten real, live nutcrackers, one flager, one drummer, three cannon men, one cannon, one ladder on horseback, and ten musket infantry.

Jan Champion
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be a dirt bike and a million dollars.

Corey Shaenon
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be a puppy. I have always wanted a puppy.

Colleen Corbett
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be having my whole family together.

Krystal Lewis
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a very merry Christmas with snow.

Stephen Lombardi
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to stay in Parker School. I wish it would go up to 10th grade. I like Parker School because it has good teachers and a good principal. I have been here for three years and four months. I got used to Parker School and it is my second family. I really want to stay, but it is my last year.

Rona El Hachem
Parker

It would be that my family is happy. My family being happy is very important to me. I try to get them happy by getting good grades. I also help with chores. My parents are happy when I offer to help. I like helping my family.

Harvey Sham
Montclair

It would be to get a b.b. gun because I tried my friend's and it was fun. Or I'd want a paintball gun.

Mike Barter
Montclair

It would be to bring my big brother home for Christmas. He's in the Navy in Virginia now and doesn't have the money to come home, but I wish he could.

Stephanie Casero
Montclair

It would be that I had at least a hundred dollars to buy presents for me and my family. If I had my left over, I'd buy presents for my friends. If I still had money left, I'd buy for the poor.

Janet Tang
Montclair

It would be to have front row tickets to a wrestling event and backstage passes in Austin, Texas for Stephen, William, and me.

Chad St. Jour
Montclair

It would be that my mom and dad could get back together again because I miss the things that I did together. We used to go and buy lots of stuff and travel because Dad liked to travel to different places.

William Avary
Montclair

It would be to have a dog. I wanted one because I always wanted one, but my brother says they're dirty so I can't have one.

Dianne Cho
Montclair

It would be to have my relatives at our house on Christmas so my sister and my cousins and I could play games.

Amanda Chiu
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to have my dad for a year because he's fun to have around and I only get to see him every Tuesday and every other weekend. We have fun and sleepovers and go shopping.

Nancy Right
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for every person to have a person to celebrate their religious holiday with, hopefully with someone they love. This will make everyone have good and happy feelings inside.

Kimberly Allen
Merrymount

It would be that all homeless on Christmas could go to a shelter and have a big dinner and celebrate.

Crystal Boire
Merrymount

It would be for everyone to stop littering. If they stop, Quincy will be a better place to live and play. It's stupid to throw your trash on the ground when there's a barrel nearby. If this continues, there'll be no more room to play sports and everywhere will smell.

D.J. Andrews
Marshall

It would be that every child gets at least one gift for Christmas, and that the needy have a home or shelter to stay in for Christmas.

Alicia Dwyer
Merrymount

It would be to help other people by finding them a house, giving them food and warm clothes so that they don't have to live out on the street.

It would be that everyone get their wish so the people who want a home get one, the people who wish for a Christmas tree get one, and all the other things that people wish for, they get. If this happened, I'd have my wish.

Maxwell Rooney
Monclair

It would be for everyone in my family to stay healthy for the rest of their lives. I would use that as my wish because everyone in my family is always very kind to each other. I consider myself lucky to be able to be part of a family like this. I want it to just continue forever.

Steven Bythrow

Docket No. 98E0089-PP1
To Dianne Lewis of Quincy in said County, Quincy Colleton of Quincy in said County, Ronald Colleton of Quincy in said County, NationsBanc Mortgage Corporation of Williamsville in the State of New York, Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services of Quincy in said County, Ravech, Aronson & Shuman of Boston in the County of Suffolk, respondents and to all other persons interested:

A petition has been presented to said Court by Joseph W. Colleton of Quincy in the County of Norfolk representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: A certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon situated in that part of Quincy called Bigelow Park, and being lots numbered twelve (12) and thirteen (13) on a plan entitled "Plan of Choice Building Lots at Bigelow Park," by H.T. Whitman, Civil Engineer, dated November 1902 and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Plan Book 34; Plan No. 1586. Said parcel of land is bounded and described as follows, to wit:

Beginning at a point in the Northeastly line of South Street, at the Southeastly corner of lot 11 on said plan, thence running in a Southeastly direction along said South Street, Forty and 34/100 (40.34) feet; thence running in a Northeastly direction along lot No. 14 on said plan, ninety-seven and 74/100 (97.74) feet; thence running in a Northwestly direction along a portion of lot No. 167, forty (40.00) feet; thence running in a Southwestly direction along lot No. 11, ninety-two and 52/100 (92.52) feet to the point of beginning, setting forth that he desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than one hundred seventy thousand dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance for all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the thirtieth day of December, 1998, the return day of this citation.

If I Could Have One Wish

It would be for people to stop polluting so much. If we kept polluting we will wreck the ozone layer. Strong chemicals are the cause of the damage to the air we breathe. Also, smoke from cars is very bad for the air.

It would be to have a genie who granted me wishes. He would grant me as many wishes as I wanted. My wish would have to be a good wish or he would not grant it. I want a genie because sometimes I just wish and my wishes don't come true. I would wish for many things. I think having a genie would be great. This holiday season and all the holidays of my life, my genie will help everyone!

THANK YOU SATURN CUSTOMERS of QUINNCY FOR A GREAT YEAR

We take great pleasure in presenting one of the most famous editorials ever written.

I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, "If you see it in The Sun, it's so." Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?
Virginia O'Hanlon

Editorial Page, New York Sun - 1897

IS THERE A SANTA CLAUS?

VIRGINIA, YOUR LITTLE FRIENDS ARE WRONG. THEY HAVE BEEN AFFECTED BY THE SKEPTICISM OF A SKEPTICAL AGE. THEY DO NOT BELIEVE EXCEPT WHAT THEY SEE. THEY THINK THAT NOTHING CAN BE WHICH IS NOT COMPREHENSIBLE BY THEIR LITTLE MINDS. ALL MINDS, VIRGINIA, WHETHER THEY BE MEN'S OR CHILDREN'S, ARE LITTLE IN THIS GREAT UNIVERSE OF OURS. MAN IS A MERE INSECT, AN ANT, IN HIS INTELLECT AS COMPARED WITH THE BOUNDLESS WORLD ABOUT HIM, AS MEASURED BY THE INTELLIGENCE CAPABLE OF GRASPING THE WHOLE OF TRUTH AND KNOWLEDGE.

YES, VIRGINIA, THERE IS A SANTA CLAUS!

HE EXISTS AS CERTAINLY AS LOVE AND GENEROSITY AND DEVOTION EXIST, AND YOU KNOW THAT THEY ABOUND AND GIVE TO YOUR LIFE ITS HIGHEST BEAUTY AND JOY. ALAS HOW DREARY WOULD BE THE WORLD IF THERE WERE NO SANTA CLAUS! IT WOULD BE AS DREARY AS IF THERE WERE NO VIRGINIAS. THERE WOULD BE NO CHILDLIKE FAITH THEN, NO POETRY, NO ROMANCE, NO MAKE TOLERABLE THIS EXISTENCE. WE SHOULD HAVE NO ENJOYMENT, EXCEPT IN SENSE AND SIGHT. THE EXTERNAL LIGHT WITH WHICH CHILDHOOD FILLS THE WORLD WOULD BE EXTINGUISHED.

NOT BELIEVE IN SANTA CLAUS YOU MIGHT AS WELL NOT BELIEVE IN FAIRIES. YOU MIGHT GET YOUR PAPA TO HIRE MEN TO WATCH IN ALL THE CHIMNEYS ON CHRISTMAS EVE TO CATCH SANTA CLAUS, BUT EVEN IF YOU DID NOT SEE SANTA CLAUS COMING DOWN, WHAT WOULD THAT PROVE? NOBODY SEES SANTA CLAUS, BUT THAT IS NO SIGN THAT THERE IS NO SANTA CLAUS. THE MOST REAL THINGS IN THE WORLD ARE THOSE THAT NEITHER CHILDREN NOR MEN CAN SEE. DID YOU EVER SEE FAIRIES DANCING ON THE LAWN? OF COURSE NOT, BUT THAT'S NO PROOF THAT THEY ARE NOT THERE. NOBODY CAN CONCEIVE OR IMAGINE ALL THE WONDERS THERE ARE UNSEEN AND UNSEABLE IN THE WORLD.

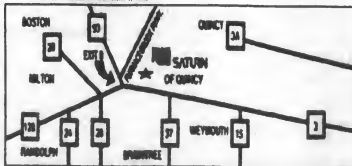

YOU TEAR APART THE BABY'S RATTLE AND SEE WHAT MAKES THE NOISE INSIDE, BUT THERE IS A VEIL COVERING THE UNSEEN WORLD WHICH NOT THE STRONGEST MAN, NOR EVEN THE UNITED STRENGTH OF ALL THE STRONGEST MEN THAT EVER LIVED COULD TEAR APART. ONLY FAITH, POETRY, LOVE, ROMANCE, CAN PUSH ASIDE THAT CURTAIN AND VIEW AND PICTURE THE SUPERNAL BEAUTY AND GLORY BEYOND. IS IT ALL REAL? AH, VIRGINIA, IN ALL THIS WORLD THERE IS NOTHING ELSE REAL AND ABIDING.

NO SANTA CLAUS? THANK GOD HE LIVES AND LIVES FOREVER. A THOUSAND YEARS FROM NOW, VIRGINIA, MAY 10 TIMES 10,000 YEARS FROM NOW, HE WILL CONTINUE TO MAKE GLAD THE HEART OF CHILDHOOD.

Celebration Starts At 4pm Thursday Over 30,000 Expected For First Night

Quincy's seventh First Night begins at 4 p.m. Thursday and culminates at midnight with a 20-minute laser light show and a pyrotechnic display that should be visible throughout the city.

And in between this year, there will be more than 200 creative artists performing at 21 different locations throughout Quincy Square.

More than 30,000 celebrants are expected to attend.

From the Central Baptist Church Hall to South Shore Buick and from the New City Hall to the YMCA, the sites are within walking distance. But from 6:30 to 11:30 p.m., the Bean Town Trolley will be available for $1. Those wearing First Night buttons can ride for free.

The special buttons, designed by Eugene Shea, are available at several locations — Stop & Shop Supermarkets, City Hall, Dunkin' Donuts, Shaw's, Osco Drug, Roche Brothers', Harbor Express and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, 1416 Hancock St. — for $7 until Thursday afternoon and for $10 otherwise.

The buttons provide free admission to all indoor venues and offer a half-price discount to any New Year's Eve souvenirs at the two Quincy First Night stores located at President's Place and at the food court at the gym in the Center for Technical Education. All outdoor activities are free to all.

Eugene Shea chose a millennium theme for this year's button, with Quincy Square buildings such as the Old City Hall, the Bank-Boston Tower, the Adams Block and the United First Parish Church rising to meet the challenges of the new year and the 21st century.

An inter-faith service, led by the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, officially opens the evening's events at 5:45 p.m. in the sanctuary of the historic Church of the Presidents.

Said Mayor James Sheets: "This is a non-alcoholic, family-oriented event...an ideal way to celebrate the ending of one year and the beginning of another."

A Festival of Lights parade of decorated pickup trucks and trailers starts at 6:30 p.m. and features jugglers, clowns and bands too.

Jerome Shea, owner of Atlantic Ice Sculptors in Weymouth, will create 18 works of art to welcome in 1999. And the below-freezing weather promises to be ideal for his work to survive for a few days.

Musicians will perform at Adams Academy, starting at 4:30 p.m., and at Bethany Church at 7:30. The Quincy Alumni Band and the John Lincoln Wright and Soursash Boys will set up at BankBoston, while Quincy musician Luke Sheets and the Bullock Brothers will play Christian rock and sing gospel music, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Baptist Church Hall. At the church, two other vocalists will perform.

In the City Council Chambers, beginning at 7:30 a unique song-and-dance team will be featured. At 9:30, the Joyce Lucia Quartet and Local Bright Lights — Peter Kolson, Patrick McDermott and Joe LaRaia — will display their hidden talents.

The New City Hall Atrium will provide a stage too for vaudeville performer Bobarino Gravittini at 7:30 and for multimedia performers, Paper Music, at 9:30 p.m. while the second floor conference room will feature an art and photography display, starting at 4 p.m.

More entertainment will be offered at the Presidents Place Atrium and the National Park Service Visitor Center, starting at 5:30, while Diane Purdy's Children Theatre Workshop will present two plays at 5:45 and 7:30 at Quincy High School Theatre. Performances by others are scheduled later.

An international food festival will be held at 4:30 and 5:30 at the Vocational School gym, while Peter Jae's Chinese dancers will perform at 6:30 p.m.

Musicians also will play at the YMCA, the Thomas Crane Library and at an outdoor tent, while at the Woodward School gym, a video dance party will be staged from 7:30 to 11:30.

At the First Night Coffeehouse in the basement of the First Parish Church Steve Hurl and Reference Point will play from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Reference Point is an acoustic pop/rock duo featuring Mark Crosby of Quincy and Michael Dugan of Plymouth who play covers from the 1940s to 1990s.

The MBTA will run extra buses and trains on many lines, and after 8 p.m., service will be free.

Mid-Term Address Monday

Sheets Sees 1999 'A Great Year' For City Progress

By MARILYN JACKSON

Mayor James A. Sheets predicts that 1999 will be a great year for Quincy, as he ticked off a list of projects which he believes will come to fruition in the next 12 months.

He is scheduled to deliver his mid-term address before the City Council at 10 a.m. Monday.

"We're going to see additional senior housing at Squantum Gardens, and groundbreaking will be soon.

"We'll see the keel laid for the first ship and the ship be under construction.

"We'll see a temporary bridge constructed at the Fore River Bridge so that engineers can determine what work needs to be done on the existing bridge.

"We'll see a resolution to the hospital issue. It's been the city's objective to get out of the hospital business ever since hospital care became so complex," said the mayor.

Nowadays, he said, "it takes a merger and a partner to survive without a deficit."

Sheets said the hospital has been running at a $9 million to $10 million deficit, although the hospital has reserves to cover that loss. He predicted that after a merger, the hospital facilities will remain and all its current services will continue. Maternity services were discontinued a few months ago.

He said he expected that the John F. Kennedy Health Center will be sold.

"I'm looking forward to the reopening of the Point-Webster School as a new middle school [the city's fifth] and the plans for a new comprehensive Quincy High School to be completed," he continued.

"And, we'll see the 27-hole Quarry Hills Golf Course take shape in the next 12 months."

After the new state legislature convenes, he added, he would like to see the city push for state approval for the city to tap into the ramp system along I-93 as one of the first steps in getting a new highway ramp to Crown Colony and to North Quincy.

Quincy's rich history will not be neglected either, and the city will work toward preserving the Southern Tide Mill, he said. The mill possesses three separate links to the city's history — President John Quincy Adams and his family, who at one time owned the site; shipbuilding documented on the Town River as early as 1641, and the granite industry of the 19th century, when stone sloops built at the site carried Quincy's famous gray granite from the first commercial railway to the shipyard to be carried to Boston and other destinations.

"We're the only city in the country which is the home of two Presidents," Sheets continued, "and it's important for us to restore the historical character of Quincy."

In addition to the Southern Tide Mill and other Adams-related buildings, such as the birthplaces, the Adams Mansion, Adams Academy and the Church of the Presidents, there are the Dorothy Quincy House and the Josiah Quincy House, he pointed out.

Plus, many commercial firsts occurred in Quincy; for example, Dunkin' Donuts started in Quincy, and Grossman's building supply company started in Quincy. Sheets said he wants to emphasize all of Quincy's historical riches in the coming year as the city approaches the millennium.

QUINCY FIRE DEPARTMENT graduated 12 new fire fighters recently at Quincy Fire Academy Headquarters. City Officials Support Censure For Clinton

By MARILYN JACKSON

Quincy's elected officials would like to see President William Clinton censured so that the country can get on to its business at hand.

City Council President Peter Kolson believes Quincy has a special place in the nation's history, specifically because Quincy was the home of President John Adams and John Hancock. Adams helped write the Massachusetts Constitution after which the U.S. Constitution was modeled; Hancock, a Massachusetts governor, was the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

"We [in Quincy] stand in a special light, and we think that all the turmoil we have gone through gives credence to the way Adams and Hancock set the Constitution" which has withstood the test of time.

"It's strong, and the people of this country are strong. Personally, I would vote for sanction, vote for a fine and then get on with it. Whether we like it or not, we've got to put this thing to rest.

"We've embarrassed ourselves enough."

"In most countries," continued Kolson, "there would be total chaos. People would be running in the Post Office Seeks Maple St. Property For More Parking

Negotiations are under way for the U.S. Postal Service to acquire property at 40 Maple St. to use as an expanded parking lot for its Quincy Center Post Office, according to James Lundrigan, branch manager of the Quincy Center office.

Right now, parking for postal vehicles is limited to the northerly side of the property and can accommodate only 15 vehicles, he said.

"If a large truck, a 100-foot-long truck comes in, no other vehicles can get into the lot," he said.

"And once the heavy trucks come in, no one can exit onto Maple Street."

The post office just recently completed a year-long interior renovation project, bringing the building up to code and replacing the wiring, heating and plumbing, he said.

The Quincy Center Post Office employs about 130 workers and handles an average of 195,000 pieces of mail a day.

The property presently is owned by real estate developer Alain Chetroune who acquired that site along with the Patriot Ledger offices at 13 Temple St. several years ago.

Michael Kenneally of Key Realty is the broker for the property.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

January 3, 1777, George Washington defeated Lord Cornwallis at Princeton ... January 3, 1777, the Continental Congress adopted the Stars and Stripes ... December 29, 1812, the U.S.S. Constitution beat the British Java ... January 1, 1831, William Lloyd Garrison began his abolitionist newspaper, The Liberator ... January 1, 1863, President Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation freeing "all slaves in areas still in rebellion" ... December 29, 1890, the last major conflict between the Indians and U.S. troops, the Battle of Wounded Knee, took place; around 200 Indian men, women, and children were killed, along with 29 soldiers ... January 1, 1892, Ellis Island, in New York Bay, opened to receive and process immigrants ... January 1, 1931, the London Naval Reduction Treaty was signed by the U.S., Britain, Italy, France, and Japan ... January 3, 1959, Alaska was admitted into the Union as the 49th state ... January 1, 1975, former Attorney General John Mitchell and former presidential advisers H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman were found guilty of Watergate cover-up charges ... What You WON'T See In 1999

The so-called experts are busy predicting what's going to happen in 1999.

Seeing that I'm no expert, I'll pass on that.

But down through the years, my batting average has been quite respectable when it comes to predicting what won't happen.

So, I would like to have another go at it for next year. I predict with confidence—95 percent at least—that you won't see in 1999:

You won't see Jim Sheets saying: "You know, I'm getting tired of being mayor. I think I'll call it quits."

You won't see, when Sheets announces for a sixth term, anyone in the City Council stepping to the plate to challenge him.

You won't see Mike Bellotti naming Jack Flood a deputy sheriff.

You won't see Paul Harold as the keynote speaker at the keel laying of the first ship at the Fore River shipyard.

You won't see a return to the days of the single tax rate in Quincy. The commercial rate will continue to be higher than the residential. (Well, it's the homeowners who vote in Quincy. Most of the business owners don't.)

You won't see anyone bad-mouthing Jeff Locke. He's probably the most qualified and well-liked candidate who didn't get elected.

You won't see Gene Creedon or Dave Colton complaining if we get only a few inches of snow this winter.

You won't see Mike Cheney complaining if the temperature hits 50 for the First Night celebration New Year's Eve.

You won't see Father Bill McCarthy turning any-one away at the homeless shelter that bears his name.

You won't see Bob Curry, Ed Keohane, Don

Uvanitte or Arthur Tobin saying "no" to a worthy cause.

You won't see Joe Shea giving up those foot-long cigars that look like the ones Winston Churchill smoked.

You won't see tight-fisted Frank McCauley upset being called the Jack Benny of Quincy politics.

You won't see Peter Kolson turning down a recording offer.

You won't see Roy Lind hang up on anyone on WJDA's "Party Line." Never loses his cool.

You won't see Ted DeCristofaro saying, "Now that I think of it, the granite ball should be moved to City Hall. It would be like a crown jewel there."

You won't see Bruce Ayers wondering what to do when he arrives on Beacon Hill. (He already has filed 53 bills.)

You won't see Tom Franc or Tom Gorman saying, "No thank you, Mayor, I already have more than enough men."

You won't see Dan Raymondi missing out on any state or federal funds for Ward 2.

You won't see Tom Galvin running out of those popular old Quincy scene postcards that appear weekly in The Sun. (Say you won't, Tom.)

You won't see Joe Mannarino or Maralin Manning telling a hot retail prospect, "You know I think you would do better in Braintree."

You won't see Bill Morrill packing up and moving to Quincy, Kan.

You won't have an easy time trying to find a parking space in downtown.

And a couple of things for sure:

You won't see Bill Clinton and Ken Starr buddy-buddy in the Oval Office and Monica Lewinsky bringing them a pizza.

And, you won't see 1998 again.

Wishing you all a happy, HEALTHY, New Year.

Kolson, Ayers Return From Conference With New Ideas

By MARILYN JACKSON

When City Councillors Peter Kolson and Bruce Ayers attended the annual conference of the National League of Cities in Kansas City, Mo., last month, they both returned with lots of new ideas.

For example, they learned about different strategies other cities use to address similar issues, such as downtown development, debt collection and a renewed focus on youth.

Kolson, who is council president, serves on the national conference's energy and environment steering committee.

In early 1999, Kolson said, phase two of the National Clean Water Act will kick in and "will require communities that dump in a polluted harbor — and I believe Boston Harbor is still considered polluted — to upgrade their sewer systems."

"The financial impact will be horrendous," said Kolson. "We already pay huge MWRA assessments for water and sewer."

"This was an invaluable way to gather new ideas to take home to your community," said Ayers of the conference. "It's also a way to network."

He said about 225 exhibitors were at the conference to demonstrate their wares, ranging from solid waste management and recycling equipment, emergency response vehicles, public works equipment to office equipment and computer software and hardware.

"It's an opportunity to find out what's readily available," he said.

In addition, conference participants shared real-life experiences with other city officials from throughout the country.

"There were information-packed workshops about meeting education needs and enhancing downtown redevelopment that offered specific examples of how to be proactive and benefit the community, Ayers said.

"There were regional solutions to common concerns," Ayers said by attending the conference, he said he "learned how other cities and towns deal with similar problems and how to maximize funding for the various projects, whether it's local aid, state or federal funding to your city."

Another issue one workshop discussed was how to attract good businesses to the area in a changing economy, said Ayers. This is something he would like to pursue further with Quincy 2000 executive director Joseph Mannarino and with the city council, especially regarding some zoning issues in Ward 6, which is North Quincy and Squantum.

Among the speakers who addressed the conference were Vice President Albert Gore and former U.S. Senator Bill Bradley of New Jersey who is considering a run for the Presidency.

QHS Parent Advisory Council Meeting Jan. 14

ENC's Handel's Messiah A Wonderful Gift To Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

ENC's annual presentation of Handel's Messiah, which gets better and better every year, is a wonderful gift to the people of Quincy.

The Messiah ensemble for this production was superb. Lois Van Dam's lithe and athletic hand gestures and very strong, capable, and rhythmic direction of the work was very effective and satisfying indeed. Lois has a way of leaving nothing to chance by indicating with her hands and body and presence and duration of every note and rhythm in the piece.

The string section was superb as well, with nary a note out of tune and much color was provided by Chris Boel on the trumpet who at one point was out in the auditorium instead of on-stage. Brandy Millican provided color as well on the harpsichord as he does every year and Lambert Brandes masterfully played the organ for certain grand and important passages in the work.

Steve Howard was right on target with his drum percussion technique which added a lot to the piece. Soprano soloist Candace Zaiden added tone which had a mischievous and coquettish quality to it which piqued my interest and that of the audience. Alto Soloist Suzanne Ehley's voice was appropriately womanly, tenor soloist and Murray Kidd's voice was lyrical (one of the older women in the audience said she had a crush on him during intermission!) and bass soloist Phillip Candelis had a voice that was profoundly deep.

The soprano and alto duets were also wonderful. The Choral Union is an excellent group of choral singers who willingly took direction from the conductor and, by doing so, added immeasurably to the quality of this performance with their rendition of the Hallelujah Chorus, And He Shall Purify The Sons of Levi, His Yoke Is Easy, and All We Like Sheep Have Gone Astray. Lois Van Dam must know the score in her sleep by now.

At the very end of the performance, during the carol sing, it was our turn to sing, and we had a chance to observe Lois Van Dam's considerable conducting skills firsthand. At the end of the carol sing, she tactfully told us that we had sung beautifully.

For those of you who have never been able to see or hear the Messiah, even if you are, like myself, not of faith, I would highly recommend that you go to next year's performance of Handel's Messiah at ENC. Spread the word: Handel rocks!!!

Goodman Has Grasp On Smelts

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Dr. Carl Goodman was too modest in his recent letter titled, "Help the Smelts."

What Dr. Goodman did not mention was that he not only had spent the greater part of the day walking around the Braintree Dam and the Town Brook in Braintree, but had spoken eloquently at the Braintree Conservation meeting on Nov. 19 where representatives of the ACOE and MDC were present to present their usual comments.

Dr. Goodman impressed the audience with his grasp of the situation.

A bit more on the dam. In Paul Harold's "Quincy's Yesterdays" of March 13, 1997, he mentions Councilor John Koegler state in 1967 that "We should never sell it (the Dam). It might be worth a billion dollars in the future." Your readers will recall Quincy in effect gave the Dam to the MDC a couple of years ago.

Scare tactics are still being used. One resident informed me that he understood the water in the dam was 90 feet deep. The truth: at the maximum water level, the actual depth of the water is in the mid 20's, not 90!

Note Of Appreciation

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I just wanted to tell you how wonderful and kind the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association has been. They have been coming to my house since April twice a day for a while, then once a day after a stay at the hospital.

I had a wonderful team of nurses and doctors. I am all better and I just wanted to say thank you very much.

Happy holidays to a wonderful bunch of caring people.

COUGH, COUGH, COUGH

Coughing is the body's way of signaling that something is irritating the respiratory tract. When coughing becomes "chronic" — when it goes on day after day — it's usually a clear sign that something is wrong. One cause of coughing is chronic bronchitis, or persistent inflammation of the air passages in the lungs. The inflammation causes irritation, which is in turn the reason for the chronic cough and production of sputum. Unfortunately, too many people simply become used to coughing, never seeking a diagnosis and treatment. Without help and adequate precautions, people with chronic bronchitis are at risk of developing emphysema. They are also more vulnerable to respiratory tract infections and influenza.

Too often we attempt to just "shake it off" when it comes to our own illness. We're too busy, too tired, too stressed to make an appointment, or worse yet, don't think that there is help available—but there is. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we listen to your concerns. We are affiliated with Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. Please call us at 617-472-2550; office hours by appointment.

P.S. Anyone with bronchitis should seek help at the first sign of a respiratory tract infection, to prevent pneumonia and other complications.

Electrical Union Continues Picketing At Shipyard

Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have been picketing at the Fore River Shipyard to protest that non-union workers are completing electrical and iron work inside the yard.

Shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanuil had promised to use only union workers to redevelop the yard which is expected to reopen next year.

This is highly specialized crane work, said Mayor James Sheets, and the crane company with the non-union laborers is providing an 18-month warranty, he said.

Last week, a two-gate system was established so that the union workers can continue to picket in front of a gate off Quincy Avenue. The non-union workers enter the shipyard at East Howard Street.

Work has not been disrupted, but all the carpenters, ironworkers and other laborers are working in close quarters in the main fabrication building.

Sun 'Citizen Of Year' Nominations Close Today

Nominations close today (Thursday) for The Quincy Sun's 14th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Robert "Bobby" Derbes was honored for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community. He was selected from 42 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close today, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than today (Thursday).

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by today.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past award recipients and the year of selection are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch, Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes for four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Fr. Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and other needy people for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient. Again, deadline for nomination is today (Thursday).

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Jewish Committee Meeting Jan. 6

The Quincy Jewish Committee will meet Wednesday, Jan. 6 at 7:30 p.m. at Roche Bros.

Progress, Change In 1998

Progress and change marked 1998 in Quincy.

The year began with Mayor James Sheets starting his fifth term. During his inaugural address, the mayor touched on many recurring themes for the next 12 months: the revitalization of the Fore River Shipyard, increased fiscal stability, the need for a downtown hotel, and financial improvements at Quincy Hospital.

The hospital itself endured a roller-coaster ride with layoffs and the closing of its maternity ward. But, health care officials expressed optimism by year's end that a partnership would be formed in the early part of 1999.

Several significant projects came to fruition, including the city's newest school, the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School which opened in the fall and returned an elementary school to the Quincy Point neighborhood.

The Veterans House opened on Furnace Brook

Parkway. Housing homeless veterans, the dwelling was named "the McIntyre House" in honor of homeless shelter advocate Sheila McIntyre.

Fr. Bill's Homeless Shelter on Broad Street marked its 10th anniversary with another milestone: the opening of an addition.

Another anticipated project, the addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library, broke ground in the summer. Officials eyed a November, 1999 completion.

It was also an election year and a few local candidates made the successful move to state and county office. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers was elected state representative in the First Norfolk District, succeeding Rep. Michael Belotti who was elected Norfolk County sheriff.

Another candidate had a big day at the Quincy ballot box. Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci carried Quincy enroute to his victory of Scott Harshbarger for governor.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS is sworn in to his fifth term by City Clerk Joseph Shea during the city's inaugural ceremonies at Quincy High School. In his address, the mayor said, "To accomplish great things we must not only act but dream, not only plan but risk."

Nineteen ninety-eight also marked the start of the city's community policing program. Officers hit the streets in four neighborhoods in the fall in an effort to create more law enforcement awareness and cultivate community trust.

Quincy said hello to John "Jack" Mather of Halifax as the new commissioner of the Quincy Housing Authority; Robert Duetsch who came aboard as the new director of U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum; and David Phillips of Wisconsin who replaced Joseph Finn as executive director of the Interfaith Sheltering Coalition. Finn moved on to take a position in Cambridge.

Coincidentally, the two high schools started the year with new principals: Eileen Feeney at North Quincy and Robert Keuther at Quincy High. They succeeded Peter Chrisom and Lloyd Hill, respectively, who both retired.

Tragedy struck the city in August when two workers fell 80 feet to their deaths after the scaffolding they were working on collapsed outside 77 Adams Place in Quincy Center.

The city also mourned the loss of some beloved and well-known figures. Among them: Robert Johnston, headmaster at the Woodward School; James J. "Pete" Ricciuti, former Quincy Public Works Commissioner; Warren Watson, retired director of the Crane Library; and Alfred Benedetti, Quincy's oldest Senior Olympian, who died at age 104.

Here's a local look back at 1998:

January

About 30,000 people rang in the New Year at the city's sixth annual First Night Quincy celebration.

Mayor James Sheets' fifth inaugural address focused mainly on the city's recent successes—including the revitalization of the Fore River shipyard, increased fiscal stability, and many others—but also touched upon the needs for a downtown hotel and improve-

City Council President Peter Kolson, during the inaugural ceremonies, predicted a bright future for the city. And new School Committee Vice Chairwoman Linda Stice said the priority for the city's schools is a "first-class education" for all of its students.

New faces on the political scene included Michael McFarland, sworn-in as a School Committee member, and former Mayor Francis McCauley who returned as a councillor-at-large.

Dr. Peter V. Corea and Rev. M. Alicia Corea were honored for their 50 years of service at Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

City officials supported a proposal by Kolson to form a commission to study the shopping needs of the city.

Daniel Raymondi turned the chairmanship of the Quincy College Board of Governors over to Theresa Lord, who previously served as vice chairman.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon named Robert Keuther Jr., director of the city's GOALS Program—an alternative school program—to replace retiring Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Hill.

Klaara Riihimaki, 93, died in a fire in her West Quincy home caused by burning newspapers in a basement fireplace.

The Quincy Police Department promoted one lieutenant and four sergeants, including Susan Perch, the first female sergeant in department history. The new lieutenant was Thomas Bolinder, and the other sergeants were Stephen O'Brien, Patrick Glynn, and Brian Tobin.

The City Council granted air rights over the North Quincy MBTA parking lot to allow Quincy developer Mark Dickinson to build a $39 million office building and the MBTA to build a five-story parking garage.

Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke was guest speaker at the city's fourth annual Martin Luther King Jr. Breakfast.

The city mailed 45,000 annual city census forms.

City Clerk Joseph Shea was re-elected chairman of the Quincy License Board.

Quincy 2000 Downtown Development Coordinator Bruce Arons resigned to accept a position in Middleborough.

Robert Derbes of Derbes Bros. Contracting was named The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" for 1997.

Gov. Paul Cellucci pledged improved education throughout Massachusetts during a visit to the Bernazzani School.

City officials unveiled a plan to have all classrooms in the Quincy Public Schools equipped with cable television and Internet-linked computers by September.

Other deaths included:

Charles F. Anderson, 81, South Shore Buick salesman; Patricia A. Plourde, 67, sister of Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman; Andrew L. Ruggiano, 76, Quincy barber for 51 years; Robert M. Thomson, 57, Boston Edison engineer; Dorothy F. Schofield, 83, nationally-published fiction writer; Rev. Hugh Corey, 75, former Glad Tidings Church pastor; Lila Calareso, 66, Quincy Neighborhood Club waitress.

February

Former Congressman and Ambassador Brian Donnelly, popular in Quincy and on the South Shore, entered the race for governor. Later in the month, he walked off with about two-thirds of the local delegates to the state convention.

The City Council voiced support of the notion that MediaOne should not remain Quincy's sole cable television provider, saying competition would benefit viewers.

City Councillors Patrick McDermott and Michael D'Amico and a number of residents expressed traffic and safety concerns over a planned luxury apartment and senior residential community in West Quincy.

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin called for the state to establish Senior Citizens Safety Zones on roadways that abut senior facilities in Quincy and other Massachusetts communities.

Mayor James Sheets politely declined a tongue-in-cheek offer from City Councillor Francis McCauley to join the Republican Party. McCauley made the offer after Sheets was criticized by some Democrats for refusing to endorse a Democratic candidate in the gubernatorial race.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development approved Quincy's plan to convert the former Naval facilities at Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace into senior housing.

The Quincy License Board voiced opposition to a plan to move Eddie's Diner in Quincy Point to a site across from the Fore River shipyard.

Robert Johnston, 64, headmaster of the Woodward School for 20 years, died of ALS, or Lou Gehrig's disease.

The city purchased, for $3.5 million, the parcel of land in Quincy Point that will serve as the home of the new Quincy High School.

City officials and domestic violence experts told those at a City Hall forum that domestic violence is a more serious problem for

The Quincy Park Department asked the city to consider renaming a portion of Southern Artery "Merrymount Parkway" by the spring.

More than 3,000 people attended the city's second annual Presidents Day Winter Festival.

A "Blizzard Ball" held to mark the 20th anniversary of the Blizzard of '78 raised $8,000 for the American Red Cross.

The Josiah Quincy House was added to the National Register of Historic Places.

A power outage at O'Brien Towers in Germantown left nearly 300 residents without heat and electricity for over 13 hours.

A new commission was formed to study the shopping needs of the citizens of Quincy.

Sheets said about 600 workers would be hired for the soon-to-be-reopened Fore River shipyard in about 15 months' time.

Congressman William Delahunt invited the City Council and Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. to organize public commemorations of the legacy of John Quincy Adams. He made the suggestion on the 150th anniversary of Adams' death.

Other deaths in February included: Clifford W. Evers, 84, longtime Grossman's manager; Margaret H. Mattes, former Quincy Hospital housekeeper; James J. "Pete" Ricciuti, 81, former Quincy public works commissioner, purchasing agent and mayoral executive secretary; Rev. Willis P. Miller, 78, pastor of Quincy Methodist churches; Dora T. Mina, 84, presser and seamstress.

March

City Councillors Francis McCauley and Paul Harold expressed disappointment that Mayor James Sheets okayed the $3.5 million purchase of land for a new Quincy High School without formal council approval. Other councillors, however, said the mayor had made his plans known and therefore acted properly.

Thomas Crane Library officials unearthed an antique window and 24 World War II-era posters—including four done by Norman Rockwell—during preparation for the construction of a planned library addition.

Police Chief Thomas Frane told the Quincy License Board two police officers would be assigned to the Quincy Center business area under the city's new community policing program.

Quincy Health Commissioner offered safety precautions following the attack of a Quincy boy by a rabid raccoon. The boy was treated and subsequently recovered.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers announced his candidacy for the state representative seat being vacated by Michael Bellotti to run for Norfolk County sheriff.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, retired assistant superintendent of the Quincy Public Schools, was appointed interim headmaster at The Woodward School in Quincy.

Charnan Bray of Waltham, hired in late April as Economic Development Specialist for Quincy 2000, resigned after only a month to start a new career and a family.

A $50,000 renovation project on the Fore River Clubhouse in Quincy Point began.

Fr. Daniel Graham, episcopal vicar of the Quincy Vicariate, said Quincy's nine Catholic parishes should not be affected anytime soon by Cardinal Bernard Law's plan to close 40 to 60 churches throughout the Archdiocese of Boston in the next 10 years.

William Casamento, executive director of the Saugus Housing Authority, was hired to run the Quincy Housing Authority but ultimately rejected the job when an agreement with the QHA Board of Commissioners could not be reached on the terms of his contract.

Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year" for 1997 Robert Derbes was honored at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy.

The City Council voted to raise Quincy's cab rates for the first time in eight years.

The council also granted a Planned Unit Development permit for the Faxon Woods Retirement Community in Quincy Point.

Det. Sgt. Robert Perchard, the city's liquor inspector, proposed a "Cops in Shops" plan that would have undercover police working in package stores and pouring establishments to prevent underage drinking.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott said he opposed a planned "Sober House" at a former nursing home and residence of the late actress Ruth Gordon.

Quincy College President Dr. Jeremiah Ryan said three plans were under consideration in planning the Fiscal Year 1999 budget for the financially struggling college. Each plan called for a certain number of layoffs dependent upon how much the college spent in other areas.

Following the debacle with Casamento, John "Jack" Mather of Halifax, a Brockton Housing Authority official, was hired as the Quincy Housing Authority's new executive director.

The Macy Street Playground in Houghs Neck was renamed after Sgt. Lawrence Grenham, a Houghs Neck native killed in Vietnam.

Kevin Gildea, a Quincy native, was indicted for the November 1996 theft of four historic books from the Adams National Historic Site.

Warren Watson, retired director of the Crane Library, died at 72. He ran the library for 25 years.

Other deaths in March included: Harold C. "Turk" Boston, 75, electromechanical design draftsman; Patricia H. Lewis, 88, Sheridan's Department Store employee; Francis X. Barry, 80, Boston firefighter for 30 years; George D. Reardon, 81, prominent South Shore businessman; Mabelle L. Fullerton, 93, Patriot Ledger social editor.

House For Homeless Veterans Opens

April

The City Council unanimously agreed to fund the Quincy Police Department's "Cops in Shops" program targeting underage drinking through the sale of liquor to minors in package stores and pouring establishments.

Former City Councillor Michael Cheney was elected chairman of the Quincy Democratic City Committee.

The Coletti Building at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center closed for the beginning of construction of a planned library addition.

Teachers at Quincy College voted no confidence in President Dr. Jeremiah Ryan's leadership after he announced layoffs would be necessary at the financially struggling institution. Ryan called the vote "premature" and said he and other college officials were "disappointed" by the action.

The Quincy Park Department's plan to rename a portion of Southern Artery "Merrymount Parkway" was approved by the City Council.

The city's plan to set up a second Emergency 911 site at Quincy's fire headquarters was backed by the City Council.

Officials announced plans to name the library's new addition after the late Warren Watson, who served as its director for 25 years.

Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci visited Quincy to present the city with $3.7 million in state grants for various public works infrastructure and traffic signalization improvements.

City Council President Peter Kolson was named chairman of a committee in charge of planning events for Quincy's millennium celebration scheduled to begin in 1999.

A new Veterans House for homeless veterans opened on Burgin Parkway.

Thomas Wesner, a faculty member of the Renaissance School in Boston, was named the new headmaster of The Woodward School in Quincy Center.

Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter, celebrated its 10th anniversary. Cardinal Bernard Law, head of the Archdiocese of Boston, was the featured speaker at the celebration.

Five Democrats filed nomination papers for the vacant First Norfolk District state representative seat being vacated by Michael Bellotti: Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, former Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, Patrick Conroy of Billings St., Robert Boussey of Farrington St. and Christopher Howley of Kemper St.

Mayor James Sheets announced that all 48 units at the Naval Terrace portion of Squantum Gardens had been leased for senior citizens housing.

Tree plantings began on Franklin Street in South Quincy from the Braintree line to Kendrick Avenue, the first phase of a program created by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond to raise property values in and beautify the area.

Bellotti officially kicked off his candidacy for Norfolk County sheriff.

A new Child Care Center at the Quincy Center for Technical Education was named after retired Assistant School Supt. Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, one of the founding member of the Quincy Teen Mothers Program.

U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy received the Quincy College Sullivan Center Lifetime Achievement Award.

Alfred Benedetti, Quincy's oldest Senior Olympian, died at 104.

six to 10 stories in a portion of Quincy Center received mixed reviews at a lightly-attended public hearing. However, councillors subsequently learned the amount of time they'd had to act on the proposal had expired.

The Quincy License Board voted 4-1 to grant a beer and wine license to Shaw's Supermarket in North Quincy, with Police Chief Thomas Frane the lone dissenter.

The City Council pledged to back financially-struggling Quincy Hospital in any way possible.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and former Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien were the only two candidates for the First Norfolk District state representative seat certified to have their names on the ballot. Three other candidates failed to get enough signatures.

Sheets announced that the owners of the Fore River shipyard had agreed to a major deal for the transfer of shipbuilding technology with a South Korean shipyard.

Dr. Robert Downey Jr., curator of the Braintree Historical Society, was named executive director of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy Point.

A survey of Quincy Center employees conducted by the "Keep It In Quincy" Shopping Commission showed most felt the restaurants in the area were above average but the selection of retail stores need to improve.

Broad Meadows Middle School students took their nationally-recognized and continuing campaign against child labor to officials in Washington, D.C. and world leaders in Geneva, Switzerland.

The License Board approved the transfer of ownership of Walsh's Restaurant in North Quincy, a family-owned landmark since 1933.

The City Council unanimously passed a new signage ordinance affecting businesses throughout the city.

Officials said a piece of waterfront land off Southern Artery originally seen as the future site of a shopping mall/fishing pier might instead be used for residential housing.

Sheets announced plans were in motion for the Metropolitan District Commission-owned Granite Rail Quarry in West Quincy to be drained by the MDC. The draining of the city-owned Swingle's Quarry by J.F. White Contracting Co. in Newton had begun in April.

Deaths in May included: Suzan Compston, 39, legal secretary; Nancy Callahan, 39, customer service representative; Joan T. Kenney, 68, social worker; Teresa M. Campitelli, 72, Raytheon employee; Mary M. Wel-

June

The City Council appropriated $473,000 to help relieve flooding in the Hollis Avenue/Milton Road area near Wollaston Beach.

Residential Communications Network Inc. (RCN) filed a formal license application to become the city's second cable provider, with plans to do so by the end of the year.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott had both of his hips replaced during two separate surgeries at New England Medical Center in Boston.

Plans were announced for a park at the corner of Manet Avenue and Sea Street to be named after former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly.

Quincy High School senior Kevin Moore, quarterback of the school's football team, remained in a coma following a car accident in late May when his car was struck by another that ran a red light.

A Cambridge firm filed a plan with the city to build a luxury apartment and senior residential community in West Quincy.

Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna of the Quincy Police Department was named the new director of the city's community policing commission. He replaced Kathy Bandera, the civilian director who angered officials by complaining about her salary and questioning the department's response to certain crimes.

Later in the month, at the request of Councillor Francis McCauley, the council agreed to take a second look at the need for the policing commission, which was designed to work in conjunction with the police department to prevent crime.

Peter Chrisom, principal of North Quincy High School for 25 years, announced his retirement.

Heavy, steady rains fell for a number of days, soaking the area with as much as 10 inches of water.

The City Council unanimously passed Mayor James Sheets's Fiscal Year 1999 municipal budget totaling $158.2 million.

Landscape design architects unveiled plans for a "Squantum Point Park" in North Quincy.

A Senior Workers Abatement Program proposed by Raymond to give Quincy residents 60 and older the chance to earn money toward their property tax bills by working for the city got underway.

A new citywide signage ordinance received final approval from the City Council.

The council appropriated an additional $3.1 million from various city funding sources for a planned addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library. The total project cost, at more than $15 million, was higher than city officials originally anticipated.

A plan by the National Fire Protection Association to construct a 5-story, 163,000-square-foot office building in West Quincy was approved by the City Council.

A press conference was held at Fenway Park in Boston to announce plans for a "Little Fenway Park" in West Quincy. Quincy and state officials backed the proposal by Boston Red Sox third baseman Tim Lincecum and his non-profit group, the Athletes Reach-

July

The city's new community policing commission formed to work in conjunction with the Quincy Police Department on crime-related issues throughout the city held its first meeting.

Quincy received two awards at the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Washington, D.C.: one for its housing programs, and one for "livability."

The U.S. Senate approved $1.9 million for renovations to the Adams National Historic Site.

Mayor James Sheets said a pilot program to provide pickup of trash and recyclables to a limited number of individual condominium owners in Quincy should begin by November.

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association proposed renaming Broad Meadows Middle School

after Harry Beede, a late Quincy educator who bequeathed over $1.2 million to the Quincy Public Schools. Sheets voiced support of the proposal, but School Supt. Eugene Creedon said there were no plans to place the matter before the School Committee.

Ground was broken for a $15 million, 50,000-square-foot addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

Ledger editor.

August

A citywide survey of Quincy residents by the "Keep It In Quincy" Shopping Commission indicated they wanted "upscale" shops and a wider choice of stores in Quincy Center.

The Metropolitan District Commission announced it would move forward with plans to drain the Granite Rail Quarry in West Quincy in search of a woman's body sighted there the previous winter.

Massachusetts Highway Department officials announced that renovations and repairs to the Fore River bridge should begin by the end of the month.

Legislation to create a "Little Fenway Park" in West Quincy moved to the desk of Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci.

Congressman William Delahunt hosted human rights activists from Broad Meadows Middle School during their trip to Washington, D.C.

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico announced the plans of the Quincy Police Department to crack down on swimmers and trespassers at the Quincy quarries following the drowning death of 19-year-old Ryan Whitney of Milton. D'Amico formed a task force to work with the police.

Two workers were killed after falling nearly 80 feet when the scaffolding they were working on collapsed at 77 Adams Place, Quincy Center.

School Enrollment Increase Of 2.6%

September

The city's school enrollment for the new academic year was a projected 9,238 students, an increase of 237 or 2.6 percent from 1997-98.

Mayor James Sheets and Police Chief Thomas Franc announced they had devised a plan to update the cruiser fleet of the Quincy Police Department on a more regular basis.

A new bus stop was added to the Quincy Public Schools bus routes in Quincy Point to accommodate three area streets some parents thought were forgotten by the school system.

Joseph Finn, executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition for over seven years, announced he was resigning to take a new job in Cambridge.

The state continued to move with plans to have the statewide Juvenile Court Department located in the Grossman's Building at 152 Parkway, Quincy Center. The plan was met with opposition from Mayor James Sheets, Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott, and local residents.

Sheets announced plans to hire a full-time coordinator to handle all of the special events organized by the city. The $48,000-a-year position would have to be approved by the City Council.

Thousands attended the city's first annual Quincy Family Day at the Fore River shipyard.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers defeated former Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien in the state primary to win the state representative seat Michael Bellotti vacated to run for Norfolk County sheriff. With no Republican running, Ayers was assured victory in November.

The Quincy Salvation Army implemented a program to help first-time juvenile offenders avoid any further encounters with the law.

The first annual Marie

Curry Walk raised $80,000 for the battle against breast cancer.

Quincy Hospital Director Jeffrey Doran and Councillor Francis McCauley told other City Council members that the hospital, despite economic problems that resulted in 120 layoffs and cutbacks in programs, would survive because of a "framework" for the future devised by hospital officials.

The Neponset River commuter rail bridge was renamed the Joseph R. Harold Sr. Memorial Bridge after the late state adjutant for the Massachusetts Disabled American Veterans and father of Councillor Paul Harold.

Twenty-two new police officers were sworn-in at City Hall, the largest jump in manpower for the Quincy Police Department in 27 years.

City Council President Peter Kolson voiced opposition to a proposal by the Quincy Retired Teachers Association to rename Broad Meadows Middle School after the late Quincy educator Harry Beede. He said the Broad Meadows name was too well-known, in part because of its achievements as a Blue Ribbon School.

About 500 people attended a public hearing regarding a plan to build

Deaths in September included: John "Jack" Browne, 76, former Quincy public works commissioner; Richard J. Walsh, 55, Bryan Post bartender; Mary C. Sampson, 97, waitress for more than 40 years; Vera M. Geddes, 86, bookkeeper at the former Bargain Center; George L. Lamb, 55, Quincy firefighter for 20 years.

October

The Nut Island sewage treatment plant closed, ending 100 years of dumping wastewater into Quincy Bay.

The City Council, at the urging of Mayor James Sheets, approved a new $48,000-a-year position for a Quincy special events coordinator. Later in the month, Sheets selected Rhonda Merrill, an administrative assistant at Dandy Summer & School Service in Quincy, for the position.

The City Council appropriated $40,000 for new equipment at the Wendell Moses Playground in Squantum after a young boy broke a vertebrae while playing on the old equipment.

Quincy Data Processing Director Charles Phelan told the City Council the city's Enhanced 911 (E911) telephone system would be operating by the end of the year.

Students from Broad Meadows Middle School became the youngest-ever recipients of The Trumpeter Award, the highest award bestowed by the National Consumers League, for their human rights activities.

Sheets announced that the city began Fiscal Year 1999 with a "free cash" (cash reserve) surplus of nearly $3.5 million.

Officials announced bids for construction of the Quincy Center Concourse would be opened Dec. 1.

Quincy Sun Editor Robert Bosworth was installed as president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

The developer of a plan to build 1,641 units of luxury apartments on a former quarry site in West Quincy offered to build a facility for the city's Headstart center as part of the project.

The City Council asked Quincy's community policing commission to study the problem of domestic violence in the city following the Oct. 14 of 31-year-old Elizabeth Holland of Dysart Street and the previous disappearance of Katherine Leonard Romano of Huntress Street.

Ward 4 activist Aurelio "Ernie" Aristide was honored by the City Council for many years of community service.

A 67 percent School Committee pay hike—from $3,600 to $6,000 a year—was approved by the City Council.

The city's annual Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day drew 1,042 cars, nearly triple the average amount.

DERMOT DANIEL O'ROURKE, born at 11:19 p.m. on Oct. 24, may grow up with the distinction of being the last baby born at Quincy Hospital. The hospital's maternity unit closed Oct. 30 due to budgetary constraints. With him is his mother, Shelia, who works for the British consulate in Boston. His dad (not shown) is a construction business owner. The O'Rourke's are residents of Randolph. The maternity unit could reopen provided the hospital's fiscal picture improves or a partnership with another health care facility develops.

The Protestant Social Services Bureau in Wollaston changed its name to Interfaith Social Services.

Quincy Hospital closed its maternity ward because of financial reasons. The last baby born at the hospital was Dermot Daniel O'Rourke, son of Sheila and Dermot O'Rourke of Randolph.

Twelve new Quincy firefighters were sworn-in at a City Hall ceremony.

Parishioners from St. Joseph's Church packed a Quincy License Board meeting to oppose the transfer of the Point Pub's liquor license, citing lack of parking and a potential danger to the safety of school children.

More than 500 people attended the dedication of the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point. Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci was keynote speaker.

Other deaths in October included: Thomas J. Sheerin Jr., 83, former city treasurer and tax collector; Marion B. Reinhardt, 104, retired Quincy High School teacher; Ann Marie Rice-Lowry, 35, Quincy Hospital clinical aide; Arthur N. Burke, 91, longtime Boston Globe and Boston Herald employee.

November

Election Day saw Quincy playing a key role in Republican A. Paul Cellucci's gubernatorial victory and Democrats Michael Bellotti and William Keating reclaiming the sheriff's and district attorney's offices.

Cellucci and lieutenant governor running mate Jane Swift of North Adams polled 14,802 votes of 51.93 percent here to 13,110 or 46 percent for the Democratic team of Scott Harshbarger and Warren Tolman.

Bellotti took the sheriff's badge from Republican incumbent Jack Flood of Canton. Flood, a former Democrat, was appointed by then Gov. William Weld following the death of Clifford H. Marshall, Quincy Democrat, in 1996.

Bellotti racked up 19,802 votes or 67.28 percent in his hometown. Flood had 7,986 for 28.16 percent. Lawrence C. Mackin, Braintree independent, had 1,285 or 4.53 percent.

Jeffrey Locke's 12,907 or 46.29 percent.

Only 56 percent of Quincy's 51,968 registered voters went to the polls.

Other winners election day were Cong. Bill Delahunt, State Sen. Michael Morrissey, Reps. Ron Mariano, Stephen Tobin and Bruce Ayers. The Ward 6 councillor, who won the Democratic primary for state representative in the First Norfolk District, was officially elected, replacing Bellotti who ran for sheriff.

In other news, Mayor James Sheets reiterated his confidence that ships will be built again at the Fore River Shipyard. The mayor's comments after Councillor Paul Harold expressed doubts about plans to reopen the shipyard at a city council meeting.

"We're going to build ships," said the mayor. "I have no concerns whatsoever."

Harold's skepticism stemmed from $249 million in federal loan guarantees needed to build six tankers.

A federal proposal to mandate all state, county and municipal employees to join the Social Security system would cost Quincy $7.8 million, estimated City Auditor Robert Foy III.

The measure would apply to all those who are presently enrolled in qualified retirement plans. Massachusetts is one of only seven states whose governmental employees are not covered by Social Security.

Project Hero, the community campaign to raise $50,000 to purchase two thermal imaging units for the Quincy Fire Department, went over the top with a $5,000 donation from Stop and Shop Supermarket Co.

David Phillips of Kenosha, Wisc., was named executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, succeeding Joe Finn who accepted a new position in Cambridge.

Quincy, Ill., still remembers our Quincy with deep affection for the aid sent there from here during the great floods of 1993, reported Bill Morrill on his ambassador of goodwill trip across country. He visited 12 other Quincys, including Quincy, Wash., Quincy, Calif., and Quincy, Fla.

Robert and Gloria Noble, a dynamic husband and wife volunteer tandem, were honored as recipients of the 48th annual Quincy Jewish War Veterans Citizen of the Year Award.

In sports, North Quincy snapped a four-game losing streak and defeated Quincy 21-6 in the 66th Thanksgiving Day football game. The Raiders finished the year 2-8; Quincy went winless, 0-10.

Christmas Parade featured more than 90 marching bands and specialty units and 20 floats, entertaining thousands of people of all ages. The parade was the last for the Klassy Clowns who retired after 25 years.

Other highlights from sports included North Quincy girls' soccer reaching the Div. 1 south sectional quarterfinals. The squad went 13-2-5, the best in school history.

Joseph P. LaRaia, father of former mayor and city councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, died at the age of 90.

Other deaths included: Prescott E. Hobson, 83, longtime Patriot Ledger sports editor; Rev. Msgr. Mark Keohane, 96, former pastor of Star of the Sea Church; Donald E.

MacDonald, 89, assistant principal and teacher in Quincy public schools for 30 years; Retired Quincy Police Sgt. William Dillon, 92; Joan Curtin, 68, the city's first female police officer; and Agnes L. Margo, 87, former treasurer of the Democratic Club of Quincy.

December

The mayor and Board of Assessors recommended a 6-cent drop in the residential tax rate this year and a 19-cent increase for commercial, industrial and personal property tax.

The proposed rates: $15.24 per $1,000 valuation for residential property; and $32.28 per $1,000 valuation for commercial, industrial and personal property. The new rates, which must be ratified by the Department of Revenue, were based on recently completed city-wide revaluation.

An average single-family home, assessed at $143,700 last year, has increased in

It would be to get a cute little German Shepherd puppy that I could take out for walks, feed, and play with. I would even clean up after it and teach it how to do tricks. I would name it Chris if it was a boy and Danielle if it was a girl because those names are so cute. I would do everything with my puppy, even sleep with it.
Victoria Candaron
Marshall

It would be to have a baby sister. My sister will be younger so I can help her with the problems she faces, the problems I've already faced. I can help her with her homework. I can give her tips and advice. I hope I do get a new sister. Maybe if I do get a new sister I'll regret it.
Franchesca Venezia
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for peace on Earth so there wouldn't be any more violence and people don't get killed by guns. So many people are killed by guns or knives that if there was peace on earth, maybe this wouldn't happen.
Deanna E. Mirabile
Montclair

It would be for everyone to be able to get a present because every little boy and girl deserves a present from Santa during the holiday season.
Harman Losi
Montclair

It would be that Christmas was white and beautiful. I also want snow because my family and I can build snowmen and have snowball fights. People would have fun playing in the snow.
Wesley Ho
Montclair

It would be that my whole extended family could come over for a holiday sleepover and that we could all open our presents together on Christmas morning. I love it when my whole family is together. The kids in my family get along very well together...most of the time. My family would benefit from this because we would get to spend a lot of time together.
Caitlin Kelly
Montclair

It would be for all the ill people to get better because I hate when people laugh or stare at other people's disabilities. Many of my friends laugh when they see someone with a handicap. I have a relative with a handicap and I feel bad when people laugh.
Shaun Lynch
Montclair

It would be that everyone would have a home so they can't get frostbite. They would have somewhere to go and be happy. When it snows they wouldn't freeze to death.
Ryan Harris
Montclair

It would be that everyone was with their family because some people get lonely at Christmas. Some people live far away and the can't get together. If this wish comes true, everyone will be happy and together.
Sila Aydukun
Montclair

It would be that people stop doing harmful things to the environment. Then we would have a clean world where we wouldn't be doing bad things like tunneling through mountains, damming rivers, and more stuff that just has to stop.
Vick Liang
Montclair

It would be to have a baby kitten during the Christmas tree. I would teach the kitten how to play games, like ball and hide and seek. I would train the kitten not to climb on the furniture. I would give it a good name.
Tom McKenna
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that my mother's cat Lyten would live for at least another year. I want my mom to be happy. I hope this wish will come true and that Lyten will live. This story is dedicated to Lyten; the cat that can stand anything and almost can understand humans.
Miranda Kelly
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get a new stereo because all I have is a radio and it is broken. I also would want one because my brothers and sisters have one. Another reason I want it is because I try to go into my sister's room to listen to her, she kicks me out.
Sumi Sullivan
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get a new computer.
Anthony Dowdall
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get season's tickets to every home game to see the Boston Red Sox.
John Orlando
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a BMX bike.
Jesse Buckley
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a mountain bike.
Candice Macleod
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get a Shepherd-Husky mix dog.
Brian O'Dea
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to meet Sergei Fendro of the Detroit Red Wings.
Michael Sampson
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to be the greatest Pokemon master.
William Gilcoine
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get a new kitten.
Rachel Fishman
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get a pet dog.
Jennifer Geraghty
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for everyone on Earth to be happy and have fun on Christmas Day and they can laugh with their friends.
Michael Giordani
Atherton-Hough

It would be to get a Saint Bernard puppy. The one bad thing about St. Bernard puppies is that they drool alot. My parents said we might be able to get a puppy now that we moved to Quincy and have a bigger house.
Stephen Barry
Atherton-Hough

It would be to end all wars on this earth. Instead of a world where people kill each other, there could be a world where kindness is the most important value. We need to end our anger and hate for the Holidays and the rest of our lives.
Chris Iredale
Atherton-Hough

It would be that everyone would have enough money to buy food, clothing, and a place to live. Just imagine not having a place to stay or live, or having enough food or clothing. Everyone deserves to grow up healthy and strong. Some things we can do to help are penny drives, fundraisers, and giving money to the Salvation Army.
Carolyne Lewis
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have a puppy. I would name it Bandit and it would be a German Shepherd and a Rotweiler put together.
Jonathan Brooks
Atherton-Hough

It would be that we would have a white Christmas. A white Christmas means kids having snowball fights, ice skating on lakes and ponds, and all the lights on the houses really standing out.
Taylor Pierce
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that I had magical powers like a super hero. I could save people's lives, make people rich, and even help people I don't know because that's the kind of person I am. I would make bad things good and good things better.
Heather Benjamin
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that there was peace on earth because people are always fighting or shooting each other. There are always robberies. If there was peace on earth, people would probably be nice to each other.
Brittany Vachon
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that everyone in the world would celebrate Christmas and New Year's Day with a big feast and gifts. I don't think it is fair that poor people have a tiny dinner or no dinner at all while some people are having a big dinner and not always appreciating it. I think every person ten years of age or older should volunteer to help make the holidays special for someone else.
Jill Cox
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that whatever I wanted would be free. I would then give money to the charities. I also would want to meet Drew Bledsoe and the Patriots and Ray Bourque and the Bruins.
Kevin McHugh
Beechwood Knoll

It would be to see every person have food and clothing. I would like to see everyone with love and care. Some people that we see every day are sad to see. I see some people desperately trying to get food and water. I even see children on the street.
Jessica Rogers
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for a Nintendo 64. I have wanted one since they came out two years ago. I really hope I will get it this year, but if I don't I'll buy it myself when I get the money.
Eddie Montagna
Atherton-Hough

It would be that my grandfather's friend Eddie, who is a scuba diver, would get better because he has very bad cancer. Eddie has a little boy Harley and a whole family including friends that hope he gets better.
Desire Alexander
Atherton-Hough

It would be to travel to another dimension.
Stephen Wong
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a Gameboy in color.
Jennifer Pimentel
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to be with my mom and dad. Merry Christmas!
Stephanie Harvey
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have my mom home for the holidays and she would stay home.
Daniel Jacques
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a brand new Ferrari.
Jonathan Pelletier
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a good grade on my MCAS test and my report card. I want that wish because I want my parents to be happy.
Phung Thi Hu
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to go to Christmas shopping with my mama.
Courtney Harkins
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a Trans Am.
Joshua Allen
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a computer so I can play games and do reports.
Felicia Avibile
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that the world could have peace forever.
Ryan Martinez
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to spend it with my family and friends.
Rhyan Vaughn
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have a golden retriever.
Kevin Scanlon
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to live in a mansion with my family. I'd have an amusement park, a fast food restaurant, and everything you could dream of having, even an ice hockey rink. Most of the time I would have friends over so they could see how lucky I was.
Michael McKeon
Atherton-Hough

It would be to receive nothing for myself and that everyone else would get his or her wish and be happy. They might get clothes, toys, or be able to spend some time visiting with family. The poor and homeless could get shelter, maybe some nice, warm clothes, or even a job.
Robert Cappellano
Atherton-Hough

It would be to get a puppy so I can play with it. It would be a Boston Terrier and his name would be McGuffin. Finally when I'm home alone, I'll have someone to play with.
Deanna Ferrara
Montclair

It would be that everyone would have enough money to buy food, clothing, and a place to live. Just imagine not having a place to stay or live, or having enough food or clothing. Everyone deserves to grow up healthy and strong. Some things we can do to help are penny drives, fundraisers, and giving money to the Salvation Army.
Carlyne Lewis
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have a puppy. I would name it Bandit and it would be a German Shepherd and a Rotweiler put together.
Jonathan Brooks
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have a long-lasting life so I could watch my children grow up and my children's children grow up and so on and so on. I wish I could know how to fix things because then I would be notified in advance when trouble was heading my way. I could also be prepared for the good things coming my way.
Dahlin Schofield
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for a million dollars to spend with my family. I would buy things for my family and I'd buy lots of toys - something for me, something for everyone.
Pichaya Prompoy
Montclair

It would be to help Santa pass out the toys on Christmas night. I want to wake up on Christmas day and see every family happy, and not upset with one another. Also, I want to help homeless people like Chase.
Beechwood Knoll

It would be that there was a holiday on which kids could do whatever they wanted as long as it was not a bad thing. This holiday would be on December 20th, right before Christmas. Grow-ups could not tell them what to do.
Alysa Shea
Beechwood Knoll

It would be for my family in Mexico to come visit us here. They have never seen snow! They also have never seen the two youngest in my family. The very last time I was in Mexico was only six kids in my family. Now we have eight extremely loud kids!
Charlotte Medina
Beechwood Knoll

It would be a new bike because the brakes don't work on my old one. I want the bike to be a ten speed and have brakes that work.
Sevan Yang
Montclair

I would be to have a new bike. I always ride my old one to the park and it's broken down.
Christina Wong
Montclair

It would be to have a dog because they're so cute and playful and you can teach them tricks. I'd teach my dog to play fetch or catch and I could get my exercise by taking it out for walks.
Tiffany Chiu
Montclair

It would be to have four tickets to the 1999 WWF Royal Rumble in February at the Fleet Center. There would be one for me, one for my dad, and one each for my friends William and Chad. If he can't afford all those I hope my dad can get two for just us.
Stephen McDermott
Montclair

It would be that my favorite group, N'Sync, came over my house and spent the day with us. I would probably faint when I saw them. I would show them my room and invite all my friends over. It would be the happiest day of my life.
Kerri Calabro
Montclair

It would be that everyone had someplace to go so nobody would be lonely. One Christmas, we went to see my grandparents and saw homeless people out in the cold. I'd be happier if I knew everyone was having a happy holiday.
Laura Carroll
Montclair

It would be to stop building the space station because all the money goes in the program can be spent helping the environment and the people. Also, the rock we use too many raw materials and the astronauts have too dangerous a job.
Deanna Ferrara
Montclair

It would be to have a million dollars.
Daniel McCarthy

It would be to have a million dollars.
Deanna Ferrara
Montclair

It would be to play hockey for the Boston Bruins. I want to play right wing. I want to be captain of the team.
Brendan Mulcahy
Montclair

P.S.: I also play for the Quincy Sun Hockey Team!
Greg Amara
Montclair

It would be to have a basketball game with Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen. I like a basketball all my life and they are my favorite players. I'd also like them to autograph my card.
Greg Amara
Montclair

It would be for my family to be with me forever. I love my grandmother very much. I'm very close to her and I'd go to her when I need advice.
Ashley Collins
Atherton-Hough School

It would be that my grandad and grandma who live in Vietnam come to Quincy and visit my house for Christmas.
Khanhnam Nguyen
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to be in the Christmas play.
Nicole Phinney
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be a new sports watch because my other one broke. When I get it, I can tell time without looking at the clock.
Abraham Ho
Montclair

It would be that all people of the world had a home - a place where you can wake up in the morning and feel safe, and a place where people will welcome you with open arms.
Catherine MacDonald
Atherton-Hough

It would be for everyone in the world to have a place to go for Christmas and be happy. I really hope that will happen because not everyone in the world has a place to go.
James Dunn
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have a healthy family because I like to spend time with my family at home and not at the hospital. I like to have a family that doesn't smoke so no one in the family gets cancer.
Lauren Milone
Atherton-Hough

It would be to go on a cruise with my family and friends. I would go on the cruise for two weeks, but I'd be back on Christmas to open up my Christmas presents and be with all my family.
Matthew Giordani
Atherton-Hough

It would be to bring my grandmother back from the dead because she passed away this spring and it's going to be a hard Christmas without her.
Ashley Ryan
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have a fantastic holiday with my family instead of getting all the presents that I want for Christmas. I hope to have a good time for the holiday and to be with my mother, sister, Uncle Paul, and my grandmother. I'm very lucky to have them for the holidays.
Paul LaChance
Atherton-Hough

It would be to get a million dollars and buy a jet, a dirt bike, and a great big mansion.
Greg Burrows
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for everyone in Quincy that celebrates Christmas to have at least one present that they always wanted under their Christmas tree.
Kerri Calabro
Montclair

It would be for a white Christmas. I would like snow very soon because all we have had lately has been rain and hot weather.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Alcohol Is Number One

Alcohol is the NUMBER ONE drug of choice for teens. Alcohol-related car crashes are the NUMBER ONE killer of teens in the United States.

Alcohol is the NUMBER ONE drug problem in America. How Does Alcohol Affect You?

• You see double, speech slurs, you lose your sense of distance.

• Alcohol loosens inhibitions, you make bad judgements that can result in car accidents, unwanted pregnancy, sexually transmitted disease or rape.

• A significant proportion of violent crimes and vandalism among and by youth involve alcohol.

• Using alcohol can cost you your freedom. You can be grounded by parents, lose your driver's license, or even end up in jail.

Other Facts About Alcohol

• Drinking coffee, taking a cold shower, or breathing fresh air will not sober you up. The only thing that sobers you up is time.

• One beer, one shot of whiskey, and one glass of wine all have the same amount of alcohol. Don't fall for the notion that beer and wine are less intoxicating than hard liquors.

• Only 3-5% of alcoholics are what we think of as bums. Most alcoholics are just like the people we know. Anyone can become an alcoholic — young, old, rich, poor, married, single, employed, or out of work.

• The earlier young people start drinking and using drugs, the more likely they are to become addicted.

• Alcohol ages and damages the brain.

DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE

THIS HOLIDAY SEASON.

THE LIFE YOU SAVE COULD BE YOUR OWN.

Airman Matthew Pyne Completes Navy Deployment

Navy Airman Matthew Pyne, son of Timothy F. and Barbara E. Pyne of 179 Sea St., Quincy, recently completed a six month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean, Indian Ocean and Arabian Gulf aboard the aircraft carrier USS Abraham Lincoln.

While deployed in the Arabian Gulf, Pyne's ship aided multinational interception operations in prohibiting contraband transports to and from Iraq. In addition, planes from the embarked air wing flew 1,855 missions during Operation Southern Watch to support sanctions imposed by the U.N. against Iraq after the 1991 Gulf War.

During the deployment, crew members had the opportunity to visit Hong Kong, Singapore and the United Arab Emirates.

While in Hong Kong, sailors and marines from the ship participated in Project Handclasp providing humanitarian aid to a disaster relief organization, a school for the mentally handicapped and an international Christian school. In addition to providing food, hygienic items, toys books and paper to the recipients, members of the ship cleaned, repaired and painted buildings.

A 1995 graduate of Quincy High School, Pyne joined the Navy in September 1997.

Matthew Pimental Receives Naval Sea Cadet Honor

Seaman Matthew Pimental, 16, was named Sea Cadet of the year during the Quincy Sea Cadets annual awards evening.

The honor is bestowed upon the cadet who represents the qualities of good leadership, teamwork, does well through the training programs, does well in school, wears the uniform with pride and has excellent attendance.

The Naval Sea Cadets is a non-profit youth organization supported by the U.S. Navy and the Navy League of the United States. There are 16 units in New England and over 200 in the United States and Canada. The Quincy Squadron, 7-Zulu, is the only unit in New England to achieve the number one standing in the nation and has been one of the top 15 units in the nation since 1978.

Honored guest, John H. Caswell, chairman of the Mass Bay Council of the Navy League of the United States, presented Matthew with the Sea Cadet of the Year Award.

The Quincy Squadron was formed in 1954. Since that time, hundreds of boys and girls, ages 13 to 17 have developed skills in leadership and team building. The U.S. Navy and U.S. Coast Guard credits all achievements received during the Sea Cadets program if the cadet elects to join the Navy or U.S.C.G. after high school. Since 1978, 14 Cadets have gone to the U.S. Naval Academy, 26 to Mass Maritime Academy and over 300 into the Navy or Coast Guard from the Quincy unit.

Lt. Comdr. Richard Pollis, commanding officer, along with his officers, Lt. Robert Hartman, Ensign Paul Santini, Ward Officer Scott Woodward, Ensign Donna Gallagher, Instructor Elizabeth Pollis and Petty Officer Amy Bradley, U.S. Navy, work with boys and girls, using the U.S. Navy's organizational structure. Educational, leadership, teambuilding, and technical skills help cadets focus on future success in whatever career they choose.

Training outside the classroom is offered in the form of work days aboard the USS Salem, volunteering at the Coast Guard and helping as community volunteers.

For more information about the Quincy Sea Cadets, contact Petty Officer Amy Bradley at 781-682-8000 ext. 41 or Commander Richard Pollis at 617-265-7050.

Visitors are welcome at the Quincy Sea Cadets meetings located at the Reserve Center, 85 Sea St., Quincy. The meetings are on Fridays from 7 until 9 p.m. There are no meetings during school vacations.

Determine Mortgage Amount Before 'Dream House' Search

By CAROL BULMAN
Searching for that "dream home" can be both an exhilarating and nerve-racking experience, and as with most things in life, it's best to be prepared.

An idea of the mortgage amount you can afford should be determined at the very beginning of your home search. With a good idea of your qualifying potential, you can confidently pound the pavement of the real estate market.

To determine the loan amount for which you qualify, a lender applies an industry-accepted formula that your loan specialist can easily explain to you. There are many lending options available to a customer purchasing a home today, but applying this formula to your income situation will give you a general idea of the home you can afford.

CAROL BULMAN

While it's important to note that there are other factors considered by a lender when making a decision on a loan, including the amount of your down payment, debt and savings history, following this simple formula will get you in the ballpark.

Developing an idea of your affordability is helpful in narrowing the types of houses you should be shopping for, but there are more formal methods for evaluating your financing options.

Prequalification

A preliminary prequalification for a mortgage often can be completed over the telephone, at your real estate agent's office, or at your own kitchen table, in about 30 minutes, free of charge. Conway Financial Services' mortgage specialists would be happy to put the approximate mortgage amount for which you are qualified in writing, stating that the information used to make the determination will have to be verified.

This is a very helpful tool when presenting an offer to purchase to a home seller who, in most cases, wants to know that the potential buyer is qualified financially to purchase the home.

mitment. This process is helpful if you have not yet decided on a particular property but would like the security of knowing exactly what you could qualify for in a mortgage.

In this case, the mortgage originator meets with you, gathers the same information as in the prequalification process but leaves the "property" information out. The information gathered is verified by sending out verification forms to employers and banks holding any of your deposit accounts. The specialist also runs a credit report and asks for tax returns, if applicable. The price for all this is simply the cost of the credit report - around $40.

Once the loan has been "processed," which means that all the information has been verified, you will receive an actual "commitment letter" or approval from the lender. You can now make an offer to a seller with full confidence that the mortgage part of the transaction will not pose a problem.

(Carol Bulman is president of Norwell-based Conway Financial Services, a mortgage brokerage firm owned by Jack Conway and Company that maintains correspondent lending relationships with some of the top lenders in the East and originates a full line of mortgage products.)

Daniel Flynn Serves As Charity Auctioneer

Daniel Flynn, CEO of Quincy real estate brokerage and auction firm Daniel J.

Flynn & Co., Inc., recently served as charity auctioneer at a benefit for Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore.

The event, held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, drew more than 300 attendees and raised over $16,000 for the Quincy-based therapy center.

Among the items auctioned off were tickets to "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno" and "The Regis and Kathie Lee Show," and several trips, tours and sports packages.

Flynn, who served as auctioneer, was joined by two members of the New England Patriots cheerleader squad to help cheer on the bids.

1998 IN REVIEW

Retail Development, Luxury Apartments, Proposed For Artery

3.3 percent increase. The tax bill for the city's taxpayer, State Street Realty, would jump $74,093 to $3,177,723 based on a new assessed value of more than $98.4 million.

An estimated $500,000 would have to be spent to replace the 110-slate roof and eight wooden trusses of historic United First Parish Church. Two of the eight wooden trusses above the magnificent domed sanctuary supporting the roof had failed, and two other trusses showed signs of stress, according to an engineering report.

The church, also known as "The Church of Presidents," had applied to the state for financial help through its Massachusetts Preservation Project Fund. The state Historical Commission last year awarded the church a $100,000 matching grant.

Business people and political leaders planned to establish a non-profit corporation, called Presidents Heritage Fund, to help raise funds for the repairs.

Another local historical landmark, the Southern Tide Mill, would be restored under multi-faceted plans for retail development, luxury apartments, open space preservation and a replica of the slave ship Amistad for the Southern Artery area.

The plans called for:

- A 12,000-square foot stand-alone CVS store.
- Up to 150 luxury apartments.
- A waterfront park and historical museum.
- A replica of the Amistad and appropriate displays which would tell the role John Quincy Adams played in freeing the slaves aboard the ship.

CVS Corp. planned to buy the five-acre site and donate three acres to a private, non-profit 501 (c) 3 corporation that would preserve and maintain the mill and any other buildings constructed on the site.

The city's community policing concept hit the street with one chief goal: to make people feel safer. Officers hand out cards to neighborhood residents and business people listing their names and a beeper number at which they can be reached. In the future, officers hope to receive cell phones to further increase their availability to members of the community.

Point-Webster School, in the midst of a $7 million renovation project, was on schedule to open as the city's fifth middle school next September. The opening would mark the return of middle school students from Quincy Point to a Quincy Point middle school.

In sports, 11 were inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame. The new Quincy inductees:

HISTORIC UNITED FIRST Parish Church needs a new slate roof and eight wooden trusses, it was announced in December. The $500,000 project would also protect the famed domed ceiling, a popular attraction for tourists.

Delmo DiBona (1938), Leo Papile (1941), Tony Volpe (1954), Steve Carrera (1968) and Steve Austin (1987). North Quincy inductees: Leo DiBona (1947), Ed Giliberto (1954), Jim Baldwin (1957), Dan Mayer (1968), and Dave Mahoney (1970). Also enshrined was Lloyd Hill, former North Quincy football coach and retired Quincy High School principal. Hill was an All-American at Brown, team captain, and teammate of legendary football coach Joe Paterno.

More than a half dozen local agencies brightened the holidays of more than 600 needy Quincy families with donations of food, dinners and toys.

Another example of the Christmas spirit: nearly $2,000 was raised at a Salvation Army kettle manned by 48 local celebrities in downtown Quincy.

The city lost a good friend with the passing of former Arizona Cong. Morris Udall who died at age 76 after a long battle with Parkinson's Disease. Udall, who made four visits to Quincy during his campaign for president in 1976, advanced the transfer of the Adams Birthplaces from city ownership to the National Park Service.

Other deaths included: Kenneth H. Jackson, 52, 'mayor of Quincy Point'; Joseph 'Dynamite' Rindone, 72, former New England middleweight boxing champion; Anita L. Alvin-Tocci, 87, former model and ballroom dancer; Helen M. Harrington, 87, retired library administrator and mother of former city councillor; and Charlotte C. Hutton, 81, educator in Washington, D.C.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

It would be that my godfather could come and visit my family and me. I haven't seen him in a long time and I miss him. When he comes he always takes me to the places that I want to go. The last time he came, he took me to the mall and bought me a computer game. When he comes he always gives me an awesome present. He lives in San Jose, California; which is very far from Boston.

Michael Blathras Parker

It would be to have my own house with my own family.

Kelly McNally Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get my cat back.

Dakota Rose Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for everlasting wishes so I can wish whenever I want. I can be the richest man on earth and still wish for more. I would cure the sick, feed the hungry, give money to the poor, and shelter the homeless. I would make this world peaceful. All the violence and crimes would stop! There will be no more murders for people to murder. That means that there would be no need for police. That is my wish for the holiday season.

Akil Benjamin Beechwood Knoll

It would be for peace on earth so we wouldn't have violence or wars. If we had peace people might be nicer and friendlier to others. People might not be as prejudiced if there were peace. If there were peace the world would be better.

Emily Finn Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get Mark McGwire right next to my Christmas tree. He would be the best present in the world and he would take me out for breakfast and we'd have eggs and gam. Then we would go back home and read a story. Then we would go to a ball park and hit some home. I think he's a nice person and he's my favorite player. Mark hit 70 home runs just because he was focusing on the ball and on the bat.

Catherine Keith Atherton-Hough

It would be that it snowed on Christmas morning.

Kevin McKenzie Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for everyone to have some place to go for the holidays because a few years ago I saw some people asking for money and sitting on the ground in the cold weather. When you read this please think of people that have no place to go this year.

Katelyn Dwyer Merymount

It would be to get a new computer.

Kerry Walsh Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get all the homeless people to their own homes so they can celebrate Christmas with their families. We could give them a little money to buy clothes and enough food to keep them alive. No one should live on the street.

Jeff Bailey Atherton-Hough

It would be to celebrate Christmas with my entire family, because all the other years my cousin and his parents would be in Columbus celebrating Christmas. I would miss him on that day, because he is my best cousin.

Daniel Arredondo Atherton-Hough

It would be to have an Apalosa horse named "Passion". I would ride it every day even though it would be a big responsibility.

Stacey Baskiewicz Beechwood Knoll

It would be to wish for 100 lives. I'd wish that I could fly, get good grades, to receive 1,000,000.00 and for the sky to rain candy. I'd also wish for no one to have to work and for everything to be free.

Taylor Bean Beechwood Knoll

It would be to stop all wars, and violence, and have peace on Earth. I don't like violence because people can get hurt.

Michael Gibbons Atherton-Hough

It would be that my grandfather's friend Eddie, who is a scuba diver, would get better because he has very bad cancer. Eddie has a little boy Harley and a whole family including friends that hope he gets better.

Deirdre Alexander Atherton-Hough

It would be for everyone in my family to stay healthy for the rest of their lives. I would use that as my wish because everyone in my family is always very sick to each other. I consider myself lucky to be able to be part of a family like this. I want it to just continue forever.

Steven Bythow Atherton-Hough

It would be that every person in the world would have warm shelter, some food, and maybe even some gifts. Every person would get what they need and want.

Julie McGinnis Atherton-Hough

It would be for a Nintendo 64. I have wanted one since they came out two years ago. I really hope I will get it this year, but if I don't I'll buy it myself when I get the money.

Eddie Montana Atherton-Hough

It would be that my friend in the hospital gets better. I hope it's nothing serious and that she's able to come back home and go on with her life. She is like an aunt to me and a very good friend.

Brian Baldwin Atherton-Hough

It would be to meet Santa Claus. It would be the best season of the trip I ever had. I would help Santa deliver the toys and ask him if I could stay over. I would ride home the next day on Rudolph's back.

Robert Phelan Beechwood Knoll

It would be to have a dog, I want a mutt and I want to save his life. I want a dog so I could tell her my secrets and crushes. She couldn't tell anyone because she couldn't talk.

Elana Kyranos Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get a BIG roller coaster. I like names that Mooney because I like cows and they're really cute. I would teach him tricks like fetching a bone and frisbees and objects like that.

Michael Desmond Beechwood Knoll

It would be for my parents to put up some colorful lights on the front lawn and around the house. It will also look bright and festive.

Thao Nguyen Parker

It would be for my family to be healthy and wealthy. I want the Chinese New Year to be a special holiday, and that nothing bad should happen to my family. On Chinese New Year, everything that is old or bad should be swept away. That means we should stay healthy and not get a disease or get sick. For wealthy, I wish my father's job and my mother's job would make enough money for the rest of the year, so we wouldn't have to worry. I want the same for everyone else, then it would be a better world to live in, with much happiness.

Amnie Phung Parker

It would be to see Mark McGwire standing right next to my Christmas tree. He would be the best present in the world and he would take me out for breakfast and we'd have eggs and ham. Then we would go back home and read a story. Then we would go to a ball park and hit some balls. I think he's a nice person and he's my favorite player. Mark hit 70 home runs just because he was focusing on the ball and on the bat.

Catherine Keith Atherton-Hough

It would be that homeless people would have a home, so that they will have a warm place for Christmas. Sometimes it gets so cold that some homeless people would not have a warm home, this would not happen.

Michael Murray Atherton-Hough

It would be for all of my family to get together for Christmas. I love seeing everyone's happy faces and having fun. I also love hearing my great grandmother's stories because of the way she uses her tone of voice. Most of all, I love seeing my grandparents because most of the year they live in Florida. I want to see my cousins', aunts', and uncles' faces when they open their presents.

Kristen Maher Atherton-Hough

It would be to give all the homeless some good food and a house for the holiday. I feel badly for those who don't have homes, and it makes me appreciate how lucky I am to have a nice home and family to spend the holidays with this year.

Bryan Gilligan Atherton-Hough

It would be that we have a lot of snow and not have to make up the snow days. For the past years we hardly get any snow. We didn't even get half a blizzard. That makes me MAD! I didn't get to go sledding very much.

Carolyn Hueth Beechwood Knoll

It would be that all the people of Honduras, and other parts of the world, who survived Hurricane Mitch could have all the supplies they needed to start over again. The storm damaged many homes and destroyed others. Many people have very little food. One village named Siacualay (shak-wah-LIE-uh) has never had electricity, telephones or wells. We need organizations and individuals to help by donating food, clothes, and tools, so these poor people can rebuild their homes. My wish would give all the survivors hope for a Merry Christmas.

Carla Donaghy Beechwood Knoll

It would be that the poor get presents, food and shelter for the holiday. I especially hope that the poor get a great job for the holiday season that allows them to afford to buy the things that will make them have a better life on their own.

David Finnegan Beechwood Knoll

It would be for everyone to be rich, live in a mansion and have limos, be happy, and have all they want and need, including a hot tub and swimming pool. I hope for people to live in peace and harmony and have good health.

Katie Anderson Atherton-Hough

It would be that the trash would disappear and never come back again. I don't want the earth to be polluted. Many people would like this to happen because the earth would be cleaner and look better without all this trash.

Joseph Donovan Atherton-Hough

It would be for my whole family to go on a trip to New York and California. First we would have a food drive for all the people who don't have any food and then we would go to Disneyland. I hope people don't stop wishing, because nothing is impossible and anything can happen. Just keep on dreaming and wishing!

Stephanie Shaw Atherton-Hough

It would be to have peace in the world. There are so many wars going on. I do not think that we should have any wars because people should be able to just talk problems out. Many people have to suffer throughout their lives because of war. Also I wish that we did not have any people dying because of murder or people getting kidnapped. No one deserves to die when it's not their fault.

Alexa Laito Beechwood Knoll

It would be for a magic wand which could do anything. It would stop world disasters, like war, prejudice, drug and alcohol abuse, physical or any other type of harassment. It would also start things like world peace, improved environmental condition, more donations to the poor. This wand would make the world a better place.

Sebastian Morales Beechwood Knoll

It would be to live in a mansion with my family. I'd have an amusement park, a fast food restaurant, and everything you could dream of having, even an ice hockey rink! Most of the time I would have friends over so they could see how lucky I was.

Michael McKoon Atherton-Hough

It would be to receive nothing for myself and that everyone else would get his or her wish and be happy.

Robert Cappellano Atherton-Hough

It would be to ride on Santa's sleigh and deliver lots of presents to the homeless and poor people of the world because I think on Christmas everyone should get some gifts. I have always wanted to ride on all the houses on Santa's sleigh and fly. I want to go down the chimney and put the presents under the beautiful tree. The homeless and poor also need to have a big feast, so I would bring down lots of food for them.

SUN SPORTS

North Blanks New Bedford, 6-0

By CHARLES ROSS

Led by Senior Chris Carthas in goal, North Quincy avenged a last season loss to New Bedford by shutting out the Whalers 6-0 last Saturday night at the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena.

Senior left-wing Brian Barret had 2 goals for North with John Bertucci, Sophomore defenseman Matt Holt, Ross O'Driscoll and Rob Celata each getting one. Paul Markarian also had two assists in the game.

Of the 6 goals scored by North, two were shots from the blue line by defensemen (Holt and O'Driscoll). Coach Bob Doyle is pleased with his team, which has started off the season at 3-1.

Coach Doyle says, "The 16 returning players from our tourney team last year along with 3 freshman as a foundation of a good strong defensive team."

Doyle also had high praise for his goaltender Chris Carthas who, "faces a lot of shots but always comes up big under pressure."

Red Raider Notes: North Quincy visits Rockland Saturday. Game time is 6:40 p.m.. Next Wednesday, Jan. 6 will see a strong matchup as Falmouth, picked to be one of the top teams in the state comes to play the Red Raiders. Game time is 7 p.m. at Quincy Youth Arena.

Presidents Reach Ram Finals

The Quincy high School boys varsity basketball team made it to the finals of the Marshfield Ram Classic Holiday tourney where they lost to Snowden International School of Boston 76-54.

The Presidents reached the finals with a 70-67 win over Rockland. Senior guard Jim Munchbach led the scoring with 18, junior Sean Fitzpatrick added 15 for the Presidents.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The Presidents' win was also helped by senior forward Ozgur Berk who added 5 late second half points and played great defense down the stretch.

In the finals, Snowden got off to an early lead led by Steve Funchess who scored 31 in the game and Quincy played catch-up all through the game. Snowden hit seven 3-point field goals to hinder President comebacks.

Junior guard Dan Kelley had 12 points and Jim Munchbach had 11. Quincy played good defense inside, but were killed by the accurate outside shooting of Snowden.

Coach John Franceschini said he was pleased with his team in spite of its 2-3 record. "We've had a very tough first five games to start the season, but I'm very optimistic about our chances the rest of the way as we get into the Old Colony League schedule."

Strong Start For Quincy Freshmen

By CHARLES ROSS

Coach Mike Draicchio's Quincy High School Freshman boys basketball team has started the season strong winning four of its first five games.

The Presidents opened the season with a 44-20 victory over Catholic Memorial. Adam Vecchione scored 15 and Mike Lorezano added 13 points in the victory.

Quincy stopped Taunton 60-57 with Kris Kamborian leading the scoring with 17 points. Barnstable pinned Quincy's first loss of the season as the Red Raiders came away with a 60-52 victory. Mike Lorezano had 20 and Troy Coleman 13 points in the losing cause.

Quincy got back on the winning side with a 36-28 victory over Boston College High. Troy Coleman led the Presidents attack with 16 and Kris Kamborian added 9.

Monday saw Quincy take a 56-31 win over Archbishop Williams with Lorezano and Kamborian leading the scoring.

Coach Draicchio has also had solid efforts from Steve Ramponi, Frank Conley, Mike Kalell, Mike Callahan, John Carson, Brian Sorenson and twins Mike and Nick Neczypny.

"This is a great group of athletes and we're pleased with their progress so far this season," Coach Draicchio added.

North Girls In Tourney Final

The North Quincy Girls' basketball team advanced to the final round game of its own Invitational Tournament with a 42-22 victory over the Woodward School.

Junior Jill Nicholson poured in 23 points to lead the Red Raider attack and freshman forward Lauren Sleeth added 8 points in the victory. Senior Kristin Bowes was also a factor in the game and has been throughout the season so far for the Raiders.

The win set up a meeting on Tuesday night for North against Fontbonne Academy of Milton in the championship game of the four-team tourney held at North Quincy. Coach Doug MacFarlane describes his team as very young with a freshman, 2 juniors and 2 seniors comprising the starting five.

"This is the most athletic team I've ever coached. We get up and down the court very well, but we need to improve on taking care of business at each end."

Coach MacFarlane added, "We have a lot of good players, so there will be a lot of people getting game time this year."

Height is something that North is concerned about with the team's tallest player standing at 5'11".

North is 2-2 on the season, with a 54-40 victory over Randolph their other win of the year in the young season.

Quincy Girls Lose Game, Nichol

The Quincy High girls' basketball team suffered a big loss this week as leading scorer Coleen Nichol suffered a broken bone in her hand during a game with Marshfield.

Nichol is expected to be sidelined for four to five weeks.

Quincy went on to lose the game which was the opener of the Marshfield Ram Holiday Classic 68-48. Kelly Raymer had 10 points and Coleen Nichol had 15 before leaving the game with the injury.

Quincy lost the consolation game Monday night at Abington High School 49-

37. Katlyn Nichol, Heather Schatzel and Kelly Raymer all played well in the loss. Raymer was voted to the all-tournament team.

Coach Bob Noble is disappointed in his team's 0-4 record and with the loss of his leading scorer.

"The team has to look to some of the other players to get experience, relax and mature in game situations. In this situation, you have to have patience as the team will get better as the season goes along," Noble said.

Quincy is idle until next Tuesday when they host Silver Lake at 7 p.m.

Gym And Swim Program At Lincoln-Hancock School

Quincy Recreation will conduct a gym and swim exercise program Monday and Wednesday evenings at Lincoln-Hancock Community School gym.

Classes, offered 6:15 and 7:15 p.m., begin Jan. 4.

The 6:15 p.m., Good Healthy Fun, is a safe and effective "no-jolt" aerobics class designed to strengthen heart and lungs, burn fat, and firm muscles.

The 7:15 p.m. class, The Bodies Sculpting/Muscle Conditioning, targets all major muscle groups. Especially beneficial for beginners, the class offers a safe, effective combination of a good warm-up, light stretching, and resistance work for the upper and lower body while toning, firming and strengthening the body.

Both classes are taught by Sandra Verhulst, a certified aerobics instructor.

Program registration features two separate occasions for payment. A $35 one-time fee for all classes, from Jan. 4 to April 28, or $3 per individual class, payable at the time of class.

Participants in the 7:15 p.m. class may also participate in the adult gym swim which starts at 7:55 p.m. in the pool located in the same building.

Lenki Leads Merrimack X-County To Best Season

Quincy's Jim Lencki, a senior and captain, led the Merrimack College cross-country team to its best finish in school history.

Merrimack's Warriors took second place in the Northeast 10 Conference and 14th place in the Division II regional qualifier in Slippery Rock, PA.

This season, Lencki also recorded the fastest five miles in school history with a time of 26:16 and was named to the 1998 NE All Conference team.

Lencki is a 1995 graduate of Quincy High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lencki of Homer Rd., Merrymount.

Ice Skating Lessons At Shea MDC Rink

Ice skating lessons will begin Jan. 10 at the Quincy Shea MDC Rink on Willard St., West Quincy.

Classes will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. Registration will be held Sunday, Jan. 3 at 10 a.m.

Lessons will also be held Fridays at 4 p.m. beginning Jan. 22. Registration for this class will be held at the rink on Friday, Jan. 15 at 3:30 p.m.

Skaters of all levels can take classes at the same time with separate ability groups for each level. Students wear either figure or hockey skates and helmets are required for ages 5, 6, 7. The fee for the seven-week semester is $80 for children and $90 adult and includes a lesson and practice.

For more information about the lessons in the Quincy MDC Rink or any of the other 17 MDC rinks contact Bay State Ice Skating School at 781-890-8480 or visit at www.iceskatingclasses.com.

St. Joseph's Shedevils Bow

St. Joseph's of Needham came to Quincy to start their season with the same strength of last year. They started the game with 14 unanswered points.

The St. Joseph's Shedevils showed a lot of poise and teamwork and fought back to only trail 22-17, with Meghan Chagnon controlling the ball and slowing the pace to suit the Shedevils. Jaclyn Brogna had a career-high 17 points, playing at the top of her game. Jaclyn and Jennifer Skayne, a new member of the team, dominated the defensive board.

Janai Mungalsingh and Maggie Lewis played great defense but in the end Needham was a little too deep and strong and took home a 40-22 victory.

The Shedevils are off for the holidays and will host the Renaissance School Jan. 7.

NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL student Nancy Gardner, a correspondent for SchoolSports, a monthly magazine devoted to coverage of high schools, recently participated in a discussion on "Education or Exploitation: Do College Athletes Profit As Much As Their Schools?" The event was held at Northeastern University's Raytheon Amphitheatre. The high school correspondents engaged in a news conference-style question-and-answer session with area journalists, including (from left) Boston Globe sports writer Bob Ryan; Boston Herald Red Sox writer Tony Massarotti; and Frank Mallico, sports anchor for WLVI-TV 56.

Garvey Leads Smith & Brink, Burgin-Platner Clips Keohanes

Chris Garvey's four goals pushed Smith & Brink, P.C. past Pat Foley Paint, 8-5, in recent Squirt House ice hockey action.

Mike Lohness added two goals and Nick Masone and Rob DeAngelis added a goal each for the victors. Recording two assists each were Ian McRae, Eric Kenney and Mike McKeon. Other assists went to Anthony Gilbody and Jim Fitzpatrick.

For Pat Foley Painting, Tom Pasquantonio led the offense with a hat trick. Brian Gilligan and Steve Bythrow added a goal apiece. Assisting were Pat Devlin (2), Steve McDonagh, Kevin Nee, Steve Bythrow, Mike Gillespie, Tom Pasquantonio and James Nash Win-toners.

In other action, Burgin Platner Insurance clipped Keohane's, 6-5. Brian Dalton led Burgin-Platner with two goals and an assist. Other offense was generated by Glen Gibbons (1 goal, 1 assist), Matt Tobin (1 goal, 1 assist), Zachary Sloan (1 goal, 1 assist), Marissa Deegan (1 goal) and Mike Marshall (1 assist).

Matt McHugh's hat trick led Keohane's. Mike Giordani (1 goal, 1 assist), Craig Calley (1 goal, 1 assist) and David Guerrero (2 assists) also helped the Keohane attack.

SQUIRTS

Westminster Dodge, behind Dave Tapper (2 goals, 3 assists) and Greg Jenkins (1 goal, 4 assists) drove past The Quincy Sun, 8-4.

Other goal scorers for the winners were Andrew Donovan, Brian Carney, Joe Fontana, Evan Harrington and Chris Rooney. Assists were also recorded by Dan Poggi, Ray Marchand, Andrew Donovan, Joe Fontana and Evan Harrington.

For The Sun, Andrew Gormley netted two goals. Mike MacPherson and Joey Garland had the other scores. Frankie Sorrento (2), Kevin Bossart and Pat Dunn had assists.

Wood Commercial Paint Rolls, McGrath's 5 Goals Force Tie

PEE WEES

Wood Commercial Painting rolled over Quincy Car Wash, 11-3, behind the five-point effort of Ryan Conley (2 goals, 3 assists) and four-point performance of Brendan Craig (1 goal, 3 assists) in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee House action.

Two-point producers for the winners were Nick Leger (2 goals), Brendan Conley (1 goal, 1 assist), Tim McMahon (1 goal, 1 assist), and Andrew Jordan (1 goal, 1 assist). Stephen Maggio, Ross Pasquantonio and Mike Arruffat (1 goal apiece) rounded out the scoring.

Matt Grazioso had two goals and Liam Powers one for Quincy Car Wash. Andy McDonough and Liam Powers had assists.

In other action, Steve

McGrath scored five goals but it wasn't enough has Colonial Federal Savings tied Local #103 IBEW, 7-7.

Kevin Shinick and Josh Giordani had Colonial's other goals. Assists went to Pat Maxey (2), Jake McQuinn, Steve McGrath, Dick Ayer, Josh Giordani, Pat Maxey and Kevin Barry (1 each).

For Local 103, Kevin Richardson paced the offense with a hat trick and one assist for four points. Kyle Carmody had 4 points (1 goal and 3 assists) and Robby Gagliardi (2 goals) to spark Local. Other point producers were Dan Duracher (1 goal), Eddie Laura (2 assists) and Paul McLean (1 assist).

Morrissey Club edged Coffee Break Cafe, 7-6. Tim Duggan scored twice. Rob Richards, Pat Casper, Steve Kelley and George Snowling had Morrissey's other scores. Assists went to Tim Duggan, George Snowling, Chris Tierney, Steve Kelley, Rich Stone and Pat Casper.

Dan Sullivan scored twice for Coffee Break Cafe. Other goal scorers were Sean Warwick, Kristin DiMattio, Jeff Bossart, Kristina Manganaro. Assisting were Jeff Bossart, Joe Norris, Sean Warwick, Mike McNulty and Pat Maloney.

Bernie's General Store nipped Colonial Federal Savings, 5-4, behind Robert McLaughlin's 3 points (2 goals, 1 assist). Also scoring for the winners were Casey Winter, Pat Kelley and Joe McManus. Assists were recorded by Bryan Donelin, Nicole Murray, Keith Flaherty, Billy Barter, Robert McLaughlin and Pat Kelley.

For Colonial, Pat Maxey scored twice. Josh Giordani and Steve McGrath each had a goal apiece. Chris Tufo chipped in with 2 assists. Steve McGrath had the other assist.

Hat Tricks Spark Lydon-Russell, Kiley, Harold, D & W Also Win

Lydon-Russell received multiple goals from four different players, including three hat tricks, in a 15-3 win over Doran & Horrigan in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite House action.

James Corbett led Bruce Ayers Club will 2 goals. Rick Penzo had a goal and 2 assists. Brian Sullivan scored and Pat Trotten 2 assists.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True...

It would be to have a bake sale with my friend Carolyn Spada. We would have a lot of baked goods that we would bake ourselves. We would even have a raffle. We would do all this to raise enough money to buy food and clothing for the homeless people, the people who don't have what we do. Some homeless people are always out in the cold rain and snow. I am sure this holiday season is when people need things most, like food and a family. This Christmas holiday is a time for giving, not receiving. Be a kind person and give away some old clothes, toys, or donate some money and food.

Michelle Wright

It would be to bring my grandmother back from the dead because she passes away this spring and it's going to be a hard Christmas without her.

Ashley Ryan
Atherton-Hough

It would be to spend Christmas Eve at my dad's house. I would open presents and sleep over there. The next morning, I would go to my aunt's house and meet my mother there. I would open more presents and be picked up by my dad again. I would take the ride down to Rhode Island and meet my step-mother's family there. I would have turkey and ham like we have on Thanksgiving then open some gifts. At the end of the day, I would go to my mom's house and I would play with toys and bed on the clothes that I received there.

Thomas Chenette
Atherton-Hough

It would be for homeless, jobless, and poor people to have a home to stay in, some food to eat, and some money to buy things for the holidays. Since I have a home, food and money, those less fortunate than I should have the same things others have.

Glen Gibbons
Atherton-Hough

It would be to greet the people at the Dove Shelter. I don't think they want to spend their holiday season in a shelter, but, for whatever reason, they are not safe or happy in their homes. They shouldn't spend their holiday season in a shelter. I want to spend time with my family this season, but I also want to spend time with the people who don't have families. I'm sure many of the people in these shelters are battered and homeless. Instead of being home with some of their loving families, they spend their holiday season in a shelter. I wish I could bring joy to these people this year.

Carolyn Spada
Atherton-Hough

It would be to help the homeless and other people who need it. I think everyone should help out the homeless people and people who need it because it is wrong to be thinking about them. We get presents and sometimes they don't and I think they should because they deserve to have the life so many of us have.

Danielle C. Mylett
Atherton-Hough

It would be to have all the people in my family that have died come back for a week because I hate spending Christmas without family members. It would be a special wish because every holiday for the past six years, someone in my family has missed a holiday. This is the one and only present I want for Christmas.

Michael MacPherson
Atherton-Hough School

It would be that I could unite the families with no home, food, or money. I would raise money for them and have a food drive. The homeless community could help help a big apartment for them and they would have to pay rent until they had a job. They could have free check-ups and the children could have free schooling and day care.

Alpen Nacar On Thayer Championship Soccer Team

Alpen Nacar of North Quincy, a senior at Thayer Academy, was a member of the school's boys varsity soccer team which recently won the Class A New England Prep School Athletic Conference championship.

The 3-2 shootout victory over Choate Rosemary Hall for the title is Thayer's first in school history. It's only the fourth time an ISL team has won the Class A championship.

Thayer, which normally plays Class B, was asked to move up to Class A because of its strength this season.

It would be to have a fantastic holiday with my family instead of getting all the presents that I want for Christmas. I hope to have a good time for the holiday and to be with my mother, sister, Uncle Paul, and my grandmother. I'm very lucky to have them for the holidays.

A Thought For The Week

THOUGHTS ON TIME

To each of us, it seems that we never have enough time in our days, and yet we are allotted the same number of hours. How we use up our hours is our own choice. We came across some thoughts on time that we think are good and we want to share them with you:

Time is money... we have no time to waste it.
Time is power... we have no right to dissipate it.
Time is influence... we have no right to throw it away.
Time is life... we must value it greatly.
Time is God's... He gives it to us for a purpose.
Time is a sacred trust... we must answer for every moment.
Time is wisdom... we have no right to be ignorant.
Time is preparation for eternity... we must redeem it.*

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're unsure if the financial advice you've received is going to work for you. You are wise to question this. Do some more research before deciding what to do.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The week turns out to be a mix of progress and setbacks. You end it on the same footing you begin. Couples come to terms over a monetary concern, which is finally put to rest this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Don't allow yourself the luxury of inaction on the job. Your skills are necessary to complete a difficult task. Try not to worry over things which you can't control.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Early in the week, your mind is already set on the weekend and what you want to do. Try to exercise more discipline. Your concentration is needed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You naturally tend to keep most things to yourself. This is a trait that will come in very handy in business affairs. Instead of taking action, it's best to just sit back and observe.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're out and about, shopping for frumpies, despite your recent holiday purchases. While this appeals to your aesthetic sense, it's not necessarily good for your budget. Use some constraint.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone comes to you with a dilemma you find difficult to unravel. However, between the two of you, the answer is soon found. Financial matters get a nice boost.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Others are waiting to hear from you, so pick up the phone. Someone to whom you've made a promise is still waiting patiently. Tend to this as soon as you can.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is the time of year to put the accent on family life and domestic harmony. However, it's wise to leave this within the family unit itself. Having guests over only complicates matters.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's not a good week to do things go to work, even though you're tempted to do so. Bigwigs are watching. The pursuit of pleasure is favored over the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're really not concentrating, so it's probably best to stick close to home and tend to domestic chores. Even so, you're tempted to let distractions get in your way.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's not a good time to mince words with anyone. Speak up for yourself and say what's on your mind. Any projects you do in conjunction with others are favored.

Keating To Meet With Divers On Quarry Search

The captain of the State Police dive team believes it's not safe yet for recovery efforts to resume at the Granite Rail Quarry, according to a spokesman in District Attorney Jeffrey Locke's office.

State Police divers had hoped to go back to the quarry this week in an effort to retrieve the body of an alleged homicide victim first seen about a year ago when the divers recovered the body of Patrick Mc-

Donagh.

At that time, the water was so deep, they could not dive safely.

A Winchester engineering firm was hired by the Metropolitan District to lower the level of the water by about 115 feet. That work was completed Dec. 16.

About 35 feet of water remain in the area where the body is believed to be, near an overhanging rock. Junk cars and other debris also in the area make it difficult to dive there, said Locke's spokesman. At the western end of the quarry, fallen trees endanger the area.

William Keating, who will be installed as district attorney Jan. 6, said he plans to meet with the divers, the engineers and Charles Hammond to discuss what can be done at the quarry to recover the body.

Hammond believes the body is that of his daughter Karen, who was reported missing four years ago.

$2,500 First Night Quincy Sponsorship From BankBoston

BankBoston is supporting the city's First Night celebration with a $2,500 sponsorship.

The donation supports the creation of an ice sculpture village, in which local artists carve frozen masterpieces carrying out the holiday theme.

Thomas Lyons, senior loan officer in BankBoston's south region, described the First Night festivities as "a wonderful opportunity for families to welcome in the year with friends and neighbors in a safe, joyful environment.

South Shore Savings Bank To Open In January

The South Shore Savings Bank will open its 10th branch Jan. 11 at the former site of Eddie's Diner at the intersection of Quincy Avenue and Southern Artery.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at the new 10,000-square-foot, two-story building at 9 a.m. Jan. 8.

John Boucher, executive vice president and chief operating officer, said when the new Quincy facility opens, its branch on Quincy Avenue in East Braintree, about a half-mile away, will close.

"The Quincy branch is a full-service bank with three drive-in windows, including one for an ATM.

The mutual savings bank, with nearly $500 million in assets, will occupy 3,500 square feet on the first floor and will lease the rest of the building.

Allied American Insurance Agency plans to occupy the entire second floor of the building, said Don Uvanitte, a vice president of the company.

Uvanitte said the company will relocate its North Weymouth office to the new 5,000-square-foot space in late February or early March.

The South Shore Savings Bank was created about a year ago when the Weymouth Savings Bank and the South Shore Savings Bank merged. Corporate headquarters are located at 1530 Main St., South Weymouth, at the intersections of Routes 18 and 58.

Health Care Community Discussion Jan. 5

The Quincy Health Campaign will sponsor a community discussion "Health Care: Will it be there when you need it?" Tuesday, Jan. 5 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Adams Shore Public Library, Sea and Palmer Sts.

Following brief presentations by three people active in the movement for health care reform, those present will consider ways to help change the current situation.

Speakers will include:
• Jennifer Zelnick, executive director, Universal Health Care Education Fund. She will present an overview of state-wide efforts to achieve universal health care to date.
• Ed Bruno, New England regional organizer of the Labor Party. He will report on the recent Labor Party national convention, which resolved to unfold a national "Just Healthcare" campaign inspired by the successful 1998 ballot initiatives in parts of Boston and Quincy.

• Sandy Eaton, RN, a staff nurse at Quincy Hospital and a member of the Steering Committee of the Ad Hoc Committee to Defend Health Care. He will present the proposal for a binding ballot question in the year 2000 announced by Nobel Peace Prize laureate Dr. Bernard Lown and noted economist John Kenneth Galbraith.

For more information, write to Quincy Health Campaign, P.O. Box 741, streets, there would be gunfire, the whole shebang.

City Officials Support Censure

"But as the Constitution sets out, there is a process that does work, as cumbersome and bipartisan as it is. I'd like to see fairness-mindedness prevail and the government get beyond the rhetoric.

"The institution that we call the Republic still stands strong. To me, this is something we can gain from, this hoopla and bad feeling.

"Let the crime fit the punishment; our system of laws have a way of ferreting out the appropriate action.

"It seems like the Senate has a better handle on the pulse of the people. They don't want to impeach the President," he said.

"The bottom line is that we have to punish the President but not punish the country," said Councillor-at-Large Paul Harold.

"It seems there is a consensus there should be censure. The Senate would allow for a reprimand but that would not jeopardize the nation's economy or its position as the world's super power," Harold said.

Last September, Harold was asked to give a lecture in November on the politics of impeachment at the University College at Cork. By the time he was scheduled to give the speech, "the whole issue had changed 360 degrees.

"Most Europeans think the President had a girl friend and don't seem to see the underlying perfidy and how it would impact the whole rule of law," he said.

But in speaking with friends in Canada last weekend, Harold said the Canadians have a better understanding of the issue.

"The Canadians are so closely tied to the United States' economy and military strength, they don't want [to see] something that will impact their own country. They want it to end quickly.

"Perhaps they are more objective because they are not U.S. citizens. But the U.S. stock market, the U.S. Armed Forces help secure economies and world borders, and if this becomes too dragged out, there could be an unintended result and they are concerned how it will affect them."

Councillor-at-Large Francis X. McCauley declined to comment about the President's impeachment.

"The people already have spoken on the matter," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond. "More than 75 percent of the people have formed an opinion. They clearly know the facts.

"They want Clinton to remain President. The economy is strong. I would favor censure as the appropriate matter before the Senate."

"It's very clear the President has embarrassed the people of the United States and has really embarrassed the U.S. abroad," said Mayor James Sheets.

"The reasonable course of action would be to create a very strong type of censure that would be satisfactory to both parties," he said.

"Beyond that, he should come out and tell the people he lied. I understand that sets him up for criminal action later. But the question is: Is it what's good for him or good for the country?"

"There's got to be some honesty. The truth should be told. If the trust be told by the President, then censure becomes the policy for both parties. But that's just my opinion," said Sheets.

Added Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico: "If I were in the House of Representatives, I would have voted for the two articles of impeachment" which Congress did. "The House only had the option to impeach or not to impeach.

"I believe the institution of the Presidency has been harmed for some time because of this incident, and I would side with the majority of Republicans and a few Democrats that the intent of the Constitution was that lying under oath is grounds for impeachment."

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott concurred that there should be a strong censure coming from the Senate.

"On the one hand, I see his actions as a farce to the office of the Presidency and Clinton should be wholeheartedly ashamed of himself. But I would stop shy of saying he should resign.

"His Presidency will be [remembered] that he was impeached but not convicted and that the country would not tolerate his kind of behavior in public office," McDermott said.

Free Back Pain Lecture At Hospital

A free back pain lecture will be held Wednesday, Jan. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Quincy Hospital Conference Rooms B and C.

Dr. Andrew Koropecy, MD, anesthesiologist, will discuss the different causes of back pain and how doc-
